

LIST OF AWARDS

WHO WON RIBBONS AT THE COUNTY FAIR.

List of Winners in Every Department Except Swine—Art Winners Already Published.

In its last issue The Times and Democrat carried the first list of ribbon winners published by any paper in the city, which was those of the Art Department. Today it publishes the nearest complete list of ribbon winners yet made public, and this includes the winners of every department except that of swine, which could not be secured. The art winners, which has been published is not republished.

In this huge list of names it is impossible that we have not made some mistakes. Names are perhaps wrong in a few places; and other smaller mistakes may have occurred, but when you bear in mind that all these names were taken down in a hurry, and that in reading the writing of others' mistakes are liable, these mistakes will be overlooked. If in any particular our attention is called to an error we shall be pleased to correct it.

Our thanks go to the various superintendents, and Fair officials, who aided us very materially in getting this list prepared for today's paper. We feel sure that the awards will be read with interest by the public. When two names are given, the second name won the second prize.

The awards of the various departments are:

FAIR ABOUT OVER

HAS EXCEEDED THE EXPECTATIONS OF EVERYONE.

Sixteen Thousand People Go in the Gates During the First Three Days, Yesterday Negro Day.

It can now be said that the Orangeburg County Fair is about over. Yesterday afternoon signs of this were apparent from the fact that exhibitors were taking their exhibits home. The judges had made their decisions, the exhibits had remained over three days and were being taken back. The management of the Fair have every reason to be congratulated over the successful termination of the venture, which when it was first started last summer was regarded as very doubtful. But the managers went ahead, and did everything in their power to give Orangeburg the best county fair in the State, and they succeeded, despite the fact that they had only a few months in which to get the buildings, the grounds, and every detail arranged.

How well the work had been done, and how thorough had been the preparation was made plain to everyone who visited the Fair on any of the last four days. Praise has been universal, and many were heard to say that next year they would have exhibits in also, but that they were afraid this time it would not be worth while. The various schedule events went on with precision and the visitors were kept entertained. Financially, the Fair has undoubtedly done excellent for the first year, and it will surprise many if it has not at least made its expenses and run even for the first time. With this start, and the impetus that it will surely give, there is no reason why the Fair should not only keep going and expanding, but at the same time be run at a profit to the stockholders.

As an advertisement for Orangeburg, it is the best she has had in years. And each year that it runs its advertising power will increase, and with the increasing prestige of Orangeburg's name must come more development and improvements. The Fair therefore will help the City to a great extent and will help each individual in it.

One Fair is just about over, but the plans for the next will soon be started, and next year an even greater Fair will draw crowds to Orangeburg. There can be no possible reason why this Fair cannot in time be made to take its place as a comrade to the State Fair and the Charleston Gala Week.

The attendance at the Fair on the first two days was about five thousand each day, while on Thursday it went over six thousand—Thursday being the largest day. Yesterday, being the day for the colored people, was not so largely attended, but several thousand at least must have been present. Throughout all the days order was very good, and only on one occasion did any serious break occur in the good order of the Fair. Then a drunken man began shooting a pistol on the grounds, and according to a report wounded a man slightly, and shot several pigs. Otherwise the conduct of the crowd was good. The judges have completed their awards, and a list of them is published in another column. Also a very nearly complete list of the Confederate Veterans who attended the Fair Thursday.

PHASE OF J. J. JONES' CASE.

Stated Appeal Pending and Probably Argued Next Month.

It was stated on Thursday that the appeal of John J. Jones, the Branchville attorney who was convicted at Orangeburg last January of the murder of Abe Pearlstone at Branchville and sentenced to ten years' and one month imprisonment, will be argued before the Supreme Court in December. Jones is in the Penitentiary, and has been there for some time awaiting the outcome of his case, which will be argued in December.

Those familiar with the case will recall that Jones and Pearlstone became involved in a fist fight at Branchville in the postoffice and that after the fight had ended, Jones turned as he was about to reach the door and shot Pearlstone down. The case was tried before Judge Memminger, at Orangeburg, and resulted in Jones being found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to ten years and one month's imprisonment in the Penitentiary. Following the conviction, Jones remained in the jail at Orangeburg for two weeks and was then removed to the Penitentiary, where he now is. He is not in stripes and much comment has been caused by this fact, for it was generally thought that the appeal to the Supreme Court had been abandoned.

It is now stated, however, that an appeal to the highest judicial tribunal is pending; that the record in the case is not complete, owing to some conflict which arose between attorneys for the defence and prosecution as to certain matters, which have been submitted to Judge Memminger for settlement and his decision has not yet been made known. It is stated as soon as he renders a decision and the case is returned it will be filed with the Supreme Court.

Davidson Defeats Clemson.

In a very fair game of football at the Orangeburg County Fair gridiron Davidson College defeated Clemson College before a record-breaking crowd by a score of 21 to 5. The game was a snappy one.

THE OLD CONFEDS.

Attend the Fair Thursday and Greet Friends.

