

SENATOR REED A REAL NATIONAL LEADER.

The masterful speech delivered by Missouri's matchless junior senator, Hon. Jas. A. Reed, in the United States Senate a few days ago, reviewing the constructive work of the Wilson administration is attracting nation wide attention. Mr. Reed is one of the country's recognized big men and is growing daily in the estimation of the people everywhere. He is never superficial. He talks only when he has something to say—a message of real value to the masses.

The following telegrams and letters concerning the speech referred to, are unusual compliments.

Hon. Vance C. McCormick, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee wired Senator Reed as follows:

"I want to congratulate you upon the splendid speech you made in the Senate. I am instructing our publicity department to make good use of it. We are all grateful to you for the splendid effort."

Hon. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, writes: "I want you to know that I read every word of your speech. It is a great campaign document and ought to be made use of. I am sorry it came at the time when the country is so much interested in the strike. It is a complete and unanswerable argument in every way, and I congratulate you upon it."

Hon. W. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, member of President Wilson's cabinet, writing from Spring Lake, New Jersey, warmly commends the speech, in a letter to Senator Reed. He says: "I want to congratulate you heartily on your splendid speech in the Senate on August 29th on 'The Record of Democratic Legislation.' You have presented the facts compactly and irresistibly. It is one of the most convincing utterances on the subject I have read. I hope the speech will get wide circulation. I have written National Chairman McCormick today suggesting that it be widely circulated that it be widely circulated by the National Committee."

This recognition over and above every other national speaker, is not only a personal compliment to Senator Reed, but one in which every Missourian has a part. It means something for the State to be represented in the greatest deliberative body in the world by a man who measures up to the highest standard in statesmanship.

Aggressive, fearless, a clear thinker, a splendid orator, Senator Reed is recognized as essentially an advocate and defender of the soundest legislation, in finance and in business, to give an equal chance to all, big and little.

He stands for rational development of our resources, expansion of our industries, never forgetting the welfare of the man in the shop, the man on the farm, the man in the street. Only the predatory "interests" are his foes.

In the Senate of the United States he looms large as a power for great and genuine democracy.

BIG UNIVERSITY GAIN INDICATED THIS YEAR

Advance Enrollment Reaches 2,400 Two Weeks Before Opening.

Twenty-four hundred students had sent in their names in the advance registration at the University of Missouri two weeks before the opening of school. This indicates that the total enrollment for the year will show a considerable increase over last year's 4,082.

The ten schools and colleges of the University at Columbia will open with all their regular work Monday, September 18. Tuition remains free to all young men and women of Missouri in all divisions. The library, hospital and incidental fee of $12 a semester also remains the same despite rumors that it has been raised. This fee gives students all necessary medical attention and the use of library equipment without further charge. It is required of all students with these exceptions: State cadets, and honor graduates of fully accredited high schools, normals and colleges of the Missouri College Union.

September 18, 19 and 20 the long lines of young men and women will wind through the various buildings of the University as the thousands of students enroll for work in the many different courses. These three days will add hundreds to those who will have registered in advance.

This year the old school of Commerce will begin as the School of Commerce and administration. The change, made at the suggestion of President A. Ross Hill, enlarges the scope of the school to include training for public service as well as for business management. Dr. Isidor Loeb, a native Missourian, is dean of the school.

The School of Engineering, which in connection with the Engineering Experiment Station is doing much to help the people of the State solve the problems of road building, water and sewage systems, home lighting and the like, will open especially well equipped with new shops and laboratories. This school gives work leading to five degrees: Bachelor of Science in Engineering, Civil Engineer, Electrical Engineer, Mechanical Engineer and Chemical Engineer.

The average expense of a year in the University is estimated at $300 for men and $375 for women. Those who wish to economize are helped to do so.

MISSOURI'S GREAT ANNUAL STATE FAIR

SEDALIA, SEPTEMBER 23 TO 30

APIARY DISPLAY TO BE MISSOURI FAIR FEATURE

All Stages of Bee Industry Will Be Shown at Sedalia.

Bookkeeping is becoming a profitable sideline for the Missouri farmer and many are going extensively into bee culture and finding that when the bees are kept right and given the same attention that is given to other branches of farm industry that they pay very well. Missouri has plenty of flowers from which the bees can gather sweetness, and honey always finds a ready market.

Those who are interested in this industry should not miss the apiary display at the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, Sept. 23-30. All stages of bee culture will be shown, from the wild bees in their native state to those bees that are raised for profit on the Missouri farm.

One of the interesting features in this department at the Fair this year will be a "bee-tree," which is a hollow trunk of a tree that a colony of wild bees confiscated for their store house.

This display will be transported from Independence, Mo., where it was discovered by a farmer, and will be placed in a glass case through which the visitors can see these busy little creatures as they are in their natural environment.

In the display of domesticated bees, there will be a number of glass hives where the bees can be observed as they work on various models. There will also be a number of exhibits showing the kinds of honey that are secured from various Missouri flowers.

In this regard, it might be said, that by feeding the bees on certain kinds of flowers, a variety of colored honey can be obtained. Realizing this, a clever beekeeper has made a county map of Missouri, showing all of the 114 counties in different colors of honey.

Modeling in wax will also be a feature in this department. Busts of the two presidential candidates, Woodrow Wilson and Charles Evans Hughes, will be there, modeled in wax.

A TWICE-TOLD TALE

One of Interest to our Readers.

Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Lexington man is confirmed after five years.

C. S. Mitchell, farmer, Lexington, says: "My kidneys troubled me and my bladder gave me annoyance. One of our best physicians didn't help me. At times I found it hard to control the kidney secretions. Nothing benefitted me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Crenshaw and Young's Drug Store. They strengthened my kidneys in a short time."

OVER FIVE YEARS LATER, Mr. Mitchell said: "I haven't had any kidney or bladder trouble since I used Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Mitchell has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
