It's fortunate for the Florence toppers that Taft always stays full of good humor.

If "prosperity is intoxicating" the Pee Dee farmers can carry a big load without staggering.

It's probable that Garlington, of Seminoles fame, is beginning to see what he missed in that Far-num jury.

The Charleston grand jury found "no bills" against the tigers, but that doesn't mean the tigers have no bills against some of the jurors.

The National Geographic Society wants the polar controversy settled, but there is no hope of a settlement until it has had a run in the lyceum courses.

Congress has made it unlawful to draw a check for less than $1.00 but if you owe us less than $1.00 send on the check anyway. We guarantee immunity in advance.

A magazine writer has said that as a rule newspaper men are the most unsuccessful politicians. The reason is, probably, because their ideals of government are too high.

"If editors could only serve on juries how just would verdicts be."—News and Courier. The editors would have a "cinch" but proof readers would have to work over-time.

There has been something doing in the way of organized capital in Marion county since January 1st. In the list recently published by Comptroller Jones it is shown that enterprises representing a total capitalization of over $1,250,000 have been organized in Marion county since the first of the year. Charleston leads the list with a total of $1,500,000, and Marion is second. This is a splendid showing. Watch the Pee Dee grow!

The Smith Family.

An old lady, traveling for the first time in a large city, saw a glaring sign on the front of a high building, which read: "The Smith Manufacturing Co."

As she repeated it aloud slowly she remarked to her nephew, "Laws 'a' mercy! Well, I've heard tell of Smiths all my life, but I never knew before where they made 'em."

A Substitute.

The young lawyer, having been nominated for the office of county attorney, thought to surprise an eccentric genius of the name of Si who was working as a hired man on the young lawyer's father's farm.

"Well, Si, what do you think?" the young man began.

"Sometimes one thing, Lonny, an' sometimes 'nothin'."

"But Si, they have nominated me for county attorney."

"They might 'a' done worse, Lonny. Howsomer, don't holler till your'e out of the woods."

The young attorney was duly elected and on his next visit to the farm announced the fact unctuously to Si, who was at the wood pile, saw in hand.

"Well, Si, I am elected by a large majority. What do you think of that?"

"Well, Lonny, down in our parts, where I was raised, when we wanted a stopper an' hadn't say cork we generally took a corn-cob."

James Henry Fore.

Born 4th Jan. 1832, died 21st August 1909. A native of Marion County, S. C. The second son and third child of Thomas and Rebecca (Gasque) Fore. Educated in the common schools of Marion County—reared and trained as a farmer, which he made the occupation of his life.

His home and farm were his universe, and there everything was well ordered and precise. His barn and smoke-house were never empty, and he was not annoyed by collecting agents.

At the commencement of the Confederate War he enlisted in the 23rd S. C. Regiment where he rendered faithful service to the close of hostilities. He was twice married: First to Miss Mary L. Kirvin to whom was born six children, only three of whom survive, to wit: Thomas E. Donnela and Mary Jane, all of whom are worthy members of society in their native county, and all parents of families. The second marriage was with Mrs. Henrietta (Lane) Brigman, to whom was born four children, of whom three survive to wit: Joe V., Nina and Rebecca. Joe V. and Rebecca are married but Miss Nina remains single, being the youngest of the children. The wife pre-deceased the husband by only a few years having been paralyzed prior to her death.

The oldest brother of H. J. Fore—Elly Fore—in early life went to Alabama to make his home, and although it is known that he raised a family there, little is known little here concerning them.

The second in family, Elizabeth Ann, became the wife of the late Co. E. T. Stackhouse, and was the mother of several sons of prominence in Marion County. The next younger brother, Thomas, went west and died there. Daniel died in a Yankee prison during the Confederate war. Rebecca Jane became the wife of Dr. W. W. Hamilton, a prominent and worthy citizen of the town of Marion, and a survivor of the Confederate War (in which none rendered more faithful service); and the mother of Dr. Thomas W. Hamilton now beginning his career in the home of his parents and ancestors. Rebecca Jane is now the only surviving member of this interesting family in Marion County, who (it may be parenthetically stated) has largely performed the part of a mother as well as a noble sister to the other brothers and sisters and also to the widowed father. It was at her home that J. H. Fore always sought comfort and rest during the declining days, and it was there he went to receive the last kind offices of earthly friends; there to her aged father lingered and died; there a younger sister, Miss Eugenia, made her home for many years, and during a long and painful illness was nursed until the time of her death; there a younger brother Willis Fore, was borne when crushed by a moving railroad train, and received the comforting care of this gentle sympathizing sister until he breathed his last; and it was the children Ed. M. Fore were taken for training and maintenance after his tragic death.

