

The Manning Times.

Publishes All County and Town Official Advertisements.

MANNING, S. C., AUG. 11, 1915

TOBACCO TWINE!

FIVE POUND BAGS

20c.

PER POUND.

LEON WEINBERG

"Everything Good to Eat."

Mr. J. A. Weinberg is at Pawley's Island this week.

Miss Katie Clark of Columbia is visiting relatives in town.

Mr. E. C. Horton and family left Monday for Glenn Springs.

Miss Caro Bradham has returned home from Black Mountain.

Mr. S. Iseman spent last Sunday in Savannah with his son, Dr. Everett Iseman.

We call special attention to the big ad. of The Manning Dry Goods Co. in this issue.

Miss Eli Todd left this morning for Washington, Baltimore and other northern points.

Governor Manning has appointed John M. Peavy of Manning rural policeman of this county.

Mrs. D. Hirschmann left yesterday for the north as she goes to buy her fall stock of Millinery.

The State executive committee meets in Columbia next Friday. Hon. C. M. Davis is a member of this committee.

Messrs. Glenn Herriott and "Chub" Plowden left this morning for Asheville and other pleasure resorts for a few days.

The time for registering is out and those not having a registration certificate need not go to the polls on the 14th, as they cannot vote.

Died last Thursday, Clarence Howie, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Howie. The funeral took place Friday in the Manning cemetery.

Morris college, a colored institution at Sumter, was destroyed by fire Sunday morning, the loss is about $4,000 and partly covered by insurance.

There will be a prohibition rally to day at Home Branch, at which Dr. J. G. Clinkscales, Charlton DuRant, Esq., and Mrs. Joseph Spratt will speak.

Miss Annie Thames, the efficient milliner for the New Idea Co., left this morning for Baltimore and New York to study the new styles in head-gear.

Read the big ad. of The New Idea Co. in this issue. This concern advertises every week in The Times and does business every day in the week.

Dickson's Drug Store is again back at their old stand, but in a new building, and it is fitted up as presy as any in the State. It is a credit to the town.

The first cotton for 1915, was marketed at Barnwell yesterday, and brought 15 cents, it weighed 340 pounds, and was shipped to F. W. Wagner & Co., Charleston.

Maj. W. T. Lessee has returned from Richmond, where he went with Mrs. Lessee, who underwent a serious operation, and reports her condition as very favorable.

Mr. Arthur Briggs of Pinewood, has been appointed commissioner in reference to the proposed annexation of a portion of Clarendon to Sumter, vice P. B. Hode, resigned.

Miss Augusta Appelt has returned home from Brenau conservatory of music, where she received her diploma and which makes her better fitted to teach music than ever before.

The Rev. P. B. Wells has been appointed presiding elder of the Rock Hill district of the Methodist church, to fill the unexpired term of the late presiding elder, the Rev. R. L. Holroyd.

On last Monday night Miss Hattie Basal and her mother suffered a case of ptomaine poisoning, supposedly from eating some sliced tomatoes, and from which they are still suffering, but are some better today.

Died last Monday near Wilson's Mill, Mr. Willie Strang, aged about 40 years. The deceased was a well to do farmer, and highly respected by those who knew him. He leaves a wife and two small children.

Last Sunday afternoon while Mr. J. D. Gerald was returning from Sumter with his family his car, in trying to pass another car, skidded in a ditch and turned completely over, but fortunately none of the occupants or the machine were hurt.

Died at his home near Panola last Thursday, Col. David W. Bralford, aged about 75 years. The deceased was a Confederate veteran, and was a prominent citizen of the county. The funeral took place at St. Marks church near Pinewood on Friday.

Willie Young of Alcolu, and Neal Hodge of Manning, won a free trip to London and are there this week with the other members of the corn club boys that were lucky to get this trip. These are two of Clarendon's brightest boys, and we predict that they will make their mark in this world.

R. A. White, who is at the head of the Household of Ruth department for this part of South Carolina, returned last week from the grand lodge, and was re-elected to the position he has faithfully filled for a great many years without opposition. White has the esteem of the people of this community, who will be glad to know of his re-election.

A modern duster with narrow striped clothes, saddle colored shoes, a loud necktie, hair parted over his nose, and smoking a cigarette, addressed his best girl thus: "If you were me and I were you, what would you do?" She hesitatingly said with a smile: "I would take off that hideous tie, put that cigarette in the stove, part my hair on one side, then pray to God for brains."

If every business man in our town could do business on a strictly cash system it would be a blessing to us all. If we all had to pay cash we would learn to live within our means. It would save business men the expense of bookkeeping and the loss of bad debts all of which some one has to pay for. If our town could gradually work into a strictly cash system it would be better for us all.

Mr. J. L. Blakeslee of Atlanta, Ga., an expert mechanic, has charge of this section of South Carolina, as the Maxwell service man. Mr. Blakeslee came to Manning Monday night to adjust any trouble that buyers of Maxwell cars might be having with their cars, but as no trouble has developed, he seems to have an easy job. The Maxwell Motor Sales Co., employ competent mechanics to visit Maxwell dealers and keep the Maxwell cars in good shape.

