

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga.
 "I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings.
 "I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui.
 "Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out. Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition.
 In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health.

Success is man's god.—Eschylus.
How a Doctor Cured Scalp Disease.
 "When I was ten or twelve years old I had a scalp disease, something like scald head, though it wasn't that. I suffered for several months, and most of my hair came out. Finally they had a doctor to see me and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. They cured me in a few weeks. I have used the Cuticura Remedies, also, for a breaking out on my hands and was benefited a great deal. I haven't had any more trouble with the scalp disease. Miss Jessie F. Buchanan, R. F. D. 3, Hamilton, Ga., Jan. 7, 1909."

Kept With Barnum's Circus.
 P. T. Barnum, the famous circus man, once wrote: "I have had the Cuticura Remedies among the contents of my medicine chest with my shows for the last three seasons, and I can cheerfully certify that they were very effective in every case which called for their use."

GOOD ROADS

National Crusade.
 It has been suggested that the Good Roads Board of the American Automobile Association co-operate with the National Grange to hold thousands of good road meetings throughout the country—it being intended to hold at least one meeting in each of the 300 affiliated clubs of the American Automobile Association and one each in the thousands of affiliated bodies of the National Grange. The purpose of these meetings is to arouse public sentiment for the enactment of comprehensive highway laws by the various State Legislatures and the Federal Congress and the appropriating of liberal funds by town, county, State and Federal authorities.

Much has been said about the details of construction, but it is believed that these may safely be left to competent highway engineers, who should be employed to efficiently and economically supervise the expenditure of road appropriations. It is doubtful if the discussion at road conventions of the various types of road construction is of much value, as the time of such meetings could doubtless be more profitably expended in discussing in detail desirable highway legislation and the size of appropriations.

In order to create sentiment for comprehensive highway laws it is necessary that the advocates in any particular locality of such statutes clearly understand the kind of law desired, and be familiar with its details and assured that it is drawn to meet the conditions of the particular locality where it is urged.

A highway law of any State should provide for the improvement, maintenance and repair of every mile of highway in the Commonwealth outside cities and incorporated villages. Experience in some States has shown that it is wise to divide the highways into three classes, sometimes described as State, county and town roads, the State roads constituting approximately four per cent. of the total mileage and being those highways which connect the main centres of population of the several counties. These highways will be proportioned among the several counties, generally speaking, equally.

The second class, or county roads, to consist of the main market roads, which will constitute a properly developed system of roads within the county, taking into consideration their use for the purposes of common traffic and travel. Such roads will not be equally divided among the counties, and will comprise about six per cent. of the total mileage of the State. In the vicinity of cities these roads will be more numerous, as their mileage is largely governed by considerations of population, assessed valuation, etc.

The third classification of roads would be known as town or lateral roads and would comprise all of the highways not included in the first two classes.

The State should bear at least a portion of the expense of construction of all three classes in order that it may properly retain an interest and have supervision over same. The proportion which the State should be called upon to pay must of necessity depend upon the local conditions in the individual States.

In the State of New York the Commonwealth pays the entire cost of the State roads, approximately one-half of the cost of the county roads, and approximately one-third of the cost of the town roads, the county bearing approximately one-third of the cost of the county roads, and the remaining expense of all classes being borne by the town.

The cost of maintaining the State and county roads should be borne by the State, as in most localities it has been found impracticable to have these improved main lines repaired by the local officials, which is but another way of stating that it should be done by the State officials at State expense.

A State highway law should, it is believed, provide for the appointment of a highway commission, consisting of from one to three members. Each county should employ a county engineer or experienced highway official—that each town should secure the services of a practical road builder, that the responsibility for all of the work on all classes of roads should rest with the State Highway Commission, and that they should receive detailed reports from the county engineer and he in turn receive such reports from the town officials.

Climbing a Mountain on a Wire Rope.

By IVAN DUNKLEE.
 As the basket leaves the sheltering station, there is, for a moment, a feeling of helpless consternation; the die is cast, the firm earth is receding, and, as one looks at the awful heights to be scaled, the heart, for a moment, fails; but as irresistibly as fate the cable is slowly moving on, and there is no stopping. Ere one could ask to be let out, the basket has lifted up over the quivering aspens and gone out of sight of the station below. So there is nothing one can do but remember the consoling facts about the tested capacity of the cables and trust in the engineer. The first station one reaches informs one that the altitude is eleven thousand feet.—The World To-Day.

Breathing exercises were introduced in some Parisian schools not long ago, and beneficial results were soon manifested.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach
 A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.
 Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

Plymouth Rock Chickens.
 The Plymouth Rocks were the first American creation in poultry to receive public recognition. Years and years ago, there was in New England a common fowl referred to as the "hawk colored hen." They were grey with rather red wings and nearly black feathers. A Mr. Clark, who had some Black Cochins, which had been imported, tried the effect of mating his fowls with the hawk colored hens. Mr. Upham secured three of the lighter pullets and a cockerel and for several years strove to improve the markings and general type. In 1869 he showed them at Worcester, Mass., under the name of Plymouth Rocks. They created quite a sensation, not only for their appropriate size for table use and flying qualities, but for being the first real American creation they aroused and gratified national pride and every fancier tried to buy birds or eggs.
 Allow a flock of originally good birds of this breed to mate indiscriminately for three or four seasons and they will gradually lose their speckled Rock individuality and reproduce in blurred form many traits of the birds from which they spring, sometimes even the red feathers of the old "hawk colored hen."
