How to Test Water.

Every one knows and admits the necessity for pure water. When you are away from home, and are not sure of the character of the water supply, it would not be a bad idea to make a few simple tests. The results may prove that it was decidedly worth while to take the trouble says the New York Sun. Here are two tests that you can make very easily:

Fill a tumbler with water, drop in a lump of white sugar, cover it with a saucer, and let it stand overnight on the bricks at the side of the range, on the kitchen mantelpiece, or, in fact, any place where the temperature will not sink below sixty degrees. If next morning the contents are clear, the water is pure. If on the other hand, the liquid is cloudy, some source of contamination is indisputably proved.

The second test is to drop a few grains of permanganate of potash into a tumbler of water, cover, and let it stand for an hour. If the water is still of the bright rosy color to which the chemical turned it, it is perfectly safe for drinking; if it is of a brownish color, it is impure, although the impurity may be of the kind that boiling will rob of its power to harm.

ECHOES FROM RICHMOND

Richmond Happenings Always Interest Our Readers.

After reading of so many people in our town who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, the question naturally arises: "Is this medicine equally successful in our neighboring towns?" The generous statement of this Richmond resident leaves no room for doubt on this point.

A. D. Endsley, auctioneer, N. Main St., Richmond, Mo., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief from a bad attack of kidney trouble that had bothered me for a long time. I gladly endorse this remedy."

Rufus Young.

The death of this good man seems to deserve more than a passing notice in the papers of the county of which he was so long an honored citizen. He was born in Hawkins county, Tennessee on the second day of July 1825, and with his parents came to Lafayette county in 1833. His father, Major Arthur G. Young, belonged to the hardy pioneer stock which built up our great commonwealth in the midst of the wilderness. He reared a large family and lived on the farm settled in that early day until past the age of ninety years. He gave to his sons farms around him, and the subject of this sketch resided on his from the time of his marriage in 1846 to the date of his death February 8, 1914, a period of sixty-eight years. His wife was Permelia A. Lankford, a native of this county and the daughter of another pioneer. When they were married, he was not yet twenty-one and his bride scarcely eighteen years old. They built their modest little home, and for more than sixty-five years they walked life's pathway together, loving, faithful husband and wife, good, sensible parents, kind and hospitable neighbors. More than two years since Mrs. Young was called to the mansions above and from that time Mr. Young has longed and prayed for the call to join her, life without her had lost its dearest companionship, its greatest joy. But even with this the case, the devoted children realized it was better that she should be left alone than that she should have been. It was very hard on "Father" to lose her, but "Mother" could not have lived at all without him. And now our Heavenly Father has made the parted one."

The thing most noticeable in Mr. Young's character was his deep piety shown by his regular attendance at the house of God, his constancy in holding family worship, his liberality to every church cause, his faithfulness in attending to the smallest religious duty. He became a member of the Lexington Presbyterian church in early boyhood, was the last charter member of Prairie church, which was organized in 1849, no one now living can tell just when he was ordained an Elder of that congregation, but he was clerk of the session for sixty years. In all that long time he was attentive to every duty, was superintendent of the Sunday School for many years until the gathering infirmities of age caused him to pass that task to young men. He was always faithful in visiting the sick and those in trouble, was ready with sympathy and help in time of need.

Mr. Young was blessed with health of body, and mind up to an age far beyond the time when they usually fail; his regular life, his strict temperance found their reward in strength of arm, clearness of vision and an abiding interest in the deeper matters of life. Only a few weeks before his death he talked to the writer of this brief tribute about the cause of missions, and his eyes glowed as of old and a smile wreathed his lips as he spoke of the "open door" in China, and the hope that ere long, the whole world would be reached by the heralds of the Cross.

Those dearest to him on earth can not grieve overmuch, dearly as they loved him, much as they will miss him, because they realize that he has only gone on before, and now he is in the presence of his Lord, who said to him: "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

John F. Bruns, Concordia, President.

Wm. Jafferries, Odessa, Vice-President.

James W. Graham died at the home of his son near Mayview Sunday, March 1. His death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Graham was 88 years, 5 months and 20 days old. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and three sons. The children are: Mrs. Julia Whitaker, Clinton, Mo.; Mrs. Nora Mills, Aullville, Mo.; Leonard Graham, Lexington, Walter and James Graham near Mayview. The funeral services conducted by Rev. Tom Powell were held at Marvin Chapel Tuesday, March 3, 1914.

Judge Chris Tempel recently bought 420 acres north of Higginsville of the David Groves estate paying therefor $55,000. Mr. Tempel now owns about 1500 acres in Lafayette county.

Mrs. Gustave Hearle and little daughter, Fannie Elizabeth, returned Monday evening from a visit in St. Louis.

Forest Notes.

The state of New York has just published a comprehensive report of its wood-using industries.

Canada has a society of forest engineers. Dr. B. E. Fernow, of Toronto, is president, and Mr. F. W. H. Jacombe, of Ottawa, is secretary.

Of the three Pacific coast states, Oregon and Washington far outstrip California in the work done by private owners for forest protection.

The development of quick-silver mines promises to make large demands for cordwood and construction timbers on the Tonto national forest, Arizona.

Manufacturers of greenhouses and makers of boxes are getting in touch so that the latter may use for box cleats the cypress waste from the greenhouses.

Lodgepole pine seed sown broadcast on the snow in southern Idaho last spring germinated when the snow melted, and as many as 60 little trees were counted to the square foot. The summer was so dry, however, that most of the plants died, except where sheltered by brush or logs.
