

Don't neglect your cough.

Statistics show that in New York City alone over 200 people die every week from consumption.

And most of these consumptives might be living now if they had not neglected the warning cough.

You know how quickly Scott's Emulsion enables you to throw off a cough or cold.

"How many brothers have you, little boy?" "Two." "Why, I thought you had three." "Yes, but two of 'em's only half brothers."

THE OPTIMISTIC POET.

It's snowing this afternoon, I am glad of it; science says that when snow is falling the atmosphere is warmer. And it doesn't take so much coal. I see by my literary journal that a new magazine is to be launched the first of the month. I will have some wares on the ground early. My literary helper also says that McClunsey does not want any more poetry. How fortunate I am; this will save at least a stamp book. The Right of Way Magazine has a new rejection slip. I never did like the color of the old one. My little darling brain-child got home a day earlier than I expected it. Seems cheery with the little wanderer here. Life is worth while now. If the proposed manuscript bill for lower rates passes the house and senate this winter I can get a new suit of clothes and a two-dollar derby next spring. I hear the postman coming. I must go downstairs now.—Puck.

CRUSHED IMPRESSIONIST.

A painter was praising the other day the artistic taste of John G. Johnson of Philadelphia. Mr. Johnson has collected one of the finest private galleries in the world and as a connoisseur he has few living equals.

"A young impressionist," said the painter, "got John G. Johnson to visit his studio last year. He showed his latest picture and tried to get Mr. Johnson to buy it. He said politely that he thought the picture was not good. "This so annoyed the impressionist that he let his temper get the better of him. He said hotly: "After all, Mr. Johnson, what do you know about pictures? You never painted any." "My dear, sir," the lawyer retorted, smiling and rubbing his glasses with his handkerchief, "I know a bad egg, but I never laid one."

TOAD FISH IN OYSTER SHELL.

A toad fish about the size of a human finger was received at the museum of the fish commission at Washington, with which there is connected an interesting story. It is stated that the fish was found in a closed oyster shell, which was purchased by Mr. John H. Miller, of No. 331 G street southeast, when he secured a lot of the bivalves in the shell from a dealer. While opening the oysters Mr. Miller found the fish inclosed between the shells. It was alive and he carried it to the museum. It was placed in an aquarium, and to-day is reported to be "well and thriving."

It is said the toad fish, which is an ugly looking member of the finny tribe, can live several hours out of the water. The theory is that the fish was hatched from an egg which became accidentally imprisoned in the oyster shell.

A French Darn. Cut out the torn piece and so make a clean hole. Shave the edges as close as possible. Next lay the torn piece on a square of the same material; tack it down and cut the patch to the required shape. Sew the patch and the garment to a piece of paper and darn invisibly with threads of the material or hair.

Lacings of Velvet. Lacings of velvet are found as trimming, holding together panels, sleeves caps and jacket fronts.
