In voting for the recall of judges by a large majority, California repudiated Taft as an enemy of the people.

Woodrow Wilson is a radical, and that is why he is going to succeed Taft. All reforms are brought about by radicals, and the people want reforms.

California has voted in favor of the recall of judges and all other officials by a large majority. This law will be eventually adopted by all the states, simply because it is a good law.

There will be some lone editorial sermons preached on the Honea Path lynching, but they will do no good. The very next time a fiend forgets himself he will be strung up, just like Jackson.

Governor Woodrow Wilson may talk too much to please his critics, but there is no denying the fact that when he does talk he knows what he is talking about. He is no respecter of bosses, and hits Democrat as well as Republican.

A staff correspondent of the New York World, who is traveling with President Taft, writes from Hastings, Nebraska, to his paper that "the general opinion among Republicans is that the state is ready to go Democratic next year, if Woodrow Wilson is the candidate."

Woodrow Wilson does not put his trust in political bosses, but in the people. He says he is for anything that will give them direct control of their own affairs. Yet there are many who call themselves Democrats who are opposed to the people calling down a corrupt judge.

It is stated that Governor Bleese is absolutely opposed to the recall of judges. Is the governor among those who are afraid of the "caprice of the majority?" He should be the last man in the state to take such a position as that, because the "caprice of the majority" elected him Governor, and he should be willing to trust the people.

The "Tillmanite" who wrote to the Augusta Herald that Bleese will be re-elected governor, later on sent to the United States Senate, and that "we are going to draw the lines again and fill every office from corner to United States senator with true blue Tillmanites," will not be such an enthusiastic Bleese man probably when he hears that the governor accuses Senator Tillman of telling falsehoods.

The Newberry Observer says: "If Governor Bleese wants to get even with the editors, let him advocate a law to prohibit the railroads from issuing free passes to them. That will be a solar plexus, if he can just get the bill through." At the same time he would bring joy to the hearts of two of his most bitter editor opponents in the State, who use to ride on free passes, but who have reformed.

Strikes and lockouts are out of place in this twentieth century. It ought to be possible for the statesman and sociologist of the present time to evolve some pacific and effective method of dealing with labor troubles. As it is, not only do workmen suffer privation and employers loss of business in every dispute but the public too often gets ground between the upper and nether millstones of capital and labor.

The good book says that, "the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth," which is an emphatic if not euphemistic way of saying that there are lots of people who always believe that things are better somewhere else. Such people are ever ready to glorify some other town at the expense of their own. Their home town they love to run down; they find fault if progress is made and they do the same when it is not made.

The mother of the fiend that was lynched at Honea Path Tuesday night refused to receive his body because of the horrible crime he had committed, and the respectable colored people of the community refused to have it buried in their cemetery for the same reason. If all fiends of the Jackson stripe were treated as he was by the better class of colored people, it would make such crimes as Jackson was put to death for more rare.

An ordinance has been introduced in the city council of Atlanta making it an offense to apply any form of corporal punishment in the schools of that city. We have long since believed that corporal punishment does very little good as a corrective either in the home or the school, and for that reason we have practically raised three boys without the use of the rod, notwithstanding King Solomon's admonition as to its potency.

Trying the Same Game.

The Wall Street crowd will try to work the same game on the Democrats in the next Presidential election that they did when they pretended to desire Mr. Parker's election over Mr. Roosevelt. They spoke well of Mr. Parker and abused Roosevelt, until after the two nominations were made and then they come out and throw their influence for Roosevelt, furnishing all the money he needed to finance the campaign. That they will try to work the same game next year is now beginning to crop out. But it will not succeed.

Recently a dispatch was sent out from Washington in which it was asked "will Wall Street withdraw its powerful financial, industrial and commercial influence from the Taft re-election boom?" The dispatch then goes on to say "that is a question that has been agitating the Taft political boomers for months past. There is fear that the financiers will forsake the president, owing to the activity of the administration in its anti-trust campaign." It is further stated that no feelers have been put out by the Taft forces in this respect yet.

Then it is further alleged in the dispatch that retaliation on the present administration by Wall Street is looked for by a number of politicians in the Democratic party as well as in the Republican party. Resentment against the anti-trust zeal of Attorney General Wickersham has been at a high pitch for a long time. Wickersham, they say, has been persistent in his warfare against what President Taft has termed "bad trusts." Other trusts that were not so designated were brought to the attention of the department of justice and either suffered through prosecution, or were dissolved or completely put out of business.

