MARLBORO MILLS TO PROTECT MEN

Textile Concern at McColl Cares for Families of Guardsmen Called to Front.

The Marlboro cotton mills at McColl has given notice to its employees that leave of absence will be granted to all who feel called upon to enlist in the National Guard. Assurance is given that jobs will be restored at the end of service. The company also agrees to see that no dependents shall suffer in consequence of heads of families or others who provide maintenance being called to the front. The notice which is posted in the mill reads:

"This corporation will give leave of absence to any of its employees who feel called upon to enlist in the National Guard to volunteer for service on the Mexican border for the protection of American lives and property. "Appreciating the patriotism and loyalty that would compel any of our employees to take this step we hereby guarantee that any of our employees, in whatever position he holds today and at the end of this service, will be reinstated on the same basis or better. We therefore agree to see that any of their dependents are not made to suffer by their volunteering."

MR. TRAXLER ASKED TO QUIT SAYS REPORTS

He Was Called Upon to Quit Convention Says Spartanburg Paper.

Greenville Piedmont. Under the caption, "Traxler asked to quit St. Louis Convention," the Spartanburg Herald Tuesday morning printed the following with reference to Mr. Traxler's position at the convention: "An interesting little sidelight on the resignation of Postmaster Traxler of Greenville who yesterday entered the race for congress, is contained in a story told here last night. "While sitting in the Democratic convention at St. Louis last week, as a delegate from South Carolina, he received a telegram from the post-office department at Washington directing that he resign from the convention because of his official position, as appointee of President Wilson. Mr. Traxler was informed, according to the story, that President Wilson did not want to be renominated as candidate for the presidency by postmasters. "Mr. Traxler was secretary of the delegation and had taken a great interest in arranging the details of the trip to St. Louis. What part he took in the deliberations of the convention after receiving the telegram from Washington is not stated. Whether his brush with the department was in any way responsible for his resignation is not known. Mr. Traxler's friends say he has been considering the matter for some time. "Had Little to Say. Mr. Traxler was interviewed by a Piedmont reporter this morning at his real estate office. When asked for a statement concerning the report he replied that he was busy arranging for his campaign and that for the present he would have little to give out for publication. "Such questions as need be I will answer at the proper time," he said. "He had heard the report in circulation that he was asked to resign as postmaster. This he denied emphatically, declaring that he resigned voluntarily. "Mr. Traxler went on to say that after he was elected a delegate to the Democratic national convention he was informed by a friend, a federal office holder, that President Wilson had stated that he did not want to be nominated by his appointees, but wanted the nomination of the people. As the nominations were by acclamation and there being no necessity for voting, Mr. Traxler declared he took no part in those deliberations. In compliance with the president's wishes, and through patriotism, he said he resigned from the convention. The postoffice department he averred had absolutely nothing to do with this. He is still secretary and treasurer of the South Carolina delegation. "Mr. Traxler tendered his resignation as postmaster to take effect at the will of the postoffice department. He had not heard Tuesday morning from the department, but the presumption is that he will hold on for some time yet. However, it is understood that he asked to be relieved of the position as soon as possible.

Editorial Comment. Editorially, the Spartanburg Herald had the following to say of Mr. Traxler's candidacy for congress; and of his sudden resignation: "When it comes to entering a political campaign suddenly and sensationally, you will have to give Mr. David Traxler of Greenville special mention. Mr. Traxler is a candidate for congress this morning, while at this time yesterday morning he was the postmaster of Greenville, S. C., drawing a salary of over $3,000 a year. Coming to Spartanburg yesterday morning, Mr. Traxler stepped into a long-distance booth in this city, called up Washington, D. C., the seat of the United States postoffice department, and told them to take his name off the payroll, at their pleasure, that he resigned with the intention of becoming a candidate for congress in this district. His resignation in he turned to a friend and announced, "I am a candidate for congress."

"He enters the race against Representative S. J. Nicholls of this city and A. H. Miller of Greer, both of whom announced their candidacies months ago." Mr. Traxler was at the postoffice today giving it his personal attention.

The Cotton Crop of 1915.

Washington, June 20.—A bulletin on cotton production in the United States, just issued by Director Sam L. Rogers of the bureau of the census, department of commerce, and prepared under the supervision of Mr. William M. Steuart, chief statistician in charge of the inquiry, shows the American cotton crop of 1915—11,191,820 equivalent 500 pound bales—to have been the smallest since 1909. The tables contained in his publication will be reprinted in the annual cotton bulletin, to be published about October 1, which will also include more detailed figures as to production, together with data in regard to consumption, imports, and stocks of cotton.

The crop of 1915 fell below that of the preceding year by nearly 5,000,000 bales, or more than 30 per cent. The production in every State showed a decrease, the greatest proportionally being in Oklahoma, where the crop of 1915 was only a trifle more than half as large as that of 1914.

The increase in the production of linters during recent years is noteworthy. Starting at 114,544 bales in 1899, the output of this product increased to 880,870 bales in 1915. The 1915 linter product even exceeded that of the preceding year by nearly 24,000 bales, although the cotton crop of 1915 was very much smaller than that of 1914. This increase in linter production is due to some extent to closer delinting of the seed for the better separation of the meat from the hulls, but more especially to the high prices obtained for the fiber, which is used extensively in the manufacture of gun cotton and smokeless powder. Many mills now obtain considerably more than 100 pounds of linters per ton of seed treated, whereas in earlier years 50 pounds per ton was a high yield.

