They Love Newberry.

The statement in The Herald and News Tuesday that Mr. Luther M. Long had not been to Columbia since the war, led to the assertion by one who was discussing the matter, that there are people in Newberry county over 40 years old who have never seen the city of Newberry. This seems surprising and yet the reporter knew a lady who made her first visit to the county seat when she was 40 years of age and she had lived all of her life in the county. The further assertion is made that there are stacks of grown people in the county who have never been outside the county. It would be interesting to hear from some of these people through The Herald and News.

Church of the Redeemer.

(Rev. Edward Fulendwer, Pastor.) Nothing preventing, the following will be the program of divine services at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer next Sunday:

10:15 a. m., the Sunday school meets. Last Sunday nearly all classes were well attended and several mentioned as banner classes. Let each scholar who reads this work to make his class a banner class next Sunday.

11:15 a. m., the regular morning service Being Reformation Sunday, the pastor will preach a special sermon on the subject, "The Practical Value of the Bible to the Modern Man." Four hundred years ago when Luther found a Latin copy of the Bible in the library of the University of Erfurt he immediately recognized the importance of it being in the hands of the people. This great purpose of his life was accomplished when a prisoner in the Wartburg castle he translated the Bible into the German language. For this act alone the world owes a debt of gratitude to Luther that can never be fully paid.

The Bible is not simply a book of devotions, as so many think, but the most practical book in the world today for the modern man.

7:30 p. m., service of song and prayer. The pastor will preach a short practical sermon on the "Richest Riches." A concrete example from the scriptures will be used. Come to this service and get an inspiration that will encourage and help you in your work during the week.

Music at all the services. A hearty welcome to all who worship with us.

"The Millionaire Baby."

Did the plotting Dr. Pool finally accomplish his bold determination? Did Valerie Carew, former queen of burlesque, conquered by mother love, seize an advantageous opportunity and spirit away her loved one? Did Marion Oumpaugh have knowledge of Gwendolyn's disappearance? Did Justin Carew, finally recognizing his wife and desiring a reconciliation, see the light and kidnap his own child?

The detective, finding a piece of torn dress belonging to Valerie, suspects her. He sees Justin about to leave the Oumpaugh mansion and suspects him. His trail leads to Dr. Pool's home and that scheming physician denies all knowledge of the disappearance of the child. Philo Oumpaugh, the millionaire, offers $50,000 reward for the recovery of the child.

(Who Stole "The Millionaire Baby?") A woman misguided believed that gold could bring sunshine and happiness into a childless home; could wield a successful power to deceive; could buy the bright presence and the happy voices of children; could win the man into love of home and proud fatherhood.

Instead of all these things, the gold brought misery and woe unutterable; it placed the woman in the power of an unscrupulous villain; it snatched a beloved babe from its mother's breast; and reconciliation and true happiness only came after years of dread and misunderstanding.

This great, gripping six-reel drama will be the Thursday, October 28, feature offering at the opera house. Matinee 4 o'clock in the afternoon; evening show starts 7:30.

During November it is hoped that as many more agents will be secured, thus guaranteeing that in practically every important town and city in South Carolina the fight against tuberculosis will be waged. Everywhere people are awakening to the fact that tuberculosis is a preventable disease, and can hence be stamped out by wise and energetic preventative measures. It is a useless sacrifice to allow upwards of 2,000 people to die every year when this great drain upon the State's resources and citizenship could be almost entirely stopped.

Strong Financial Institution.

The Southern Banker, published in Atlanta, Ga., has the following to say of the Commercial bank of Newberry in the October issue:

One of the strong financial institutions of South Carolina is the Commercial bank of Newberry. The statement issued by the bank in response to the comptroller's call of September 2 showed capital stock of $50,000; surplus and profits, $73,942; deposits, $376,290; loans, $395,338; cash on hand and in banks, $89,257, and total resources amounting to $502,391. The bank is a designated depository for the State, county and city, and is officered by the following men: Jno. M. Kinard, president; O. B. Mayer, vice president; J. Y. McFall, cashier; R. L. Tarrant and R. H. Wright, assistant cashiers.