This is said to have engendered a spirit of unrest and Wall Street prepared to bluff out the president and his attorney general. Wall Street did not succeed and the American Tobacco and Standard Oil company were proceeded against. This brought the whole matter to a climax. The administration hit two powerful concerns as well as a group of very powerful financiers. It is now a question of supporting a Democratic presidential nominee or getting a private word from the administration that trust busting and corporation disestablishment will be discontinued as an official pastime.

This bait for the Democrats is now brought out and dangled before their eyes, as will be seen by what follows. It is reported, says the dispatch, that the interests represented in Wall Street, believe they have no hope in the Republican party, and that if they should unload Taft it would nominate only some other Republican even less satisfactory to business. Therefore the Democrats would appear to be the only party which affords a reasonable chance of taking the more moderate view of the relation of the government to big corporations. The next paragraph shows how they expect to get the Democrats to take the bait.

It is claimed that according to the gossip in political centers, the probability is that Wall Street will drop Taft. According to one of the members of a certain political following Wall Street is now seriously contemplating what its move will be in this direction. The president's addresses on his western trip will be followed closely as well as the activities of Attorney General Wickersham this fall. This condition of affairs has started tongues wagging, and the opinion seems to be that Harmon will get Wall Street to support Taft is repudiated.

The Democrats, as we said above, were fooled once by Wall Street, but they will not allow themselves to be fooled again. Wall Street wants Harmon nominated by the Democrats, but it has no idea of supporting him if he is nominated. Wall Street is well satisfied with Taft and his way of trust busting. Wall Street knows that the trusts never had a better friend or more pliant tool in the white house than Taft, and the talk about his being opposed by Wall Street is a subterfuge to fool the Democrats and the people, but the scheme will not work this time.

Orangeburg and That Invitation.

The report that Orangeburg had invited the Confederate Veterans of the State to hold their next reunion here was a mistake, as we intimated it was. The Orangeburg Confederate Camp of Veterans attended the late reunion at Columbia in a body, but they did not extend an invitation on the part of their camp nor of the city for the veterans to hold their reunion in this city next year. It is all true that a man from this city who is not a veteran called out one day in the meeting that the veterans must meet next year in Orangeburg, but he represented no one but himself, and little or no attention was paid to what he said by the Orangeburg veterans who were present. No place in the South holds the Confederate Veterans in higher esteem than Orangeburg, and no place would feel more highly honored in entertaining them than Orangeburg, the only trouble being our lack of resources to entertain them as we think they should be entertained. However, the veterans may rest assured that Orangeburg will never shut her doors in their face, and if they are not invited to meet at some place where they could get better entertainment than we may be able to give them, they will be doubly welcome to meet at Orangeburg next year.

Wrong Way to Boost.

The booster train that was run by some of the business men of Richmond through North Carolina seems to have done the city it went out to boost more harm than good. It has been roundly roasted by many of the good people of the Old North State, and justly so. It seems that in the baggage coach ahead representatives of Richmond whiskey houses had sample bottles of "fire water" which they threw out at every town in which the train stopped, with the result that the whole thing became disgusting to a very large number of people. Speaking of the stop of the train in Monroe the Enquirer says: "The giving away of liquor to a rabble who scrambled for it like pigs over a slop through was not in keeping with the advance advertising of the affair, and while the giving away of liquor and distributing liquor literature was not all there was to it, here was so much of it that it made the whole thing a pretty tolerable sorry affair."

Valuable Plantation for Sale. I am offering to sell as a whole until October the fifteenth, 1911, one of the best cotton plantations in Calhoun County. If not sold as a whole by then I shall cut into small tracts and sell.

This plantation is located within one mile of Lone Star, S. C. and the A. C. L. R. R. runs through place, making it an easy matter to arrange a plantation siding at almost any point. There are 1264 acres in the tract, 430 of which are in swamp and pasture land, 600 acres now in cultivation, and about two hundred that can be cultivated very easily.

The land is a dark soil, practically level and free of stumps; there are twenty good settlements on the plantation, and the average rent for the past twelve years has been 25,000 pounds of lint cotton per annum. I am asking $30,000 for the place, and left as it is entirely to tenants it yields a magnificent return on that amount, but this could be very much increased by push and personal attention, as the character of this land is the very best and responds quickly to work and fertilizer.