One of the most appropriate recognitions made by the Fair management was their setting apart of one day—Thursday—as Confederate Veterans' Day, during which all the old veterans were admitted free of charge. About one hundred and twenty-five attended, and although some expressed surprise that there were not more, it must be remembered that the war began just about fifty years ago, and boys who were only thirteen years old then are now 63. Thinner and thinner gets the gray line, but upon most occasions the citizens of the present day are prepared to recognize in them men of the first rank, who were not found wanting when the test came.

Among the veterans who registered some had entered the Confederate army in Alabama and other States; some entered with their fathers as cooks—being too young to fight—but were mustered in during the last months of the struggle. Old acquaintances were renewed and all of the veterans enjoyed the day.

Arrangements had been made at The Times and Democrat's booth for all old soldiers to register, also with what company and regiment they served during the war, but owing to the fact that they were all made to register at the gate, there was some confusion and only about forty gave in their names. The names and the companies with which they served are:

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

PICKED UP ALL OVER TOWN BY OUR REPORTERS.

What Is Happening Here and There.

Local Items of Personal Interest to Our Readers.

Additional local news, page two. Dr. Albert E. Butler, of Charleston, came up to take in the Fair.

Miss Norma Davis of North is visiting Miss Isabelle Wannamaker on Amelia street.

Misses May and Evelyn Diggs, of North Carolina, are visiting Misses May and Bessie Thompson.

The Orangeburg County Fair has come to stay. So the knockers may as well put up their hammers.

Among the visitors to the County Fair on Thursday from a distance was V. S. Owens, Esq., of Barnwell.

Postmaster and Mrs. S. E. Owen, of St. Matthews, were at the Fair on Thursday. They were both delighted with it.

Mrs. Rudolph Seigling and two little boys, of Charleston, are spending the week at the home of Mrs. Frank DeMars.

The opening of the County Fair reminds us of the days of the long ago, when we first came to Orangeburg. Then they had a successful Fair going on, but allowed it to die.

Messrs. Sollenger and Boney, of The News and Courier, and Page, of The State, were on the Fair grounds Thursday. They were all pleased, and pronounced the Fair a grand success.

We were glad to see Editor R. B. Cole, of that staunch old newspaper, The Barnwell Sentinel, on the Fair grounds on Thursday. Brother Cole was a welcome visitor. He must come again.

Misses Elise, Madge and Marjory and Gertrude Simmons of Charleston, and Miss Annie Simmons of Rowesville, are the guests at the home of Mrs. W. R. Bryant on Whitman street.

A negro attempted to enter a dwelling on the plantation of Mr. R. J. Salley Wednesday night. He was chased for some distance, but finally succeeded in eluding his pursuers by entering a swamp.

We were glad to see many of our Calhoun County friends at the County Fair. We hope they will soon have their Fair going, when we will reciprocate by sending up a delegation to the opening.

Brother J. B. Prickett, of the Calhoun Advance, was a visitor to the Fair on Thursday. He was well pleased with the show, and said it surpassed his expectation. Come again Brother Prickett.

Dr. G. C. Bollin, of Neeses, S. C., exhibited at the County Fair a pointer bitch and her ten puppies, which are three weeks old. He offers them all for sale at the following prices: Mother, $100; male pups, $15; female pups, $8.

On Thursday night the angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Hungerpiller of St. Matthews and took therefrom their little infant daughter, age, six weeks. The little one fell prey to whooping cough and could not survive the attack.

The police have had but very little to do during the past several days. This is remarkable on account of the fact that a large crowd of visitors have been here each day. There has been some drunkenness but no serious offenses have been experienced.

The Grand Voting Contest of The Times and Democrat is on. Contestants are being enrolled every day, but yet there are some townships not as fully represented as we would like. Why not enter yourself? Write us and we will send you receipt books, etc.

The Calhoun Advance says on Friday night, Lazelle, the little two-year-old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Herlong, died at its home here after an illness of several weeks. The little girl had been a patient sufferer for some time, and its relatives and friends were not wholly surprised at its death.

Col. and Mrs. J. A. Banks, of St. Matthews were visitors to the Fair on Thursday. They both expressed themselves as being very much pleased with it, and thought it a great success. Col. Banks is the president of the association that holds the State Fair, and he knows all about such things.

The Branchville Journal says, "The Southern Railway is unloading this week crushed rock and other material for the work of paving the floor and walks beneath their train sheds and depot here. It is understood that ballast walks will be laid, in accordance with the original plans for the new depot here."

The ladies of the Branchville Baptist church are preparing to hold the annual bazaar Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1, of Thanksgiving week. The bazaar will be held in the town hall and it is expected that it will be one of the most brilliant events in years. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church is endeavoring to secure new carpets for the church.

At a called meeting held Monday night at the residence of Mrs. J. E. Byrd the Civic League of Branchville which has done such good work for the town, was reorganized and the following officers elected: Mrs. J. B. Williams, president; Steedman Weathersbee, first vice-president; Mrs. B. X. Minus, second vice-president; Miss Nan Nicholson, secretary; Mrs. Robert Bruce, treasurer.
