

cark. Evidently, then, we cannot look to mere natural temperament to settle the question whether the times are better or worse.

Our text hints at a profound fact. This fact is that the hope of the world's progress is based upon the Bible. There must be a plan, even for a house, else it will remain a confused pile of lumber, brick and lime. There must be a plan for a military campaign, in order that all maneuvers may converge on the critical point with irresistible force for victory. According to the Bible, God has a plan for this world. His character and wisdom and power are such as to warrant us in expecting majestic results. A vigorous conviction that the world is growing better springs from the fact that God reigns and that He is able to execute His purpose.

Lord Macaulay said that, in the twentisth century, America would fail either into the hands of a Caesar—a despot—or into the hands of a Caesar—a despot—or into the hands of a lorde of barbarians, Hertuin as a republic, he thought, was inevitable. Not so John Adams. In ISIA Adams wrote to Jefferson: "Our virtuous republic will last forever, govern the globe and introduce the perfection of man."

"Cease to brag to me of America," said Carlyle, "and its model institutions and constitutions. America, too, will have to strain its energies, crack its shews, and all but break its heart, as the rest of us have had to do, in thousand-fold wrestle with the pythons and mud demons, before it can become a habitation for the gods."

So we go, see-sawing with extremes. Macaulay says we are soing to the bad; Adams, that we are going to the best.

We might appeal to science, Just now science teaches the "survival of the unitiest! If men were ence apes, but now are igladistone better than a monkey? The gospel preached to-day by science is optimisic, for which thanks.

Let us reinfore science and the Bible in their verdict by taking the measure of our eentury.

The Cathedral Presented a Magnificent Appearance—Floral Decorations and Music.

The Easter services at the Cathedral yesterday morning were witnessed by a very large congregation. The decorations for the occasion, consisting of Easter likes, beautiful white and red roses, some of which were brought from Chicago, were unusually profuse and beautiful. Within the chancel and around the aliar was one continuous wall of flowers, and being interspersed with numerous burning candles they presented a magnificent section of beauty. By the time the aliar boys, dressed in their purple robes, had taken their places before the chancel railing, every pew and every chair in the spacious Cathedral was occupied and each alists was crowded to the utmost. As the first notes of the great organ sounded from behind the fragrant lifes, and the voices of the surpliced choir pealed forth the first notes of the "Messe Solennelle," and the fragrant incense of the altar mingled with that of the flowers filling the air with the sweetest perfumery and music, one could better understand the transcendant glory of the risen Lord. After the choir sang the "Processional" and "Glory in Excelsis," the Very Rev. Father Giennon preached the sermon on "Lessons of the Feast," He showed how lessons of faith and nope might be drawn from the feast, faith because of the miracle of the resurrection, hope because it was the crowning proof of Christ's divinity, and proof of the divine character of the faith which he founded. He showed that the lessons of hope could also be learned from the feast of the day, because Christ's resurrection is but the four-miner of the final resurrection and consequent mmornality of all those who believe in Him. Hence the words of the creed, "I believe in the resource of a superior musical character were also held, beginning at 7:30. Easter vesper psalms were charted by the "Grend March," S. A. Legg presiding at the organ.

Chosing Services of the Conference.

The conference of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, which began at Independence last Sunday, is at an end. At the service in the Latter Day Saints church in that city yesterday forenoon, Rev. W. W. Blair, the second president, preached the sermon. He related his experiences in preaching the doctrines of the church, many of which were of a hazarolous and exciting nature. He is one of the oldest men in the church, and was a member of it when it was located at Navoo, Ill.

Elder W. H. Kelley, of Kirtland, O., had charge of the service held during the afternoon. At night President Joseph Smith preached. His discourse closed the conference. Seven converts were baptized in the afternoon by Elders R. C. Evans and J. A. Robinson, in a pool near the Missouri Pacific depot, is the presence of a large number of members of the church and others.

It was covered with sod, a large mirror in the center served as a lake, graveled walks, mounds, trees and flowers, etc., served to make a most beautiful decoration. Forty-four members were received into fellowship, with a large number to follow very soon.

An offering of over $400 was received. The pastor was assisted by Revs, McAfee, Geiger and Mitchell.

BOYS' CLUB ENTERTAINED.

SONGS AND RECITATIONS AND A GIFT OF HARD BOILED EGGS.

Amusing Result of Dr. Honkins' Effort to Get a Compliment for the Singers - An Interesting Band of Urchins.

In the general celebration of Easter yes-terday, Dr. Henry Hopkins Boys' Club, for that is the name by which it is best known, was not forgotten. The boys were There were songs and restrations, a talk by Dr. Hopkins, and last, but far from least, in the boys' estimation, a hard boiled and a caudy egg for each of them.

At 4.20 o'clock the entrance to the boys' hall at 721 Wyandotte street was crowded with boys, all or them pushing and jostling to be first upstairs. Mr. James Harring-ton, who, with the assistance of his mother, ducts the club, was obliged to force th crowd back and shut the door so that only one boy might squeeze in at a time. But once inside the hall the gamins, some of whom still carried their papers, were as orderly as the members of the staidest church. They were told that there were visitors present to see them, and they must act their best. And they did from start to finish, much to the surprise of the visitors present to see them, and they must act their best. And they did from start to finish, much to the surprise of the visitors, who expected to see a menagerie. They could not have been better behaved had they been little Lord Fauntieroys.