Sea-island cotton, of which 91,844 running bales were ginned in 1915, represented in that year less than 1 per cent of the total cotton produced. All this cotton was grown in Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina, the first named State producing 57,572 bales more than three-fifths of the total.

Although cotton is grown in 18 States, the combined product of four—Texas, Georgia, South Carolina, and Alabama—represented nearly two-thirds of the total crop of 1915. Texas alone produced 3,227,480 bales, or more than one-fourth of the total crop of 1915. The next greatest production was that of Georgia, 1,908,673 bales, or more than one-sixth of the total. Other States producing large crops were South Carolina, with 1,133,919 bales; Alabama, 1,020,839 bales; Mississippi, 953,965 bales; Arkansas, 816,002 bales; North Carolina, 699,494 bales; and Oklahoma, 639,626 bales.

The leading cotton county in respect to number of bales ginned from the growth of 1915 is Ellis county, Tex., which reported 117,337 bales. The only other county to report more than 100,000 bales was Bolivar county, Miss., in which the ginnings amounted to 102,838 bales.

Nisbet-Lindler.

Special to The Herald and News. Van Wyck, June 17.—The First Presbyterian church of Van Wyck was a scene of unusual brilliancy on Wednesday morning, June 14, at 11:30 o'clock, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Athalie Orman Nisbet to Arthur Boland Lindler. The church was lavishly decorated in gay, potted plants and daisies. Previous to the ceremony Floyd Alexander sang "At Dawning," by Cadman, accompanied by Miss Moena Hand, who rendered the bridal music. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bridal party entered as follows: The ushers, Cecil Yoder, Dr. Taylor Nisbet, Newton Nisbet, and Homer Lindler, entered first. Next came the flower girls little Misses Douglas Nisbet, nieces of the bride. Then came the maid of honor,

Miss Ethel Rea of Matthews, N. C.

Following her was the ring bearer, Webb Nisbet White, a nephew of the bride, carrying the ring in a white rosebud. Down the right aisle came the bridegroom with his best man, Olin Bundrick of Little Mountain. Down the left aisle the bride entered on the arm of her brother, Edwin Nisbet, who gave her away. The bride was dressed in a traveling suit of navy blue silk, with white hat and gloves and wearing a corsage of bride roses. Her only ornament was a cameo, a gift of the groom. The groom and best man were dressed in blue serge sack coat suits, white gray kid gloves. The bride's pastor, the Rev. James R. Russell performed the ring ceremony. The Lohengrin wedding march was used as a recessional.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindler left on the noon train for a short visit to the home of the bridegroom's parents at Little Mountain, after which they will spend their vacation at their summer home in Montreat, N. C.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. E. W. Nisbet and is a very attractive and handsome young lady. She was educated at Queen's College, Charlotte, N. C., where she was a popular member of the student body. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lindler of Little Mountain and is a young man of sterling character and capable business qualities. He was graduated at Newberry college in the class of 1914. For the past two years he has been principal of the Van Wyck graded school.

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE OF OUR LITTLE DARLING COUSIN

Little James Walter Bowers was born October 19, 1915, and departed this life June 11, 1916, making his short stay on earth one year, seven months and 23 days. How short, yet how sweet. He leaves his mother, father and sister and brother and many relatives and friends to mourn his sweet death. Darling James, he has gone, To his bright and heavenly home Oh, how we miss our dear little one's smiling face But he's gone to meet his dear little brother, On that bright and happy shore. Sad and lonely is his home since, little James' gone, His place can never more be filled His little crib is empty now, His little clothes are all laid to rest, His mother's and father's hope and joy

In death's cold arms do lie, Through all his hours of suffering He never murmured, he bore it patiently, And when the angel of death came, He smiled a sweet smile And passed into the arms of his Savior. Another little darling lamb is gone, With fresh roses in his hand, To dwell with his Savior; On that bright and happy shore, Another little darling babe, Is sheltered in the grave, God needed one more angel child, Amidst his shiny band; So he bent with loving smile, And clasped our little darling James' hand, Yet again in heaven we hope to meet him. Written by loving cousins, Estelle and Gamie Dominick.

PUTS THE BLAME UPON AMERICANS

Carranza General Asserts He is Ready to Defend Country if War is Forced Upon It.

Chihuahua City, Mexico, June 23.—Crucifixion of American military men, who, he said, had caused all the trouble between Mexico and the United States, was made by Gen. Jacinto Trevino, military commander of the northeast, in a interview with the Associated Press today.

Gen. Trevino said that Gen. Hugh L. Scott was evidently wrong when he told the Mexican conferees at El Paso that the American military men, least of all factors in the United States, wished to fight against Mexico. "The American military has disobeyed the orders of its own chiefs, has never respected the feelings or the property of Mexican citizens and has contemptuously ignored the dispositions of the Mexican government," declared the general.

"I do not want war," added Gen. Trevino, "and I am doing my utmost to control the situation, but if war is forced on the Mexican nation by the Americans, I am ready to do my duty to uphold the honor and dignity of my country."

Officers arriving here today with the body of Gen. Felix Gomez, who was killed in the Carranza engagement, said that the American leaders evidently had instructed their men to concentrate their fire on the general. They said Gen. Gomez was the first Mexican to fall, with three bullets in his chest.

From Col. Zuazua at Namiquipa comes the report that Namiquipa has practically been abandoned and the Americans have given the ranchers more than 200 rifles that were taken from the Villa bandits.

Gen. Trevino is still treating with Contreras, Hernandez and other Villa leaders, to come in and expel the invaders.

All the towns in northern Mexico have asked for arms, offering to equip from 500 to 2,000 in each town to help the government.
