

Relief from Rheumatism

Try Sloan's Liniment for your rheumatism—don't rub—just lay it on lightly. It goes straight to the sore spot, quickens the blood, limbers up the muscles and joints and stops the pain.

Here's Proof

Mrs. JULIA THOMAS of Jackson, Cal., writes: "I have used your Liniment for rheumatism with much success."

MARTIN J. TUNIS, 169 10th Ave., Paterson, N. J., writes:—"I was a cripple with rheumatism for two years and I could not move at all; had to be carried from place to place. I tried remedies and could not get better, until I tried Sloan's Liniment. One bottle fixed me up in good shape and now I always have a bottle in the house for my wife and children."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

Mills any kind of pain. Good for Neuralgia, Toothache, Lumbago and Chest Pains. Sold by all dealers. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

Renaming Indians.

Some years ago in order to make their inheritance of land more simple and secure our government commissioned Dr. Charles A. Eastman, a Sioux Indian, to rename more than 15,000 Sioux with their family names. The task was a tremendous one and full of difficulties. Where possible Dr. Eastman kept the original Sioux name of some member of a family, as in bestowing the name "Matoeska," meaning "White Bear," on the family of that chief. Sometimes the combination of wife's name and husband's name has produced a musical result, such as "Winoua Otana." The favorite name for women means "she who has a beautiful home," which Dr. Eastman has Anglicized in the patronymic "Goodhouse." But by far the hardest task was in finding new names for the absurdities of Indian nomenclature. "Bottled Coyote" was a young Indian who has come to prefer himself as "Robert T. Wolf." After a long struggle with "Rotten Pumpkin" Dr. Eastman at last recorded the owner of the name on the tribal records under the noncommittal title of "Robert Pumpkin."

Sherlock Holmes' Original.

Sir A. Conan Doyle often recounted incidents regarding Dr. Joseph Bell, the distinguished Scottish surgeon from whom his character of Sherlock Holmes was drawn. One of the most remarkable was this: Dr. Bell was lecturing to his class in surgery, of which Doyle was one, when in regard to the subject he remarked: "Of course this man has been a soldier in a highland regiment and probably a bandsman." The man had the soldier's swagger, but was too short to be anything but a bandsman, the doctor explained. The man vehemently denied this and said he was a shoemaker. Dr. Bell, still confident that his powers of reasoning and deduction had not led him astray, had the man stripped and on the left side of his chest found a little blue "S" branded on the skin. The doctor then declared to his class: "This man was a deserter. This is the way they were marked in the Crimean days, though it is not permitted now."

When the Duke Scrubbed.

When the Duke of Coburg-Gotha was a very young royal highness he was taken by his mother, the Duchess of Albany, to Mr. Wesley's school for boys. Before taking to the royal young pupil must conform to all the rules. This was agreed. One day his royal highness upset a bottle of ink on the floor. "Get a bucket of water and wipe it up," said the master. "But," objected his royal highness, "you don't mean me to scrub it up, do you?" "Yes, indeed." "But you must forget my grandmother is the queen?" "On the contrary," said the master, "I remember it very well. Get the water." Whereupon his royal highness the Duke of Coburg-Gotha scrubbed.—Chicago Tribune.

How the Dust Gets In.

When the barometer falls the air around expands into a larger volume, and the air inside the bookcase, the clothes closet and the cupboard also expands and forces itself out at every minute crevice. When the barometer rises again the air inside the cupboard, as well as outside, condenses and shrinks and the air is forced back into the cupboard to equalize the pressure, and along with the air in goes the dust. The smaller the crevice the stronger the jet of air, the farther goes the dirt. Witness the dirt tracks so often seen in imperfectly framed engravings or photographs. Remember, whenever you see the barometer rising, that an additional charge of dust is entering your cupboard and bureau drawers.

Keeping It Dark.

