Only a few people in Manning saw the comet that suddenly appeared last Saturday evening, but a great many have seen it since. Like all other comets, nobody knows where it came from or where it is going. It is hoped that this one will grow brighter and more conspicuous.

There has been a full round moon since Saturday, although according to the almanac the moon was not to be full until yesterday. This is an unusual phenomenon, but it is not supposed to have anything to do with the coincidental appearance of the comet.

Monday evening about 6 o'clock on Mr. Wallace Plowden's place, four miles East of Manning, a young negro named Bill Young, either fell dead or came off after falling in a fit. Coroner Baggett was notified, but after investigation decided that an inquest was not necessary. The deceased was subject to fits.

Mrs. Eliza Brewer, wife of Mr. Lawrence Brewer, died at her home near Bloomville last Friday afternoon, her death being due to heart failure following an attack of grip, which she contracted after falling in a fit. The Greensboro, N. C. News of the 18th inst., gives an account of the death of Mrs. Ada Garland Hunter, who was born and reared at Sardinia, in this county, and who died on Sunday morning, January 16th, following a stroke of apoplexy the day before. She had been living in Greensboro for about thirty years, but as the cultured and lovely Miss Ada Garland she is well remembered by many of our readers. Her husband, the late J. S. Hunter, a prominent and successful business man, and an only daughter preceded her to the grave some years ago, and she now leaves four sons to mourn an irreparable loss. Mrs. Hunter was gifted with rare musical talent and literary tastes, and was an untiring worker in the church and Sunday school. Several relatives went from Sardinia to attend her funeral.

Barlow & Wilson's Minstrels. Merry Performers at Academy of Music Last Night. What the Raleigh News and Observer of December 31, 1909, says of Barlow & Wilson's Minstrels: "The Barlow & Wilson Minstrels were at the Academy of Music last night, and the performance given was one that brought applause from the audience. In the first part there was music with melody to it, the vocalists rendering the songs with gusto and vim, and the comedians looking diligently after the fun end of the performance. Some of the songs made a hit with the audience. The take off on Cook and Peary was very clever. In the second part there were feature acts in which juggling was presented, Fred Robb in a funny skit, the international comedy quartette, songs and buck dancing, musical comedies and other specialties, going to make up a performance that was applauded time and again."

Homicide in Salem. A homicide took place at St. John's colored church, near Workman, last Saturday, when Anthony Burgess shot and instantly killed Jack Smith, both parties being colored. A single-barrel shotgun was used and the entire load passed through the head of the deceased from rear to front. It seems that about 18 months ago Smith ran away with a daughter of Burgess, and Burgess pursued them, threatening to kill Smith, but relented and let them go. About ten days ago, while Smith's wife was home, he kicked her out of the house and went away, after which the woman made her way to her father's. Last Saturday, while a number of colored people had gathered to clean off the cemetery at St. John's, Smith being among them, Burgess came up with a gun, and remarking to Smith that "you have been running over me long enough," pointed the gun at him and fired. Smith was killed instantly, and Burgess went away none of those present making any effort to detain him. A pistol was found on the person of the deceased. Coroner C. H. Baggett held an inquest Sunday, when the jury returned a verdict that Smith came to his death from a gunshot wound at the hands of Burgess. Sheriff E. B. Gamble has made every effort to apprehend Burgess, but has been unable to locate him.

Syfax Milton is Dead. Syfax Milton, a well-known and influential negro and a conspicuous character in former days, died at his home in Salem, near the Midway causeway, last Sunday, after a brief illness. It will be remembered that he was in Manning and made an address on Emancipation day, January 1st. The younger generation that has come upon the stage cannot realize the conditions that existed in this State during reconstruction and the republican regime. In those days Syfax Milton was a power in the land. Though not an educated man he was possessed of a goodly share of sound common sense. He was identified with the rice-streaked and striped element that controlled in those days by a representative and senator from Clarendon county, but his influence was not always for the bad nor did he profit greatly by the graft that was reaped in those days. He was a good citizen and a good neighbor. He relinquished his seat in the Senate to Col. H. L. Benbow over thirty years ago, and since his day only one or two colored men have sat in that body. Milton was one of the better class of politicians, and he lived to see and confess that it was a great mistake that the government of this State should ever have fallen into the hands of ignorance and incompetence.

Colored Teachers to Meet. The colored teachers of Clarendon county are requested to attend the regular monthly meeting of the Colored Teachers' Association, Saturday, January 29th. The meeting will begin at 12 o'clock and will be held in the colored school building.

