RETURNED HIM PART OF TIP ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Action of Independent Western Astonished the Visitor from the Effete East.

"Last week," said the man who had just returned from the west, "I had a new experience. The five-cent cigar reigns in the west even among the rich men. It is not that a western man is not willing to pay more than five cents for a cigar, but, apparently, it is because his taste does not discriminate against it, and he thinks five cents is enough to pay for self-indulgence.

"At one of the railway stations I needed the services of a porter for several minutes. He helped me lift my trunks and bags about and rearrange my baggage generally, and I handed him a quarter, saying, 'Get yourself a cigar.' To my amazement he handed me back two silver dimes. 'A five-cent cigar is good enough for me,' he answered, and I was so dumfounded that I put the change back in my pocket, not knowing what else to do with it. Fancy a New York porter returning any portion of a tip!"—N. Y. Times.

HAD ITS ADVANTAGES.

Jefferson D. Thompson, the chairman of the Vanderbilt cup commission, was criticizing a new motor-car of rather dubious type.

"Even the advantages claimed for this car," said Mr. Thompson, "appear dubious to me. Take that vaunted feature, for instance, of excessive lightness."

Mr. Thompson smiled. "A young lady," he said, "once showed me proudly a very cheap, very light car that she had just bought. 'Awfully light, isn't it?' said I. 'Yes,' said she. 'Isn't it splendid! Whenever it breaks down we can always push it home.'"

WIG-WAGGING HIS WARES.

A small and impetuous man came into an East side cafe, waved a box of neckties fastened securely against the bottom of the box at the crowd around a table there, then, since none of them signified a desire to purchase, went on out.

"It's all right having flags waved at you election times," said one, "but the election is over. Why the wig-wagging?"

"He can't speak English," another explained.—New York Press.

LACE WITH A THREAD OF GOLD.

Many of the new dresses are trimmed with jewels and gold lace. Paquin has created a model of black crepe de chine, draped round and round the figure, and filled in at the décolletage with about three inches of solid pearl embroidery. Most of the white lace used—and there is a very little of it—is outlined with a thread of gold.

A WASP LOOSE.

She had accepted his offer to escort her home in the rain.

"I have been wondering," he remarked on the way, "whether it is on account of my umbrella or my company that I am allowed to come with you."

"It is neither," she replied; "it is on account of my new hat."—Home Chat.

SMALL ARMY.

"I have about made up my mind to give the army a bath," announced the commander of a South American fighting force.

"A good idea," said the representative of an American manufacturer. "How many tubs do you need?"

"One will do."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

HEARD IN THE MUSEUM.

"That's Venus," remarked the girl in the emerald hat.

"So I see," responded her chum.

"And the poor girl has lost her arms."

"I wonder how?"

"Maybe she tried to tie one of those Gordian knot veils."

REAL MEAN.

Madge—How is it you don't speak to Edith any more?

Dolly—She won three of my engagement rings from me playing bridge.—Puck.

WOES OF THE SUBURBANITE.

Ostend—Pa. what is the "Suburban handicap?"

Pa.—The lawn mower in the summer and the snow shovel in the winter, my son.

In the Probate Court of Lafayette County, Missouri, Adjourning November Term, 24th day of December 1908, Estate of Henry Dierker, deceased.

Now at this day come John H. Dierker, Administrator of the Estate of Henry Dierker, deceased, and presents his petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of said Henry Dierker, as will pay and satisfy the remaining debts due by said estate and get unpaid for want of sufficient assets, accompanied by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such cases.

On examination whereof it is ordered that all persons interested in said estate be notified that application as aforesaid has been made, and that unless the contrary be shown up or before the first day of the next term of this Court, to be held on the second Monday in February 1909 an order will be made for the sale of the whole or so much of the real estate of said Henry Dierker, as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts.

And it is further ordered that all of the heirs of said deceased, residents on the date of his death, be personally served with notice of these proceedings according to law.

And it is further ordered that this notice be published in the Evening Star, a newspaper published in said county, for four weeks successively before the commencement of the next term of this Court.

A true copy. Attest: THOMAS A. WALKER, Probate Judge.

ABOUT ADVERTISING—NO. 10

The Man Who Retreats Before His Defeat!

By Herbert Kaufman.

Advertising isn't magic. There is no element of the black art about it. In its best and highest form it is plain talk, sane talk—selling talk. Its results are in proportion to the merit of the subject advertised and the ability with which the advertising is done.

There are two great enemies to advertising profit, and both of them are caused by ignorance of the real functions and workings of publicity.

The one is to advertise promises which will not be fulfilled, because all that advertising can do when it accomplishes most is to influence the reader of your copy to investigate your claims.

If you promise the earth and deliver the moon advertising will not pay you.

If you draw men and women to your store on pretense and fail to make good, advertising will have harmed you because it has only drawn attention to the fact that you are to be avoided.

It is as unjust to charge advertising with failure under these conditions as it would be for your neighbor to rob a bank and find yourself indicted for his misdeed. In brief, advertised dishonesty is even more profitable than unexploited deception.

The other great error in advertising is to expect more out of advertising than there is in it.

Advertising is seed which a merchant plants in the confidence of the community. He must allow time for it to grow. Every successful advertiser has to be patient. The time that it takes to arrive at results rests entirely with the ability and determination you display in the effort. But you cannot turn back when you have traveled half way and declare that the path is wrong.

You can't advertise for a week and because your store isn't crowded say it hasn't paid you. It takes a certain period to attract the attention of readers. Everybody doesn't see what you print the first time it appears. More will notice your copy the second day, a great many more at the end of a month.

You cannot expect to win the confidence of the community to the same degree that other men have obtained it without taking pretty much the same length of time that they did. But you can cut short the period between your introduction to your reader and his introduction to your counters by spending more effort in preparing your copy and displaying a greater amount of convincingness.

You mustn't act like the little girl who planted a garden and came out the next day expecting to find it in full bloom. Her father had to explain to her that plans require roots and that, although she could not see what was going on, the seeds were doing their most important work just before the flowers showed above ground.

So advertising is doing its most important work before the big results eventuate, and to abandon the money which has been invested just before results arrive is not only foolish but childish. It would be just as logical for a farmer to abandon his fields because he could not harvest his corn a week after he planted it.

Advertising does not require faith—merely common sense. If it is begun in doubt and deserted before normal results can be reasonably looked for, the fault does not lie with the newspaper or with publicity—it rests entirely upon the head of the coward who retreated before he was defeated.
