 A negro regiment, officered entirely by whites, had a West Point colonel who was very particular that all men should know who he was and pay him the respect due his position. Coming across a private who paid not the slightest attention to him, he swelled up with rage.
 "Look here, my man," he burst forth. "Don't you know who I am."
 "Nossuh," said the private cheerfully.
 "What? You mean to stand there and tell me you don't know your own commanding officer when you see him?"
 "Yessuh," explained the buck. "Yo' see, I ain't much fer pushin' mahself forward and I ain't been runnin' round with the ossifers none to speak of."

Smith-Blease Alliance Formed in Desperation As Political Expedient

POLITICS MAKES STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

A Direct Charge by George Warren and an Expose of Smith Tactics the People of South Carolina Should Know.

I charge a direct collusion between former Governor Cole L. Blease and Senator E. D. Smith to defeat me for the United States Senate.
 This alliance, made in utter desperation, was effected and put into operation as an eleventh hour effort to overcome the sentiment which had been created during the campaign in my favor.
 This campaign I was determined to make, and did make, without appeal to factionalism or factional prejudices. To demonstrate this fact, thousands of voters of both the so-called factions gave support to my candidacy.
 On August 18th, and signed by former Governor Blease, with his personal signature of "Cole," letters were prepared, pledging Mr. Blease's support to Senator Smith for re-election, and mailed out during subsequent days to reach the personal friends of the former governor as an eleventh-hour appeal to factionalism.
 This letter was circulated by hand as well as by through the mails, and used at the polls by workers for Smith.
 Acknowledging receipt of a letter from Mr. Blease, dated August 6th, Senator Smith, a few days later expressed in a communication to Mr. Blease his appreciation of the permission to use the Blease letter.
 During the time of the mailing out of the hundreds of letters, on the verge of the election, the reputed campaign manager of Senator Smith, District Attorney Francis H. Weston, a long and bitter enemy of Mr. Blease, whom the latter has repeatedly denounced, was a visitor to the office of Mr. Blease.
 The sequence of events leading up to the actual mailing out of the Blease letter need, in my opinion, no further explanation.
 Another method used in the desperate attempt to elect Senator Smith was the circulation around the polls of reports that I was a Bleaseite, these being circulated among strong anti-Blease men, and that I was running on a "wet" platform, financed by the liquor interests. This I charge, was a deliberate and premeditated distortion of facts.
 I am in the second race. The fight is on. My fists are doubled. I am in the fight. And I will win.
 GEORGE WARREN.

WHY THIS APPEAL TO FACTIONALISM EXCEPT TO SAVE SENATOR SMITH FROM DEFEAT

HERE IS SOME MORE—HOW IT WAS WORKED:
 (Letters, Telegrams and Affidavits have been received from every section of the State showing that tactics similar to those mentioned in the following letter were employed by supporters of Smith).

Mr. George Warren,
 Columbia, S. C.
 Dear George:
 Numerous campaign lies were circulated on you all over this part of the State at the last minute, and it looks like this was intentional, so you could not answer. One was that you were against prohibition, but it strikes me that the one and best plan, and the most damaging in its effect, was planned and framed up by Blease, and Smith, or their friends; for Blease wrote to every friend he had in this part of the State, and I imagine he did the same thing all over the State, saying that he did not think a new senator could do anything for the people, and to vote for Smith. This was signed, "Yours in Love, Cole." Then the day of the election couriers were out all over the county to say that you were a Bleaseite, so you can clearly see that the plan was to get the Bleaseites, though Blease influenced direct by letter to vote for Smith, and then circulated the report at the last minute, without a chance for you to answer, that you were a Bleaseite and that those who hated Blease would vote against you and for Smith, thereby giving Smith Blease votes as well as anti-Blease votes. Now if you want them I can give you more than one letter that was sent to people at Olar, and also to other parts of the county.
 Yours truly,
 (Signed) C. F. RIZER.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING
 Honorable Cole L. Blease,
 Columbia, S. C., Aug. 9, 1920.
 Dear Sir:
 Upon my return from Lynchburg I found your letter of August 6. I have read it very carefully and fully appreciate the motive that prompted it. I also appreciate your kind permission to use it. I thank you very much for your expression as to my candidacy.
 Very sincerely yours,
 (Signed) E. D. SMITH.

The 36,000 Warren votes were gotten on the merit of the man and on the issues of the Campaign, not by Political Trickery, not by Compromise, nor through Appeal that would invoke the slumbering spirit of the Old Factionalism, the old Animosities and the Bitterness of the past of a Darker Day in South Carolina.
 Let us turn our faces, we who are men, we who believe in fair play and open dealing in politics as well as in business and in our social intercourse, let us turn our faces to the dawn of the new day and meet the issues squarely, honestly, courageously. It lies plainly before us. It will be determined in the second primary on Tuesday, September 14. It is simply whether, to save one man's political fortunes, the electorate of South Carolina will approve of and become a party to the compromise made and the tactics employed.
 I did not start this revival of factionalism, but I expect to be in on the finish of the fight in victory, because I shall carry on with a clean fight to the end.
 GEORGE WARREN.
 NEITHER SENATOR SMITH NOR MR. WESTON SAY IN THEIR STATEMENTS AS PUBLISHED IN THE PAPERS ANYTHING THAT CONSTITUTES A DENIAL OF THE FACTS AS I HAVE LAID THESE BEFORE THE PUBLIC.
 (I caution my friends against further eleventh-hour frame-ups, reports or denials of this statement.)

What Senator E. D. Smith Stands for and What he Has Done in Congress

"No man dares question the war record of South Carolina's Senior Senator, E. D. Smith, during the war emergency."
 He is the greatest authority on cotton, and cotton production in the United States Senate today. His advice and utterances on cotton are closely watched by Wall Street. So much so that the cotton gamblers and speculators of the North are fighting him for his advocacy of the cause of the Southern white farmer, and labor in general.

SOME OF THE THINGS HE HAS DONE:

- He is the author or the exponent of:
 The Cotton Futures Act, passed by Congress regulating the grades of cotton and restraint on the cotton gamblers and speculators.
- The cotton farmers and truck farmers are indebted to him for his untiring effort, in having inserted in the Federal Reserve Banking Act as a basis of credit cotton warehouse receipts.
- Nitrate of Soda is essential to the farmers of this State. His untiring work along with others brought this product to the farmers during the war at cost, and released abundance of nitrates as soon as the armistice was signed.
- He fought for the Federal Land Banks and had one of these banks located in our own State.
- He fought to restrict undesirable foreign immigration to keep down competition from the low classes of Southern Europe in the cotton mills and industrial establishments, so that the native workman would not have his wages lowered. LABOR WILL STAND BY HIM.

WHAT SENATOR SMITH IS:

He is South Carolina's most influential and experienced man in Congress today. He becomes head of the great Agricultural Committee of Congress by reason of the recent defeat of Senator Gore of Oklahoma.
 He is the only Simon Pure Farmer in the United States Senate, and the only representative of the southeastern States on the Agricultural Committee of which he will be the head.
 If South Carolina wants an influential man in Washington, Senator Smith will be re-elected. A vote cast for him is a vote cast for the best interests of the entire South.
 Senator Smith will be elected next Tuesday, because it is to the best interests of South Carolina to re-elect him.