The black sheep of the Warywalk family had distinguished himself again. "This is the last straw!" roared his respectable brother. "I'm going to 'ave it put in the papers that I've changed my name from Warywalk to Wobbleway, coz of my brother's disgraceful name. I'll 'ave it printed on 'and-bills' distributed by the thousand. I'm determined nobody shall suspect that I'm related to 'im."—London Ideas.

Vigilant and Speedy.

"There's nothing slow about Jones." "I guess you never loaned him money." "Oh, yes I have. That's what made me speak that way. I loaned him $10 six months ago and I haven't been able to catch him since."—Boston Transcript.

Force of Character.

"I thought your wife forbade you to marry again when she died?" "So she did, but now I'm going to show her who is master in this house."—London Opinion.

The Laziest Man.

"Want to bed at 8 o'clock last night?" "Why so early?" "My shoe came untied, and I thought I'd save the trouble of trying it again."—Pittsburgh Post.

Fretfulness.

Do not give way to fretfulness. It takes the fragrance out of life and leaves only weeds where a cheerful disposition would cause flowers to bloom.

Don't You Love Life? Then do not squander time, for time is the stuff life is made of.—Benjamin Franklin.

Ends Winter's Troubles

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chills, colds, coughs, red and rough skins, prove this. In such trouble fly before Buckle's Anise Salve. A trial convinces. Greater sores of Burns, Boils, Piles, Cuts, Sores, Bruises, Eczema and Sprain. Only 25c at all druggists.

Two Champion Penmen.

A contest in the fine art of penmanship would not arouse much public interest now. But there seems to have been great excitement when Peter Bales was challenged by Daniel Johnson in 1858. Bales was the beautiful writer who could transcribe the whole Bible so that it would go into a walnut shell and who had provided Queen Elizabeth with a specimen of his handwriting which she wore in a ring, a magnifying glass being required to read it. When the contest took place there were five judges and a hundred spectators. The competition included all kinds of writing, the masterpieces of either. Bales won the golden pen. But Johnson declared that there had been allowed to show the pen to his sick wife and having promptly pawned it, whereupon the judges had to declare him the winner to get out of the difficulty. Really the award was privately made to spare Johnson's feelings.—London Spectator.

Fat and Fashionable.

According to the Moorish idea of beauty, a really handsome woman ought to be so fat that she can only waddle, not walk. The fatter she is the more beautiful she is considered. If she can attain 200 or 300 pounds of flesh she is the envy of all her sex. The Moorish shape—if shape it can be called—approaches the perfection of feminine beauty when it resembles, or, rather, exceeds, the circumference of a barrel. What a paradise for the fat woman! There she can eat and drink and feast to her heart's content, denying herself nothing, living an easy, indolent, luxurious life, with no horror of accumulating fat, but rather rejoicing in it. There the ambition of a woman is to acquire bulk. Physical culture she would regard as an enemy to beauty, and to take Turkish baths and diet herself would be considered the height of folly. She wants to be beautiful, and to be beautiful she must be fat.

An Early Street Cleaner.

"One day," Ben Franklin wrote in his autobiography, "I found a poor, industrious man, who was willing to undertake keeping the pavement clean by sweeping it twice a week, carrying off the dirt from before all the neighbors' doors for the sum of sixpence month to be paid by each house. I then wrote and printed a paper setting forth the advantages to the neighborhood that might be obtained by this small expense. I sent one of these papers to each house and in a day or two went around to see who would subscribe an agreement to pay these sixpences. It was unanimously signed and for a time well executed. This raised a general desire to have all the streets paved and made the people more willing to submit to a tax for that purpose."—Survey.

Grave Humor.

The punster is irrepressible. He even indites his jokes on tombstones. An epitaph in Waltham abbey informs us that Sir James Fullerton died "fuller of faith than of fears, fuller of resolutions than of pains, fuller of honour than of days."

There is another of Daniel Tears: "Though strange, yet true, full seventy years was his wife happy in her Tears."

This was written of an organist: "Here lies one, blown out of breath, who lived a merry life and died a Merideth."

