Five-Passenger

ASK THE man whose judgment in automobile construction you respect most, to give you the ideal specifications and equipment for a four-cylinder, five-passenger car.

Tell him that it must be of the highest quality, and electrically started and lighted.

Check the specifications he gives you by those of the Studebaker FOUR and you will be astonished at the completeness with which all the important essentials are included in the following list:

Full floating rear axle—Timken bearings throughout—alloy steel exclusively—long stroke, small bore motor—cylinders cast en bloc—enclosed valves—exhaust and intake manifolds integral—108 in. wheel base—full-elliptic rear springs—32x3 1/2 in. tires—left hand steering and centre control—detachable demountable rims, with extra rim—gasoline supply beneath cowl—clear vision and rain vision, ventilating windshield—Studebaker Jiffy curtains—illuminated speedometer, oil feed and electric current indicator—clean running board—Gray & Davis best parabolic lamps—electric horn and full supply of tools.

He will hesitate to put a price upon such a car unless he knows that his ideal is actually being built and sold by us for $1050

Only the magnitude of Studebaker operations makes the price possible.

IRLS DROWN NEAR LEXINGTON

orse Jumps in Mill Pond With Sisters in Buggy—Brother's Narrow Escape.

Lexington, April 4.—Misses Jessie and Flossie Crout, aged 20 and 16 years, respectively, lost their lives in Taylor's mill pond, about 15 miles south of Lexington at 2 o'clock this afternoon when the mule they were driving made a wild dash into the pond while they were crossing the mill dam. Elzie Crout, a brother of the young ladies, aged about 12 or 13 years, who was in the buggy at the time of the accident, barely escaped with his life, he having managed to get to the bank. His escape is said to have been almost miraculous.

The accident happened almost without sight of the home of the young women, as they were returning from Swansea, where they went yesterday to visit relatives. There were no witnesses to the accident. The home of Mr. Azarias Taylor is almost within stone's throw of the pond where the young women were drowned. Mrs. Taylor and her little daughter, the only members of the family at home at the time, were attracted by the girls' screams. They were unable to get assistance and the lad, too young to aid his sisters, struggled in the water in an effort to save his own life. The mule swam to the opposite shore after he had managed to get loose from the buggy.

It was possibly half an hour before the men nearby reached the scene and it was an hour before the bodies of the young women were recovered. Webster Smith, in charge of the search, found both bodies. The older girl, Miss Flossie Crout, was still in the buggy in a sitting posture. Miss Flossie Crout was rescued from beneath the buggy. The water where the young women lost their lives was about eight feet deep. Elzie, the little boy, says that he saw his sisters rise two or three times, but he was unable to give them aid.

The accident has shocked the entire community as nothing has shocked the people in recent years. The young women were popular in the community and their sudden and untimely end is a great shock to their family and friends. They were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Crout, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed families of the Pond Branch section. Besides their parents the young ladies are survived by several brothers and sisters. The funeral arrangements have not been announced.

TIME FOR TRIAL APPROACHING.

Clement and Miss Pendleton Soon to Face Jury—Court Convenes April 20.

News and Courier.

Spartanburg, April 3.—Among the 36 men named by the Spartanburg county jury commissioners last evening as the venire to serve in the court of general sessions during the week beginning April 20 may be the arbiters of the fate of Clyde C. Clement and Miss Fleda Pendleton, the young student and telegrapher, respectively, charged with the murder of their alleged infant daughter. The couple will, it is expected, be placed on trial that week. Doubt is expressed as to the likelihood of a jury's being chosen to try the case from a venire limited to 36 men. The case has been so widely discussed and will be fought so stubbornly that numerous challenges for cause, as well as peremptory challenges of talesmen, are expected.

It is regarded as not unlikely that several venires will be exhausted before 12 men acceptable to all sides in the triangular legal battle are found. If it becomes necessary to draw additional venires they must be composed, under South Carolina legal procedure, of persons living not farther than seven miles from the court house. The venire drawn yesterday is composed mostly of farmers, whose homes are in all sections of the county. They are said to be for the most part middle-aged married men.

There is said to have been a reaction recently in public sentiment regarding Miss Pendleton, for whom warm sympathy was expressed when she declared to Solicitor Albert E. Hill that Clement, on the night of January 30, threw their baby into Lawson's Fork against her tearful protest, and that she only yielded to him when he threatened to abandon her to her shame if she frustrated him in his purpose to make way with the two-months-old child. Predictions that the girl will be acquitted are not so confidently made now as they were a few weeks ago, it seems.

To Try Alleged Mob Leaders. Several other unusual cases are awaiting trial at the approaching term of court. Notable among them is the case of three men accused of an attempted lynching. They are charged with being members of the mob who on the night of August 18, last, stormed the county jail in an effort to seize and hang Will Fair, accused of attacking a white woman. The mob, numbering about 500 men, mostly cotton mill workers and farmers, blew down the jail with dynamite, but were repulsed by Sheriff W. J. White and a few deputies. Three men were shot in the riot. The grand jury subsequently indicted four alleged members of the mob, but one of the four has never been arrested. It is said that the grand jury would have handed down additional indictments in the case, but for the fact that the identity of those accused of being the mob's ringleaders could never be positively established. Fair was later found not guilty.