The teachers of this county who fail to attend these meetings are making a mistake. There is an impression that the scholarship among many teachers of the rural schools is poor. They don't read papers pertaining to their profession, many of us do not even read the county newspaper. At this rate, and without systematic study, what is to become of the work of the public schools? The teacher should be a fair scholar. The ideals and standards of the children must be met in concrete form. They must be embodied in living persons, scholarship in the teacher is such a living standard, and a constant reminder to the pupils that such knowledge is precious and beneficial to their lives. The subtle influence of such an ideal permeates the very atmosphere of the school, it is the scholarship of the teacher that inspires the children to faithful and diligent study.

Barlow & Wilson's Greater New York Minstrels. What the Wilmington, N. C., "Daily Morning Star" of Wednesday morning, January 19, 1910 says of Barlow & Wilson's Minstrels: "Barlow & Wilson's Minstrels was the attraction at the Academy of Music last night, and the performance given was one that brought applause from the audience. In the first part there was music with melody to it, the vocalists rendering the songs with gusto and vim, and the comedians looking diligently after the fun end of the performance. Some of the songs made a hit with the audience. The take off on Cook and Peary was very clever. In the second part there were feature acts in which juggling was presented, Fred Robb in a funny skit, the international comedy quartette, songs and buck dancing, musical comedies and other specialties, going to make up a performance that was applauded time and again."

Real Good Steak. "We can't eat this steak; it's not good!" complained a young man who was spending his honeymoon in a Scottish village. "Ye're surely jokin', sir," said the landlord of the inn. "It man indeed be gaid, it's a bit of the minister's auld coo!"

Higher. "But our ideals!" "What of them?" "Are they higher than they were a generation ago?" "Sure. Everything is higher now."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Wanted His Money Back. It is an old saying that "you cannot eat your cake and have it too." But a sensible person usually cares little for either side of the proposition. The captain of one of the steamships plying between this country and Italy, which arrived at New York with over 600 immigrants, tells a rather amusing story of a heated interview held between himself and one of them on the voyage across.

The vessel had been out a few days and had encountered some heavy seas. The first morning after the heavy weather prevailed and the steerage passengers appeared for the first time above deck and with a face as white as a sheet approached the captain.

"This has got to stop!" he said angrily. "What has?" asked the captain, in surprise. "This feeling of death. When I bought my ticket I was told it included meals, but I can't keep my food down. Now, it has got to stop, captain, or else I want my passage money back. You cannot break your contract in this fashion with me."

It took all the captain's ingenuity to pacify him during the rest of the trip.—Youth's Companion.

No Chance For the Truth. "Be truthful," said the teacher. "Always?" asked the boy. "Always," answered the teacher. "Never tell a lie?" "Never." "Not even a white lie?" "Not even a white lie." "Hub," ejaculated the lad scornfully, "it's a mighty good thing for you ain't a boy with my dad for a father?"

"Because," replied the boy, "if you was my dad, you'd be a little boy, and you'd be heard that he said Aunt Eliza comin' to visit us with her children, and Aunt Eliza had asked you if you weren't all glad to see her, and you'd told the truth, like I did, you'd think there was a place where your trousers were mighty thin after dad had finished with you."

He went back to his desk, and as he sat down with great care there was an expression on his face that showed the great lesson of truth had been, at least in a measure, lost on him.—London Tit-Bits.

When Curates Were Wanted. When one learns that curates are increasing so much more rapidly than benefices, wonder is excited as to the condition of affairs in the eighteenth century, when the surprising number of curates living to clerymen willing to marry them. An advertisement to this effect appeared in the London Chronicle in March, 1758. The lady was rather particular too. The curate was to be young, have a small fortune, be well recommended as to morals and good temper and be firmly attached to the present happy establishment.

The living was not rich—below £100 per annum—but the fair one was young and agreeable. There seems a touch of humility in the direction that answers "may be in the direction that answers to Z. Z." Confidence was created by the assurance that "the utmost secrecy and honor may be depended upon."—London Chronicle.

England's Old Common Field System. A "common field" is quite distinct from a "common." It is a field belonging to numerous owners. The land consists of long narrow strips, perhaps not more than ten yards wide and running parallel with one another. What are the exact rules of cultivation that obtain in Kent today we do not know, but of old it was usual to have a regular rotation, such as wheat on one year, barley or oats the second and fallow the third. When the crops were harvested each member of the community getting his or her share, all could put in their cattle, which roamed over the whole field, feeding on the stubble, etc. And this was termed the "right of sack." The "common field" system was gradually done away with by statutes in the reigns of George III. and William IV.—London Express.

A Famous Temple. The most magnificent work of architecture in the world is the Taj Mahal, in Agra, Hindustan. It was erected by Shah Jehan in the memory of his favorite queen. It is constructed in form of pure white marble, inlaid with Jasper, carnelian, turquoise, emerald, garnet and sapphires. The temple took 22,000 men twenty years to complete, and, though there were free gifts and the labor was free, the cost is estimated at $16,000,000.—Exchange.