Another says: "Here lies Thomas Huddleston. Reader, don't smile, but reflect as this tombstone you view that Death, who killed him, in a very short while will huddle a stone upon you."—Pearson's Weekly.

Mr. Mott-Smith is Dry.

When Vapors point out in Science a popular misconception in the supposition that aqueous vapor and ice are wet. They are in themselves dry and become wet only when they turn to water. "So dry is aqueous vapor that it will dry any moist object that it comes in contact with." Superheated steam before it condenses is a dry gas. Ice feels wet if the temperature of the hand is sufficient to melt it. As ice is that dry, can be either moist or dry. It is the condensed aqueous vapor in the air that is moist, and it would be moist if there were no air. A given quantity of aqueous vapor confined in a given space will be wet or dry according to the temperature. At 32 degrees, for instance, it might be partially condensed and consequently wet, while at 70 degrees, owing to expansion, it would be dry.

Bug Power.

If asked to name the strongest animals most persons begin with the largest, the elephant, and continue with oxen, horses, etc. This is, of course, correct in so far as their total horse power is concerned.

But, for real strength, proportioned to the size and weight of the animal, one must go to the insect world. Compared with insects, the strength of almost any large animal, and especially of man, is absurd. A man is considered strong if he can drag a mass weighing three or four times as much as himself, but the beetle will walk with five times his own weight. If a man were placed under a wooden box with five times his weight on top to hold it down he would remain there indefinitely, but to retain a stag beetle prisoner in the same way one must pile on top of the box at least 1,800 times its weight.

Olecloth as a Cure.

Pretty soon after the new arrival had been assigned to his room he telephoned down to the office for two strips of olecloth.

"Another one," said the clerk after assuring the guest that the olecloth would be sent up immediately. "He is a somnambulist, I suppose. We keep strips of olecloth in reserve for fellows like him. They spread it on the floor at either side of the bed. Stepping on cold olecloth when he gets out of bed is pretty likely to awaken the most confirmed sleepwalker and prevent nocturnal wandering."—New York Press.

St. Dunstan and the Devil.

One of the most famous smiths of the Weald was St. Dunstan, archbishop of Canterbury. Mayfield, in Sussex, is the site of an ancient archiepiscopal palace, and here, according to some, took place the terrific encounter between St. Dunstan and the devil. At any rate, the anvil, hammer and tongs which are alleged to have belonged to the saint are still preserved at Mayfield palace.—London Tatler.

HIS MILD REPROOF.

The Mate Let the Captain Down Easy About His Mistake.

The skipper was a man who had a good opinion of himself and his notions. He had pulled through shipwreck, mutiny and other perils of the deep, but he became a crupper once. For one of his voyages he had shipped a boatswain's mate who bore something of a reputation.

One day the skipper ordered him aloft to examine a sail on the royal yard.

"Tain't safe, cap'n!" protested the boatswain's mate. "The foot ropes has got to be fixed first."

"Do as I tell you!" thundered the captain. "The foot ropes are all right. I know they are."

The man went up.

Five minutes later he came tumbling down through the rigging from the top of the mast, a distance of over 100 feet.

With a bang he landed on the belly of the mainsail and bounded into one of the canvas covered boats.

The sailors, thinking him dead, crowded about him in a circle.

To their amazement he sat up.

His eyes wandered vacantly about until they rested on the leathery face of the skipper, when they lighted up with intelligence.

"Cap'n," he said slowly, "you was mistaken about them foot ropes."—London Tit-Bits.

The Famous "Green Man of Brighton"

In October, 1892, an individual was to be observed at Brighton, England, who walked out every day dressed in green from head to foot—green shoes, green gloves, green handkerchief and other articles to match. This eccentric person lived alone, knew nobody, and in his house the curtains, the wall paper, the furniture, even the plates and dishes and the smallest toilet articles, offered an uninterrupted sequence of green. Having started on his career, there was obviously no reason to stop, and with full consistency he carried this scruple so far as to eat nothing but fruit and vegetables of the same green color. The consequences were extremely disastrous. One day the green man jumped from his window into the street, rushed forward and performed a second somersault from the top of the nearest cliff.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Fox Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." The Dickson Drug Co.

