There were 118 civil and 73 criminal cases on the Lincoln court docket.

Roswell is rapidly recovering from the big fair, and will soon be herself again.

New Mexico is now fifty-three years old. Is it not about time that she was allowed a vote?

It takes twenty-five columns of the Socorro Chieftain to print the delinquent tax list of the county.

A consumptive came to Roswell last year with just one lung. He has three lungs now. He married the other two.

As far as paper is concerned the D. D. & W. is well started. Here is hoping that it may make the same progress on "terra firma."

New Mexico is not very wild but she is woolly. Last year the Territory produced twenty-two million of pounds of wool, and this amount will be exceeded this year. New Mexico is not all wool, but she has plenty of fibre.

"A newspaper whose columns overflow with advertisements of business men has more influence in attracting attention and building up a town than any other agency that can be employed. People go where there is business. Capital and labor go where there is an enterprising community. No power on earth is so strong to build up a town as a paper well patronized, and its power should be appreciated. The man who overlooks his town paper injures himself by injuring his town and townsmen."—John Wanamaker.

"The twentieth century will be known as the age of irrigation of gardens and orchards. The benefactors will be those who discover or develop a new root, fruit or food. He who finds a new vegetable or new apple is greater than he who invents a new dynamite, a new gun or battleship. I would rather develop a new Jonathan, a W. Esay, a Baldwin, or even a Ben Davis than be senator or win a great battle. The man who gave us the Early Rose or Burbank potato has done a hundredfold more than the astronomer who finds a new star, or the explorer who plants a flag at the north pole."—Ex-Gov. Adams of Colorado.

Will He?

If the president is disposed to keep political faith with the people of this judicial district and to show a due regard to their interests, he will appoint one from among us to the vacant judgeship. If, however, he is willing to make manifest that the home-rule plank of the Republican national platform was mere buncombe and that the interests of some eastern party servant are to be considered of greater moment than those of the people of the district, then he may with some show of reason appoint a stranger to preside over our courts.—Socorro Clipper.

A Big Show.

What promises to be one of the big events of the season is the forthcoming visit to this city of Norris and Rowe's Big Shows. Beyond question, there is not an amusement institution in America that has such a hold on the public favor as these big moral shows. The rise of this great enterprise is phenomenal. It is now the largest and best.

The past season was a record-breaker. In San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake, Denver, Kansas City, Duluth, Chicago, New York and New Orleans hundreds were turned away at every performance and its tour was one continuous ovation.

The press and public were unanimous in declaring it to be the brightest and best show of its kind in existence, and it made an undying name for itself and its hustling progenitors. The career of Norris and Rowe illustrate the typical thrift, integrity of purpose, ingenuity of representative western men. Their success has nearly all been achieved in the west and western ideas of honesty and fair dealing have gained for them a fair reputation that is as carefully preserved as it is well merited. Among the new animal acts which will be presented this year are the trained Llamas, camels, buffaloes, elephants, seals and sea lions in startling, new wonderful features, in addition to the animal acts, a complete company of circus gymnasts and acrobats have been added so that taken all in all they will give as complete a performance as one could wish to witness.

They will exhibit here in Roswell Friday, October 16th.

Le Roy Out on Bond.

E. H. Le Roy, the young man who was arrested five months ago, charged with stealing horses and has since been in jail here, was released on bond yesterday afternoon. His uncle came to his rescue and sent money to square up his debts and to indemnify his bond.

The bond was reduced from $500 to $200. E. A. Cooch, cashier of the First National bank, signed the bond.

Le Roy is a handsome young man and physically is a fine specimen of manhood. He has an excellent face, that is but anything suggestive of a criminal, and his manners are those of a Chesterfield.

If he had been kept in jail and convicted the shortest term he could have received in Santa Fe would have been one year and this would only serve to harden him and wreck his life. As it is now, there will possibly be no prosecution and he can leave for parts unknown, start life afresh and make a man of himself, which he is capable of doing.

He is just 21 years of age and still claims that he did not intend to steal the horse and it is kinder to let it go at that.

Everyone seems to be glad that the young man has secured his release.

WANTED—By man and wife, position on ranch. Wife will act as tutor for children.