The little stage at the front of the hall was prettly decorated with evergreens and likes for their special benefit. Miss M. Theo Frain played a piano solo, which the boys began to applaud. They were told that no encores would be allowed, whereupon they promptly obeyed orders. Miss floles read them an original Easter story, and Miss Jennie Schultz sang. Little Annie Harrington, daughter of the matron of the club, gave a rending, after which Maurice Cohen, a small newshoy, who goes by the name of "Jakey," recited a short piece. His associates found it hard work not to stamp, but they remembered their manners and kept quiet. Minnie Heflin, a 7-year-old tot from the Mission Sunday school of the First Congregational church, recited an Easter piece very creditably. Next there was a sort of a dialogue, participated in by three little girls, Annie Harrington, Mand Klein and Lula Kendall, who represented Charity, Faith and Hope, and six of the boys. The latter were Walter Kendall, John Lewis, John Donnelly, Charles Jackson, Barney Donnelly and Clyde Clarkson. The girls went through a little dialogue of their own, and then the boys chimed in. Some of the hoys were barefooted and several wore no coats. It must have been a hard task to drill them, but the six acquitted themselves well. They did not even miss step to the music of the piano, The lady visitors laushed heartily at the sturdy tones in which the words, "He is risen," and the hoys were barefooted and several wore no coats. Dr. Hopkins then told them of Christ and the meaning of Easter in as simple a way as he could. Once, when he said that Christ touched a dead man and he came to life on the instant, one of the boys, more skeptical than the rest, gave utterance to a prolonged "Piew". The boys were formed in line at the close of the services, and were given eggs, with a promise of gifts of potted plants this evening.

A LIVELY CHASE. Police Raided a Game of Cards on an Open

One small boy, who was a member of a crowd who were engaged in shooting craps at Twentieth and Holmes streets yesterday, was caught by police officers, while the rest of the boys made a rapid exit all over the South side. The boys went out to the open lot at the point mentioned and played a game of basebail. Having decided which side had the most prowess and luck, the youngsters settled down to an exchange of pennies by means of the harmful craps.

Charles Jackson, of 1104 Charlotte, saw and coveted a gold watch belonging to Clay Wright yesterday afternoon. To covet was to steal with Charles and he is now locked up at the Central police station on a charge of grand larceny, Jackson is the uncle by marriage of the man who stole the watch. Wright is porter at Flannisan's saloon at Ninth and the state line. The porter and another man were in the basement together and Jackson saw the chain hanging out of the side of a box where Wright had put his watch. He "lifted" the watch and was on his way up town when Wright missed it and suspecting Jackson, called Officer O'Connor to the rescue, O'Conner asked Jackson for the watch when he overtook him near Hell street, but Jackson denied any knowledge of it until persuaded by rather strong means. He dug the watch out of his pocket and was taken to the Scond precinct station.

When Jackson was taken before Captain pocket and was taken to the Second pre-cinct station.

When Jackson was taken before Captain Burns he denied he had stolen the watch. He just took it for a joke, intending to re-turn it as soon as he got back from a visit on Bell street. He related the family history of his victim and the pleasant relations existing between them, and seemed much chagrined when the au-thorities and his nephew-in-law refused to accept his explanation as good coin. Wright says he suspected Jackson as soon as he missed the watch and would see that he made his explanation in court.

Kamehatkan Beasts.

The Way Chuckehee Indians Take Hoge Kamebatkan Heasts.

"Landing at Olutorsk, a little trading station on the northwest coast of Scheria, during my last trip to the Arctic," said Captain Avery, of the whaleship Grampus, "some Chuckehee Indians from inland came in bringing reindeer meat and pelitries for sale. Among the skins they brought in was a huge bear skin, which I tried to buy, but I could not agree with the owner as to the price. Through an interpreter I learned the curious way in which these Indians kill the bear. The Katuchatkan bear is a huge brown follow, often weighing over I, see pounds, and is very feroclous and hard to the small darts which are the Chuckehee missile weapons, and it is necessary to cripple him before closing in with spears.

"These hears inhabit ground which is covered with dense thickets, through which is bear the Chuckehee takes two pieces of board about six inches long and three wide, through which he bores numerous holes. Through the holes in each piece he puis long iron nails with their points sharpened. Then placing the backs of the pieces of wood together he lashes them with thougs, thus leaving the sharp ends of the nails projecting on either side. This curious implement of hunting he has in the runway where the bear tracks are thickest, lightly covering each nearly a square fore and of the nails are fastened by the nails, looks at it, and, seeing the follows him, and which the boards are fastened by the nails, looks at it, and, seeing the him, Rising spon his him less he raises the paw to which the boards are fastened by the nails, looks at it, and, seeing the him, the sound and the nails again penetrate that.