Tracy R. Fore, a younger brother, some years ago, moved with his family to the state of Florida.

A Personal Friend.

Tired of Feuds, Quits Kentucky.

Minneapolis, Oct. 8.—James H. Hatfield, of Cynthia, Ky., one of the last survivors of McCoy Hatfield feud in Kentucky and West Virginia, fleeing from the bullets that have begun to fly between the factions again, passed through Minneapolis on his way to a far off land thousands of miles from the hated McCoy's.

"I sold out the little grocery store in Cynthia, left enough money with the old woman and the children to keep them, and I'm going far away from Kentucky—to British Columbia—to begin life all over again," he said wistfully.

"The reason that I am leaving my native state is that the feud which we thought was over years ago, when most of the Hatfields and most of the McCoy's had been killed by each other, is that Jim McCoy has just shot to death another a distant relative of mine.

My wife couldn't eat or sleep for fear that I would be the next killed or would kill some McCoy who tried to kill me, so at 67 years of age I am on my way to make a new home for my family."

HIGHFILL-ROBERTS.

Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock at Mt. Andrew Church, one of the most beautiful weddings of the season took place, when Miss Sallie Willis Highfill, plighted her troth to Mr. E. Roland Roberts.

The Church was never more beautiful, it having been darkened and lighted by candles. The decorations were ively and golden-rod, banked with ferns and palms. The ushers, Messrs. F. M. Page and J. H. Stackhouse, marched slowly down the aisles and took their positions.

Under the arch H, first came Rev. W. B. Baker followed by Mrs. Jas. Berry, who gracefully presided at the piano. At the first note of Mendelssohn's Wedding March entered the four little ribbon bearers; Misses Evelyn Berry, Bessie Stackhouse, Thelma Hayes and Bessie Alford, each dressed in white and bearing white ribbon up the different aisles, followed by the attendants in the following order:

Miss Dora Page and Mr. Carl Bass, of Latta; Miss Alvenia Guthrie, of Burlington, N. C., and Mr. J. Martin Hayes of Page's Mills; Miss Winnie Moore and Mr. Le Grande Smith, of Latta; Miss Ethel Roberts and Mr. Couser Alford; Miss Viola Alford and Mr. Hal Moore.

The bridesmaids were dressed in dainty white batiste dresses and wore short veils held with golden-rod and carried bouquets of roses, golden-rod and ferns. The groomsmen wore the conventional black with white gloves. Then came the flower girls, little Misses Agnes Stackhouse and Penelope Berry, followed by the bride leaning on the arm of the dame of honor, Mrs. Ida Whyte of Greensboro, N. C., who was dressed in white batiste trimmed in baby Irish. The charming little bride never looked lovelier than she did in her soft white bridal robe of messaline with duchesse lace and veil with lilies of the valley and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and forgetmenots. Her only ornament was a beautiful pearl brooch, the gift of the groom. She was met at the altar by the groom, leaning on the arm of the best man, Mr. Marvin Roberts of Columbia. Mr. Baker in his usual effective manner spoke the mystic words of the impressive ceremony of the Methodist Church, and thus united the hearts and lives of these two popular young people. After the ceremony the bridal party retired from the Church under the arch "R" and drove to the home of the groom's father, Mr. Giles Roberts, where dainty refreshments in two courses were attractively served.

Misses Ethel and Nina Roberts served delicious fruit punch from a huge cut glass bowl, wreathed in ively and golden-rod.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Highfill, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stackhouse, with whom she has made her home for the past two years. Mr. Roberts is one of Zion's most prosperous farmers and is a young man of sterling worth. The many beautiful presents attest the popularity of the bride and groom who number their friends by the score.