KNOWS MURDERER OF MARY PHAGAN

Detective Burns, However, Won't Give Name—It is Probably Not Frank.

Chicago, April 3.—William J. Burns, the detective, declared late today that he knew who murdered Mary Phagan, the Atlanta, (Ga.) girl, for whose death Leo M. Frank is under sentence of death. Whether the murderer was Frank or some one else, in his opinion, Burns would not say, but he intimated that from his investigations and comparing their results with the conclusions of the coroner's jury he did not think Frank the sort of a man capable of making the attack on the girl alleged to have preceded her murder.

Burns, on his arrival today from Kansas City, related the story of his investigation. He said his attention first had been called to it by a young man from Atlanta who was a passenger on a steamer on which Burns was returning from Europe. The young man expressed his regret that Burns had not become interested in the case before the arrest and conviction of Frank. Through him Burns read in newspapers of the trial and concluded, from the accounts he saw, that Frank was guilty. Later, while he was in Key West, three citizens of Atlanta, including two personal friends of Frank, saw the detective and asked him to undertake an investigation of the case.

First Refused.

At first, Burns said, he refused on the ground that if Frank was guilty his investigation and final conclusion to that effect: could only hurt the defendant, while if the investigation tended to throw doubt on the verdict of guilty it might serve to thwart justice. Frank's friends declared that they believed he had not been given a fair trial, that he was innocent of the crime, but that, if he was guilty, they wanted indisputable evidence of his guilt.

Burns then took the case. His investigations soon showed him, he said, first, that public clamor, after a "crime wave," had resulted in the police making extraordinary efforts to adduce "evidence tending to convict Frank," and second, that a report making out Frank a man of abnormal characteristics was commonly circulated through the city, putting public opinion strongly against him.

His inquiries then convinced Burns that Frank was a perfectly normal man. On the other hand, the testimony of physicians was to the effect that the one who attacked Mary Phagan was abnormal. Then Burns interviewed many of the witnesses who testified in the case. At the conclusion of this phase of his investigation, he said, he was convinced that he knew the murderer.

Knows the Man.

"There was no mystery about the murder of Mary Phagan," said Burns. "The tracks of the murderer were plain and there is no doubt as to his identity."

"The story will be clear in a few days. I have made a complete report to Frank's attorneys in Atlanta, and in a few days it will be given out."

"I can not anticipate my report, and therefore I can not say more definitely than I have what the report will contain. The murderer of Mary Phagan is known to me and he can't get away."

"I will say that in my opinion Frank will not hang on April 17 for the murder of Mary Phagan. I believe the supreme court can not deny the evidence we have gathered."

Hearing of an extraordinary motion for a new trial in Frank's case is set for April 16, the day preceding that on which Frank is sentenced to die.

Frank was superintendent of a pencil factory in Atlanta. On April 27, 1913, Mary Phagan, employed in the factory, was found dead in the basement of the plant. Frank was accused of the crime, arrested and convicted mainly on the testimony of a negro employe of the factory.

BURNS SAYS HE DIDN'T SAY FRANK WAS INNOCENT

Atlanta, April 4.—The report of William J. Burns, the detective, who has been investigating the murder here last April of Mary Phagan, a factory employe, for which crime Leo M. Frank, of the factory where the girl worked, is sentenced to be hanged April 17, will not be made public before Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. Friends of Frank who employed Burns hope, through the detective's efforts, to save the life of the condemned man.

Announcement that he would not disclose the result of his investigation, was made here tonight by Burns, who reached this city late today from Chicago. The detective said he had not submitted his report to Frank's lawyers and denied that he had stated that Frank was not guilty.

"I will say positively," he added, "that I believe Frank is entitled to a new trial." Burns would not say upon what he based this conviction, and refused positively to indicate, even in a general way, the nature of his discoveries as developed by his investigation. He reiterated his assertion that "there was no mystery as to the identity of Mary Phagan's murderer," who, according to Burns, "left a plain trail."

"THE GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY ON EARTH," SAYS A GRATEFUL WOMAN.

I want to tell you how much good your Swamp-Root did me. About four years ago, I suffered from what the doctors called fistula and for two years of that time, I endured what no tongue can tell. I also had inflammation of the bladder and I tried doctors medicines without receiving any help. Someone told me about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

After giving it a thorough trial, I received relief, so kept on using it and today I am a strong and well woman. If I ever feel badly or out of sorts, I take Swamp-Root and it always straightens me out. I honestly believe that this medicine would cure all troubles you recommend it for and it is a pleasure for me to send my testimony and photograph to you. I think Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is one of the greatest medicines on earth.

Respectfully yours,
Mrs. John Baily,
