NEWBERRY, S. C., TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1916.

TWICE A WEEK, $1.50 A YEAR.

MEETING LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATION NEWBERRY COUNTY

All persons who are interested in more livestock and better livestock will please meet with the association at Newberry court house on September 9th, 11 o'clock.

A number of farmers have spoken to me about some pure bred sires and also some feeders to be ordered this fall. All those who contemplate buying anything this fall will please attend this meeting and let us know exactly what you want. We can buy them cooperatively cheaper than we can separately. Also we can get better stock by sending an expert to select them than we can by sending a mail order.

The man who goes after them gets all the best of the herd, the man who orders by mail usually gets the culls.

We also wish to know about how many feeders will be wanted this winter in the county so that we can get prices and locate cattle.

Owing to the coming of boll weevil, there is considerable interest now in the livestock business.

The people of the south will always raise some cotton under boll weevil conditions, but they can no longer depend wholly on cotton, but must resort to something else.

Naturally we will turn to hay and livestock. Our climate is ideal for both, and they both go hand in hand. We have very little use for one without the other so lets fall in line and begin both. Start in the livestock business by getting a pure bred sire. Start in the hay business by sowing some clover, vetch, rye, cowpeas, etc. Grow your feeds on the farm, market them through livestock and the fertility to the soil.

An expert livestock man from the extension division will be here to address the association. Also Dr. Geo. Y. Hunter who has just returned from a visit to Louisiana has agreed to tell us some of the things he saw and learned about the ravages of the boll weevil in the gulf States.

A good attendance is desired. Remember the date Saturday September 9th, at 11 o'clock in the court house.

T. M. Mills,
Secretary Association.

It works automatically, and when the Coco Cola and other soft drinks handled at this plant are bottled in the cleanest and most sanitary bottles the pure syrups are in the finest carbonated water. Young Negro Hurt by Automobile.

Ed. Young, a colored boy about ten years old, was knocked down and run over by an automobile Friday afternoon. The car was being driven by a lad, Herman Dickert. It was an unavoidable accident, due to the parking of cars on both sides of the streets. The colored boy was crossing the street from the rear door of Gilder & Weeks drug store while young Dickert was passing in his car. Neither saw the other on account of the crowded automobiles. As soon as young Dickert saw there would be an accident he applied the emergency brakes, although he was not running fast. He didn't have time, however, to avoid the accident. The car struck the boy, knocking him down and one wheel running over him. He received a gash in his forehead and had a wrist sprained, not being seriously hurt. Dr. W. E. Pelham, attended him and he is doing all right. Young Dickert is not to blame for the accident, as it was in no way his fault and he did all he could to prevent it.

LITERARY HOBBIES.

Even Railway Time Tables May Make Interesting Reading.

Rudyard Kipling finds both pleasure and profit in reading the dictionary, and this habit largely accounts for his wonderful knowledge of words, his rich vocabulary and his newness in the use of words. He does not confine himself to the ordinary dictionary. He likes to look at a slang edition or a dictionary of a dialect.

There is a certain noble lord who loves nothing better than turning over the pages of Bradshaw, spying out all the ways to anywhere, all the branch lines and noting the railway stations with queer names. He is an adept in all railway lore and is often referred to by his brother peers when a moot point is raised about the iron ro of the world, for his knowledge extends from Charing Cross to New York via Yokohama.

But probably the queerest literary hobby was a certain doctor's predilection for reading an old file of the London Times. He said it made him better contented with things at present to see how things were muddled up twenty years ago. He found politicians just as quarrelsome and the comments just as caustic, and yet he concluded: "Here we are, much as usual!"—London Answers.

HIS FATE A MYSTERY.

No One Knows Just How the Youngest of the "Signers" Died.

By a strange trick of fate Thomas Lynch, the youngest "signer" of the Declaration of Independence, was also the first one of these men to die.

Lynch was born in Prince George parish, S. C., Aug. 5, 1749. He was only twenty-six when the congress declared the independence of the colonies. All health compelled him to leave congress soon afterward, and near the close of 1779 he embarked on a vessel, intending to go to Europe for the benefit of his health.

The ship on which he sailed was never heard of afterward, and the fate of the youngest of the "signers" remains a mystery. It is supposed, of course, that the ship sank and that Lynch and all on board were drowned, but there were rumors that it was blown out of its course in a storm and wrecked on a lonely island of the West Indies and that some of the passengers and crew were saved.

Thomas Lynch was educated in England and was the son of a wealthy South Carolina planter.—New York World.

The Trade Winds.

The constancy of trade winds is due to the permanence of the conditions which rule them. As the heated air at the equator ascends surface winds set in from north and south and, uniting, ascend in their turn and flow off in opposite directions. As the velocity of the earth's revolution from east to west is much greater at the equator than at the poles, wind blowing along its surface to the equator is constantly arriving at places which have a higher velocity than itself; hence it is retarded and must lag behind, and under the influence of two opposing forces it is compelled to take an intermediate direction, so that what was originally a north wind is deflected and flows southwest, while what started as a south wind becomes northwest. From the great service they have rendered to navigation these reliable winds are called trade winds.

Willie's Fervent Wish.

Papa was sitting by the table reading his evening paper. Generally, when he came across an item of interest, he read it aloud to mamma. Little William, a typical "little pitcher with big ears," as a rule was not in the least concerned about the items his father read aloud. But the other evening he was mightily interested.

"I see, ma," said papa, "that the fishermen around Cape Cod have gone out of the whaling business and—"

Up spoke William promptly. "See whiz, papa, I wish you was a Cape Cod fisherman!"—Chicago Journal.

In Hot Water.

Two citizens were toddling up the street one day recently, earnestly engaged in exchanging their experiences with dyspepsia.

"And did you ever try the hot water cure?" asked the thin one.

"Did I?" repeated the melancholy one, who had also something of the saving grace of humor in his makeup, as many melancholy men have, "I should say I did. Why, man, I've been married fifteen years!"

All For the Best.

"Why do the roses fade slowly away?" she inquired poetically.

"Well," replied the baldheaded young man, "when you think it over it's all for the best. It's more comfortable to have them fade slowly away than to go off all of a sudden, like a torpedo."