Dr. Ellison Capers, of Summerton, brought to Manning yesterday some of his tobacco crop and received the highest prices that was paid on the Manning market. He sold with Cotran at the Central Warehouse. Dr. Capers got 12 cents per pound, and this is his first year in the tobacco business, which is proof conclusive that the lands around Summerton are well adapted to tobacco, for if the soil had not been well suited for the weed, he would have made an inferior grade.

If our memory serves us correctly, and we are right sure it does, there is an order to tobacco, for if the soil had not been well suited for the weed, he would have made an inferior grade. The streets without a rope. The street that the editor lives on, (we don't know the name of it) but cow alley would be quite appropriate, is a regular thorough fare for cows, and especially in the afternoon when a boy on horse-back takes possession of our sidewalk to bring his cattle home. "We would urge council to put a stop to this practice, as it is dangerous for children to play on the sidewalk, and it is bad for ladies too, unless their skirts are rather short."

Pay as you go. This is golden advice that will keep the business world moving, the wheels of industry from rusting out, and the money will surely come back to you. It should not be forgotten that the earth is round. Stand the people all in line and they will reach around the world, the last touching the first. Now pay your neighbor, and he will pay his neighbor on the right and so on the dollar will travel until it will come around again to your hand from your neighbor on the left. Try it. We make no charge for this receipt for the hard times.

It is not easy to learn to keep a household account book all at once. A young husband gave his wife a neat little account book prettily bound and designed to be inviting in appearance. He also gave her fifty dollars, and said: "I want you to put down what I give you on this side, and on the other write down the way it goes, and in two weeks later he asked for the book. "Oh, I have kept that account," said the young matron: "here it is," and on one page was inscribed: "Received from Fred Luy Dollars," and on the opposite was this summary, "Spent 'em all."

No town will become a good business center so long as its business men rely on a few merchants to make the effort to bring trade to town. Too often the men in a few lines of trade are about the only ones that reach out after custom. Other merchants wait until these men induce the people to come to town and content themselves with trade that naturally drifts to their place. A public spirited man should ask himself if he is doing his best to attract people to come to town to help in the entire business community and no town is a success unless all lines are working to extend the trade as far as possible and trying to bring a larger territory in the circles in which the town is the business center.

The Quinine That Does Not Affect The Head Because of its tonic and laxative effect, LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE is better than ordinary Quinine and does not cause nervousness nor ringing in head. Remember the full name and look for the signature of E. W. GROVE, 25c.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

The mind makes it and under the terms of the CONTINENTAL MORTGAGE COMPANY you can secure it at 6 per cent for any legal purpose approved real estate. Terms easy, tell us your wants and we will co-operate with you. 906-9 MUNSEY BLDG., Baltimore, Md.

Postponing Old Age. Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains, too free perspiration of strong odor and other symptoms are warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills make the kidneys strong and active. Dicksons Drug Store.—Adv.

We heard one of our young men making sport of religion in front of our office the other day. His moustache had just begun to sprout and judging from his talk his mental faculties were not as well developed as his moustache. During our brief stay upon earth we have seen many just such young men could in death. We have seen the atheist get after him he would instinctively regret what he said and look into the future with fear and trembling. When one stands before the open door of eternity his desire to scoff at religion vanishes. We admit there are bad men in the church, but even these black sheep in the flock might be blacker if they were outside. No young man, or old one either, should condemn the noble efforts of the army of Christian men and women are making toward bettering the condition of things, and whether we attend church or not but few of us would desire to live in a community where there was no church. Young men, in the future, if you must scoff at religion, please do so further from our office if you do not want to see your name in print.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This one is as much a stock in trade as the other and in large cities this is well understood and every bit of space in the city papers is well paid for. It is undoubtedly true that in some small places in the country, feeble newspapers yield to the kind of spangling referred to. In such places there are a few persons who think the whole newspaper establishment is at their back and command if they take one copy of the weekly paper.

Advertising is a legitimate part of a newspaper's stock in trade, and something to be paid for like any other commodity. Some persons in every community need education on this subject. The more rural the locality the more increased the ideas of the applicant and the more he feels at liberty to ask for free advertising that shall contribute to something which he is interested in. Thus it often happens that people will request a notice which they propose to make money, provided they can get the notice without paying for it. The chances are that the persons asking such favors of a newspaper have been misled by the circulars and their ticklers printed—not for nothing, however. They can understand that the advertising which the circulars and such affairs is paid for, but they do not fully comprehend why a newspaper should not notice and benefit their speculation without charging for it. These remarks are preliminary to the statement of a business principle which prevails in all regulated newspaper offices, and which is based on principle of equity. It is this: Whatever a newspaper publishes that is calculated to put money into the coffers of an individual or to further the interest of his business in any way, the newspaper is entitled to pay for its service. That is the long and short of the principle. A newspaper must have a revenue from its advertising just as much as the baker must have pay for his bread. This