Local Events Among Colored People.

The people of Manning held the late June Walker in high esteem. In fact no colored man in the County has back of him such a church record as he deceased.

For forty years he was pastor and trustee of the African Methodist Church of Manning, and his class reports always went ahead of the other officers. As a citizen he won and held the good will of the white people and the members of his own race. He left the impression of a pious, conscientious Christian, also a family that is among the most respectable colored families in the County. Men like June Walker, J. R. Sprout, and Alex Tindal are the old "hand marks" of the race, and the thought, that these men of anti-bellum days are all gradually passing away, is one that is received with a deal of remorse.

The colored women of Manning, will meet Mrs. A. V. Andrews of Sumter, in the home of Mr. White this week to organize a "Colored Women's Federation Club" to do charity work among the colored people of this community. There are many old men and women who are on the verge of the world. It is indeed a reflection on the negro race to have to beg around the streets for funds to bury these old people, as has been the case time and again. The mission of this club will be to create a fund or devise means of aiding the negro who are in need of food, clothing and shelter. A movement of this kind should find room for growth, and no doubt will be taken up with keen interest and civic pride.

In the spring rally at the Baptist Church last Sunday they raised $185 toward the liquidation of the church debt. The money was raised with little effort, because of the systematic plans of the officers. The communicants of the colored Baptist church have done some very fine church work during the past two years. The pastor, Rev. J. P. Garrick, is an unassuming minister, but he stays in the hearts of his people and has back of him an administration of construction work.

This Service Will Long be Remembered.

Perhaps no larger congregation has ever assembled in the Baptist Church than that which enjoyed the unique service of song last Sunday evening. After the main auditorium had been filled, with chairs put in every available place, a number of people standing, and a large number of people sitting in the Sunday school room, as many as could find places there from which they could see and hear, a good many who came later had to be turned away.

No sermon was preached, but the entire hour was given to a special program of song prepared by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Ansley. Several favorite hymns were selected, their histories given, and incidents associated with them, after by the congregation or choir. Hymn books were dispensed with, and the hymns sung by the congregation were thrown upon the canvas by the stereophones. The congregational singing was joined in by almost every one in the congregation, and filled the large auditorium.

The service was opened with a voluntary by Chas. H. Gabriel, sung by the choir, "All Hail, Immanuel." The inspiring words and spirit of music were rendered by the choir in a way that left nothing to be desired, and promised well for the program which followed.

Mr. E. L. Wilkins read the history of his favorite hymn, "Stand Up for Jesus." He told how, in 1857, a young Presbyterian minister, Rev. Dudley Tyng, of Philadelphia, after having on a Sunday morning preached to a congregation of thousands, with great effect, during a city wide revival, was accidentally killed by an accident with his fellow workers in the revival work. "Tell them to Stand Up for Jesus." The hymn was inspired by this message.

Mrs. F. O. Richardson read the history of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." The tradition is that Charles Wesley was sitting at his desk, when a sparrow, pursued by a hawk, flew in through the open window, and found protection in the press of the post who at once took his pen and wrote this immortal hymn. She also related the story of an accident at sea, where a mother and infant child, floating on a log, were rescued through the singing of this song.

Capt. D. J. Bradham read the touching story of the soldier on picket duty during the civil war, upon whom the guns of the opposing army were trained, whose life was spared because, just before the order to fire was given he was heard to sing, "Come with the shadow of thy wing." Miss Aileen Fladger read of "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," which was composed by a young girl, Phoebe Cary, one Sunday morning after coming from church. Young later, Col. Russell H. Corwell, now a Baptist minister in Philadelphia, witnessed a scene in Macao, China, whereby two gamblers were reformed through the singing of a verse of this song by one of them.

Miss Ruth Touchberry read of the composition of "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" by Edward Perronet, at one time an associate of John Wesley in the Methodist movement in England. She also gave an interesting incident of Billy Dawson, a famous and eccentric English evangelist, in connection with the song, together with a remarkable use of the hymn by a missionary among a cannibal tribe in India.

The last hymn on the program was "Rock of Ages," the story of which, with interesting comments, was read by Mr. A. S. Briggs. The little known fact was brought out that this universally loved hymn was originally written as a part of an argument in a now forgotten theological controversy.

These stories and incidents of these well known hymns will give a new interest in them, wherever sung or heard, to those who attended this service.

In connection with "Jesus Lover of My Soul," the choir sang Will L. Thompson's solo and quartet, "The Sinner and the Song."

The solo part was sung by Mr. J. L. Wells, and was greatly enjoyed by the congregation. Miss V. A. Appel, sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," as a solo. It is a beautiful, touching song, and its deep meaning was well brought out by the feeling manner in which it was sung. Mr. Edward Johnson's voice was never heard to better advantage than when he sang "The Holy City." During the singing of this song, at almost every line, a handsome colored stereoscopic view was projected on the curtain, appropriate to the words of the song. As it is known to the singer, and in these views the dreamer was seen asleep in the lower corner, while the stately scenes of his vision were spread out in the upper portion of the views.

In connection with the last hymn, "Rock of Ages," Miss Fladger gave a very effective reading of a poem full of pathos based on this grand old hymn. Though there was no sermon, and the entire hour was given to the song service as described, the religious impression was as deep as any sermon could have produced. The immense congregation enjoyed every moment of the unusual program, and it will be remembered for a long time to come.

At Rest.

Died last Tuesday March 10th, at his home in Pinewood, Mr. Robert M. Johnston, the only brother of Mr. H. L. Johnston, of Turbeville, and Mrs. M. A. McLeod of Paxville, he was born January, 12th, 1836. He was 58 years of age, he retired Monday night well as usual, but awakening Tuesday A. M. and made a fire in his room and called to his wife that he was feeling awful bad, and at once she hurriedly sent for a Dr. and in eight minutes the Dr. arrived. He leaves a wife and two darling little boys, besides a host of relatives and friends of Sumter County and Clarendon, to mourn his sad departure, who was a sinner until two weeks ago when there were a series of meetings at Pinewood Methodist church, where he was converted and joined the church.

Oh! such a blessing he changed before it was too late. The charming choir sang at the funeral Some Day we Will Understand, and Asleep in Jesus. The Rev. DuBose preached a heart felt sermon, his text was, Prepare for the Night is Coming, yes our dying day is coming, so prepare to meet your God. The flowers were very dainty and sweet, his dear remains were laid to rest by his first wife, Miss Mattie Reynolds Johnson, in Week's burying ground. Oh how we miss him, how we miss his sweet face, and to just think, he will never be with us any more he always wore a dear, sweet smile, and on his dear sweet pale cheeks were a heavenly smile.

Gone from us dear uncle, Gone to thy home beyond, But Oh! God prepare my Soul To meet him on the other shore. He is now Safe in the Arms of Jesus Safe on his Gentle Breast. There by his love ones Sweetly his Soul is at rest. (MISS) ORILLA JOHNSTON.

A contract for the erection of a substantial iron fence to enclose the Cemetery and some additional land available for lots, has been entered into by the Civic League, the fence to be placed by May 1st next, at a cost of $900.00.

One half of this amount is now in hand, the Town Council having given the League $250.00 thereof. Every lot owner and citizen is, or should be, interested in beautifying and protecting the resting place of our dead.

You are urged to immediately send your contribution in cash or by check to Miss Julia Burgess, the Secretary and Treasurer of the League, and the same will be acknowledged weekly in this paper.

To this end a meeting of all the owners of lots is hereby called to meet at the Grand jury room in the Court House, at six o'clock P.