KELLAHIN

Will save you money if you are looking for a profitable investment. If none of the above propositions catch your eye, don't let the matter drop. Call around at my office in rear of First National Bank building.

Tagliani as Mrs. Carlyle Saw Her. In the "New Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle" is the following quaint and caustic comment on Tagliani:

"I saw a very curious sight the other night, the only one I have been to for a long time—viz, some thousands of the grandest and most cultivated people in England, all gazing in ecstasy and applauding to death over a woman, not even pretty, balancing herself on the extreme point of one great toe and stretching the other foot high into the air, much higher than decency ever dreamt of. It was Tagliani, our chief dancer at the opera, and this is her chief feat, repeated over and over to weariness—at least to my weariness. But duchesses were flinging bouquets at her feet, and not a man, except Carlyle, who did not seem disposed to fling himself. I counted twenty-five bouquets! But what of that? The empress of all the Russias once in a fit of enthusiasm flung her diamond bracelet at the feet of this same Tagliani—"virtue its own reward" (in this world)? Dancing is and singing and some other things still more frivolous. But for virtue? It may be strongly doubted, as Edinburgh people say to everything one tells them."

Policemen of the Seas.

Revenue cutters are the policemen of the high seas. They have regular beats to patrol along the coast, looking for vessels in distress, suppressing smuggling, illicit seal hunting and mutinies. They also enforce quarantine regulations, examine ships' papers, supply lighthouses and act as life savers, ambulance corps, fire department and messenger boys generally for the government at sea.

The first revenue cutters were built at the order of Alexander Hamilton when he was secretary of the treasury, and except in war time, when they are subject to the authority of the navy, they are still under treasury department orders. Strange to say, however, it is in times of peace that revenue cutters fight their hardest battles. They save many lives and property that is estimated at many millions yearly. Their name gives little idea of the great and varied service they render the country.

He Met His Match.

The Russian marshal Suvaroff was famous as a jester and was fond of confusing the men under his command by asking them unexpected and absurd questions. But occasionally he met his match. Thus, one bitter January night, such as Russia only can produce, he rode up to a sentry and demanded:

"How many stars are there in the sky?"

The soldier, not a whit disturbed, answered coolly:

"Wait a little, and I'll tell you." And he deliberately commenced counting, "One, two, three," etc.

When he had reached 100, Suvaroff, who was half frozen, thought it high time to ride off, not, however, without inquiring the name of the ready reckoner. Next day the latter found himself promoted.

Peculiar Twins.

A Harlem mother who has twins and is perforce obliged to study the peculiarities of the species affirms that never has she punished one of them—they are both boys—for a misdeed but that the other committed the identical offense at the very first opportunity.

Moreover, if one asks a question, especially in regard to an unusual happening, in the absence of the other his brother almost invariably repeats the query and very frequently in the same phraseology.

Her twins are not bad boys, but the mother says that she is satisfied of the fact that twins require as much attention and make as much noise as four ordinary children.—New York Times.

Wounds of the Heart.

In wounds of the heart itself the escape of blood is never in large quantity, and the lethal consequences are due to the fact that the escape of blood from within its cavity or cavities into the surrounding sac of the pericardium mechanically interrupts the alternate contraction and expansion by which its pumping action is maintained. Accordingly the results of the wound of the heart are usually identical with those of gradual suffocation.—American Medicine.

One Thing Unbroken.

Standing over the shattered remains of their last Dresden china statuette, the exasperated mistress said to the awkward servant:

"Is there anything you haven't broken since you have been with me?"

"Yes, mum," replied the servant. "I have yet to break me record for destructiveness."—Baltimore American.

His Revenge.

He—And so your answer is final. You will not be mine?

She—Never! But pray don't go and blow your brains out.

He—It would be an idle attempt. People say if I had any brains I never should have proposed to you.

Testing It.

"Say, old man, let's go out and have a big time tonight."

"What are you celebrating?"

"I've just thought out a new excuse to mention to my wife."—Harper's Bazar.

A Clear Case.

She—I've noticed Dr. Singleton calling at the house of that young widow almost every day. She must be pretty ill.

He—Not ill; only pretty.

It is better to write one word upon the rock than a thousand on the water and the sand.—Gladstone.