VALE OF THE WYE.

Glimpse of an Imposing and Romantic Spot in Wales.

Those who travel through strange places with their eyes and their ears open are likely to make strange discoveries, but there are plenty of other finds which, simply as a delight to the senses and without any wonder or curiosity attending them, are well worth the trouble of trying to forget one's preoccupation in what he sees and hears.

Both these pleasures of travel come to those who will fare slowly and observingly through the Vale of the Wye in Wales. It seems almost like a chapter from some magnificent Apocryphal travel on to Cadair and Plynlimon and glimpse the imposing grandeur of the visions that await the appreciative eye. Half of Wales seems to lie before the traveler. The mountains of Cadair range loom lofty, and Snowdon of the lakes seems to beckon him on. The long headland of Carnarvon hugs half a sea in the crook of its arm. Penhroek's rugged capes gleam beyond the lovely mountainous heights. No sound breaks the vast silence. You are shut off from the bustling world. The hawk circles in a noiseless world above the slopes whitened with grazing sheep. For a moment there may be the feeble pipe of the wheatear, and for another brief space a lark may lift rapt to heaven. But that is all—Philadelphia North American.

An Even Thing.

The late Sydney Mudd of Maryland was on a train going from Washington to his home when a man who had had too much to drink sat down beside him. The passenger blinked at Mudd for a moment, then he turned over and asked, "Shay, wash your name?" "My name is Mudd," he replied.

Said the other: "You got nothin' on me. My name's Dennis."—Saturday Evening Post.

Parson's Poem A Gem.

From Rev. H. Stubenolt, Allison, Ia., in praise of Dr. King's New Life Pills.

"They're such a health necessity. In every home these pills should be. If other kinds you've tried in vain, 'TIS DR. KING'S."

And be well again. Only 25c at all druggists.

Forever at Him.

Newitt—Punny! I always associate your wit with a certain episode in my own life. There's just one thing she always reminds me of—Henpeck.

I wish I could say that. There's lots of things she always reminds me of.—Philadelphia Press.

No Clew.

"Is the new bookkeeper married?" "I dunno. He's one of them close mouthed fellows. If he has any trouble he keeps it to himself."—London Telegraph.

Two Barbs.

What is the difference between the bark of a tree and that of a dog? One is the product of the bough, the other of the "bow-wow."

There is many a woman whose epitaph ought to be.

"Nobody ever saw her hands folded but once."—Youth's Companion.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound

is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. The Dickson Drug Co.

Origin of "Canard."

The French name for a duck is canard and a French journal recalls the etymology of "canard" in the pejorative journalistic sense. A Paris reporter once upon a time in the hot weather could find no news and he fell back upon his imagination. He published an account of a remarkable experiment conducted in a farmyard. A farmer took up one and gave it to the eleven others to eat. A second was chopped and the remaining ten ducks were served up to the others. At last, when only two were left, one of the two was given to the other to eat. This remarkable experiment resulted, therefore, in the one remaining duckling having eaten up his eleven brothers.

The story of the "Twelve Little Ducks" sprang at once into fame. A "canard" in a newspaper has ever since meant a statement nearer fiction than fact.

Knowing the Great Man.

Mr. Browning himself once told me how important and interesting he thought it that the young should have, as it were, landmarks in their lives by at least seeing great men who belonged to an earlier generation.

"Once," he said, "I was walking in the streets of Paris with my son, who was then a little boy. We saw an old man approaching us in a long, loose, rather shabby coat and with a stooping, shuffling attitude and gait. 'Touch that man as you pass him,' I whispered to my little son. 'I will tell you why afterward.' The child touched him as he passed, and I said to him, 'Now, my boy, you will always be able to remember in later years that you once saw and touched the great Benjamin Franklin.'"

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley's. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness. The Dickson Drug Co.
