Mr. W. F. Stevenson,
Candidate
For Congress.

Will he be a man of influence if elected?

We can only judge of the future by the past. He has been classed by the people not favorable to him as the most influential man in the House at Columbia. Will he not measure up to that in Washington?

The Yorkeville Enquirer, the strongest paper in its section, published in his opponent's home town, said of him in February 1912:

"I was impressed with the veneration and confidence with which the members looked up to this Mr. Stevenson. I gathered that when a man had a bill that he wanted to go through he applied to Stevenson and if Stevenson promised his help it was all right."

So he seems to be a practical man who can deal with his fellow members so as to inspire them with confidence and accomplish his purposes. He is sometimes modest and on the occasion of the above editorial he modestly disclaimed such wide influence and thought it was a reflection on the House to attribute such power to one man. One of the daily newspapers editorially remarked as to this episode:

"Mr. Stevenson's position in the House of Representatives is no more and no less than will be that of every man of conspicuous native ability fortified by education and industry. He is a leader because he leads. Without setting him up as the foremost man of all the world or of the South Carolina General Assembly for that matter, it is the simple truth that he has few equals in that body and if he is a big force in South Carolina legislation, the explanation is that the momentum of brains and training counts. Any man of W. F. Stevenson's equipment would have recognition in any legislative body be it the Congress of the United States or any other assemblage in which he may be placed." Why not give him the chance to become such leader in Congress? Alabama has first had the leadership, North Carolina is now taking it in the House and already has it in the Senate. Why can't the State of Calhoun, Hayne and McDuffie have it? Give him a trial.

King Arrested For Speeding.
Paris Cable to Philadelphia Inquirer.

A powerful automobile recently was being piloted through the picturesque old town of Bayonne in the south of France by a young man with a large nose and protuberant underlip. A zealous policeman pulled up the machine, got out his note book and proceeded to take particulars with a view to the usual citation before the police judge for exceeding the speed limit.

"Name please," demanded Policeman Pelourgeat, pointing a threatening pencil at the smiling automobilist.

"Alfonso."
"That's not a name. Answer properly. Alfonso who? Alfonso what?"

"Alfonso... King, if you like."
"So your name is Alfonso King?"

Meanwhile a large and delighted crowd had collected and began to cheer. Finally some one enlightened the worthy policeman, who turned crimson with mortification.

No one enjoyed the joke more than Alfonso. With a broad grin he held out his hand and shook the policeman's hand warmly.

"Adios, Alguazil," he said, as he pressed his foot on his electric starter. In a few minutes the automobile was a speck on the San Sebastian road.

Since then Policeman Pelourgeat is celebrated in Bayonne as "the man who arrested the king."

"He's broke." "And the girl he was engaged to has dropped him." "She dropped and broke him, eh?" "No, she broke and dropped him."—Houston Post
