HOG CHOLERA

The Prevention and Control Undertaken by Federal Government.

PETTIS COUNTY CHOSEN

U. S. Department of Agriculture and Agriculture College of Missouri Co-operate to Eradicate this Disease

The Federal Government is to spend several thousand dollars per year in hog cholera prevention and control work in Pettis county, Mo. The funds available for this work come through an appropriation of $75,000 made to the Bureau of Animal Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for demonstrating the best methods of preventing and eradicating hog cholera.

Sometime ago the Missouri State Board of Agriculture learned that the agricultural authorities at Washington had in view the selection of one county in each of three leading hog producing states where work looking to the eradication of hog cholera was to be done. It was also learned that Missouri was not one of the states conditionally chosen. Then the Missouri Board got busy. Telegrams urging Missouri's claims were sent to Secretary David A. Houston, Speaker Champ Clark and Senators Reed and Stone. Through the Board, Governor Major was advised of the situation and rendered valuable aid. The result of the campaign and of later conferences, one of which was held in Kansas City, June 17, when representatives of the Missouri Board met with Dr. M. Dorsett of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, Missouri came in for consideration. Plans proposed were later submitted to the Missouri Board of Agriculture and the Agricultural College, both institutions expressing a willingness to co-operate with the Department at Washington. Choice of a county in which to work was left to the Federal authorities, but Secretary T. C. Wilson of the Missouri Board and Dr. S. Sheldon, State Veterinarian, were asked to report as to the advantages of certain counties. It was suggested by the Government representative that the county selected should contain no large city, nor border on a river where drainage might make control work difficult; that the county be one having a good number of hogs and one where the loss from cholera has been representative rather than excessively heavy or very light. Another provision was that the county chosen should be one having a county farm adviser. With choice narrowed to a few counties, Pettis was chosen. The beginning of this work in Pettis county, with Dr. Bernard W. Murphy as inspector in charge, may be looked upon as one of the most important steps in hog cholera control and prevention ever taken in the state, and the entire state will be benefited. It is hoped to demonstrate the value of a county campaign which includes not only prompt use of serum wherever cholera appears, but also an effective quarantine, and wide spread cooperation and education.

The educational work includes the organization of a corps of volunteer agents, at least one for each township. These volunteers will be assembled and instructed, and through them farmers' clubs will be organized. The purpose of the work and the ultimate object sought will be fully explained.

Restrictive regulations will include the following: Prevention of shipment from diseased herds, quarantining and placarding of infected farms permitting introduction of new animals from without experimental area only under quarantine restrictions, restrictions at fairs and shows, cleaning up of stock yards and prevention of reinfection, disinfecting of corn, prohibiting driving of hogs on public highways, compulsory report of outbreaks of cholera, compulsory "serum alone" or "simultaneous" inoculation or use of virus in any form except under State or Federal authority, compulsory destruction of dead hogs.

Preventive inoculation measures will include much important work. All cholera outbreaks will be reported, volunteer township agents assisting. The serum alone, simultaneous (either that in judgment of Federal officers is necessary) will be used on infected farm, also on adjoining farms. Premises where disease makes its appearance are to be cleaned and disinfected, and carcasses of hogs disposed of. Owners will also be instructed regarding methods of prevention. All results are to be reported. Records showing total number of hogs in area will be made. In addition, records of losses during preceding years will also be compiled.

In carrying out this work in Pettis county where S. M. Jordan formerly associated with the Missouri Board of Agriculture, is county farm adviser the Federal Government will spend several thousand dollars. Dr. Murphy, representing the Government, will have two or more assistants, and will devote his entire time to Pettis county. From the headquarters, which will be maintained in Sedalia, practically any farm in the county where an outbreak of cholera might occur can be reached within an hour or two when serum will be administered, other preventive measures taken, and quarantine established.

At a meeting held in Sedalia July 24, and attended by Dr. W. M. Niles and Dr. Bernard W. Murphy of the Bureau of Animal Industry U. S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. J. W. Connaway of the Missouri College of Agriculture, and Dr. S. Sheldon, State Veterinarian, plans for the work were perfected. The Board of Agriculture will issue and enforce such restrictive regulations as may be deemed necessary after conference with Federal officials. The Bureau of Animal Industry will undertake to furnish all serum required for the work, but in case of shortage the Missouri College of Agriculture will supply the deficiency so far as possible. The College of Agriculture will work with the county agent, assist in the educational campaign and with the work in general.

If this cholera prevention and control work, seemingly so intelligently undertaken, proves successful in Pettis county, other counties will want to follow.

Make Your Cooking a Daily Pleasure

It do. What a satisfaction. Better yet its a "Stay Satisfactory Range." And the ovens, well, you can put a whole beef in without touching the sides.