D. A. DICKERT.

During Mr. Lincoln's war Col. Dickert did his full duty, fighting gallantly in defense of our homes and firesides. After the close of the war, when the negroes and carpet baggers held high carnival in our State he acted a very prominent part and helped save society from threatened ruin.

He has always taken an active interest in the Confederate soldier and the cause for which he fought. He has consistently opposed and condemned the falsifications of history contained in school histories put into the hands of Southern children. Perhaps no man in the State has been a better friend to needy veterans and widows, nor served them more efficiently and unselfishly. Only a few weeks ago he came to the help of a lady in Kentucky whose husband fought in a South Carolina regiment and helped secure a pension. Without his timely assistance she would not have gotten a pension at all. (While the colonel has lost much of his aforesaid physical vigor and activity, it is fitting that we should acknowledge his faithful service both in peace and war. O. M. B.

ARMIES' EXCITING RACE FOR CONSTANTINOPLE

Bulgarians Are Within Few Miles of Forming Junction With Austro-German Forces.

London, Oct. 26.—The race for the road to Constantinople has reached an exciting stage. The Bulgarians are within a few miles of forming a junction with their Austro-German allies, while the French in small force, have joined the Serbians.

The French are not yet in sufficient numbers to assume an actual offensive in Macedonia, but the rapidity of the Bulgarian advance in that region already has diminished. Along the old Bulgarian frontier, from a point north-east of Vranja to the Roumanian border, the Serbians are yielding little ground.

Actual junction between the Bulgarians and their allies will soon show whether the Serbians are able to hold their mountain positions until the allies bring up strong forces.

Italy is still hammering away at the Austrian front which is shaken but unbroken. It is expected in London that the Italian offensive will prevent the Austrians from reinforcing their Balkan army.

TO PROTECT COTTON

A New Plan to Reduce the Risk of Fire.

The Cotton Protecting company has been incorporated for handling an invention incorporated for handling an invention that, its promoters say, will revolutionize the present storage and shipment methods for cotton, and will mean the saving of millions of dollars annually to this country. This is a solution to be used in dipping cotton to eliminate the spark and flash fire hazard and prevent country damage. The company has experimented with this solution for three years, going through a series of most exacting and practical tests.

In ascertaining the immunizing of cotton to spark and flash hazard by dipping, the Underwriters' Laboratory of Chicago became interested. W. C. Robinson, chief engineer, and foremost authority on fire hazard in this country, made a personal investigation, taking an eight-day trip to Oklahoma for that purpose. In July, 1914, Mr. Robinson subjected numbers of treated bales of cotton to rigid tests. Hundreds of burning cinders, lighted matches, cigars and cigarettes were thrown promiscuously on the dipped bales of cotton. These cinders were hated red hot by a blowpipe and varied in size from one-eighth to seven-eighths inch in diameter. The effect of this contact was simply to char the cotton, there being no evidence of either fire or flash. Treated cotton was also shipped safely on a flat car from Oklahoma City to Chicago, over 1,000 miles, without the slightest damage from sparks, notwithstanding the fact that this car was next to the engine the entire trip.

Mr. Robinson then made a test to establish whether the fiber from the dipped bales of cotton had been injured. He ran the dipped cotton through every process of manufacture in a regulation cotton mill, and the tensile strength proved to be unimpaired. The fibre took the most delicate dyes perfectly, and was found to bleach even whiter than undipped cotton.

The Southeastern Underwriters' association has made a reduction of $1 per $100 on all dipped cotton subject to spark and flash hazard, with an additional reduction of 5 per cent on the remaining premium. As far as country damage is concerned, bales dipped with this solution have been left for as long as five years on the ground in the open without one cent of depreciation.
