Democratic in Politics.

H. F. M. BEAR, Editor

Entered May 19, 1903, at Roswell, New Mexico, under the act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

THE RECORD to-day prints the Governor's proclamation as an official publication.

The D. D. & W. representatives are expected in Roswell during the next ten days.

The Chamber of Commerce will hold an important meeting next Monday night.

Doublestatehood continues to throw the newspapers of Arizona into violent convulsions.

Many a locality would gladly pay a high premium for a chunk of this New Mexican climate.

The Harvest excursions this fall will again bring an increased number of tourists in our Valley.

Delegate Rodey has not appeared in a column interview for a day or two. Our delegate must be ill.

The surveying party to the west of us is not making much noise but it is still approaching at the rate of two miles a day, and will be here this month.

If you don't want to live in a city you will have to move about a mile and a half or more from the intersection of Fifth and Main. THE RECORD office has the distinction of being just about right in the center of the city-to-be.

The best Territorial fair New Mexico has known will open in Albuquerque Monday next; Albuquerque knows how to do things. Like Roswell she goes in for blood. And this year, the entire Territory is helping to make the fair a success. This is as it should be.

Remember that Roswell must have more sidewalks and better light before Uncle Sam will consider our application for free mail delivery. Your Uncle Sam not only demands good walks and plenty of them, but good light as well, before he will allow his uniformed carriers to parade our streets.

The Union in Politics.

"Throwing down the gauntlet to the president, on the open-shop principle, would be the silliest move labor could make. If the right of unions to run the United States government became an issue, not only would the president's vote next autumn be increased, but the overwhelming victory would imply a check by the nation to union impudence. The declaration that Mr. Roosevelt is 'unfriendly,' because he says that in government employment union and non-union men are equals, proceeds on the assumption that friendliness means partiality. This government has no more right to maltreat a man because he is outside of unions, than it would maltreat him because he was no Presbyterian. We have always believed in unions, and we do still, although some of them are putting their friends to hard tests lately by their lack of sense.

"To 'swelled head' the labor power is no more immune than capital is. Its head just now seems hardly reasonable. Soon it may seek control of fire departments and police. If it tries to control the government it may be put out of business altogether. We endure the pecuniary loss inflicted on the community by the squabbles of capital and labor, hoping justice may be the gainer in the end, but a declaration that the government employ only union labor would be treated with just as much respect as a declaration that it should appoint to high office only millionaires.

"Several Chicago manufacturers are about to move, on account of labor troubles in that perturbed centre. The resources of the country are not being used to the full. Capital, large and small, is becoming timid. So be it. That is a matter of profit and loss, to be pondered by both sides, and settled on economic grounds, at whatever cost.

"If labor knows its welfare, it will remain on economic ground, and not ask the nation at the polls to vote on making union men a favored class. Any political party which sought the labor vote on such a plea would enter the campaign with a full assurance of defeat. This is not a government of the people by or for the unions."—Collier's Weekly.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

An Arizona Mining Firm Wants to Invest Half Million Dollars in Pecos Valley.

A. J. Hill of the Roswell Wool & Hide Company has received a letter from a prominent mining firm in Arizona and who have a half million dollars surplus to invest and they are anxious to put it in Pecos Valley orchards. They ask several questions in the letter and Mr. Hill will be very thankful to any who will furnish him the information. The name of the firm is not given out as Mr. Hill thinks our real estate men will write the firm a thousand letters. A portion of the letter is given herewith:—

ARIZONA,

October 2, 1903.

A. J. Hill, Esq.,

Roswell, N. M.

Dear sir:—

We have no gotten our plans completed yet where we figured on taking up some investments in that section of the country. A part of my men are ready but some are not. I am working with that view all the time, as soon as we can arrange our financial affairs, to make considerable investments in that section of the country.

What success has there been with apple raising? What prices do they get? What will it pay per acre? How many years does it take for them to be on paying basis? Has there ever been a failure in the apple crops since you have been there, if so what years have failed? Is there very much stock raising on the alfalfa in the way of fine cattle and hogs? There were a few starting when I was there six years ago, but I had understood up to that time they had never had a failure in the apple crops.

What will it cost an acre to take up the low lands and get title to it, get artesian water and carry it through until the apples bear?

Yours very truly,

Mexican Supper.

The ladies of the Home Missionary Society in connection with R. M. Parson's Sunday school class intend to give a Mexican supper at the hospitable home of Mrs. James Sutherland on Thursday evening, October 15th. The supper will consist entirely of straight Mexican dishes, and the time will be from 7 o'clock until all the supper is eaten.

The proceeds will go to church purposes. Notice is given thus early of the supper so that the general public may be in attendance.

Child Broke Her Arm.

Lucile, the ten year old daughter of Lucius Dills, broke her right arm above the elbow yesterday afternoon in front of her home on N. Pennsylvania avenue. There were four little girls on a horse and the cinch broke and all of them fell off; three of them were bruised and the little Dills child received a very bad fracture of the arm. A physician was hastily called and rendered the proper medical attention.

The Antiquity of the Ballet.
Strictly defined, the ballet is properly a theatrical exhibition of the art of dancing in its highest perfection, complying generally with the rules of the drama as to its composition and form. It was in existence in Italy as far back as A. D. 1500, the court of Turin in that day making especial use of it and the royal family and nobles taking part in it. The ballet was first introduced in France in the reign of Louis XIII., and both that monarch and Louis XIV. occasionally took part in its dances.

In its earliest presentation the ballet appeared dexterously in combination with the other theatrical acts and is said to have "completed the chaotic medley exhibited in these spectacles, which were at once mythological, allegorical, fantastic, warlike and pastoral." The reader will not be slow to observe that its development in the present day has not apparently lost sight of these conditions.

About the year 1700 women made their first appearance in the ballet, which up to that time had been performed exclusively by men, as was the case also with plays and operas, but no woman ballet dancer of any note appeared until 1790.

Comets and Women.
The analogy between comets and women once formed the subject of the following peroration from an evening contemporary: "Comets doubtless answer some wise and good purpose in the creation; so do women. Comets are incomprehensible, beautiful and eccentric; so are women. Comets shine with peculiar splendor, but at night are most brilliant; so are women. Comets are enveloped with a lucid nebula through which their forms are visible; so are those of women in their light and elegant attire. Comets confound the most learned when they attempt to ascertain their nature; so do women. Comets equally excite the admiration of the philosopher and of the clod of the valley; so do women. Comets and women are therefore closely analogous, but, the nature of each being inscrutable, all that remains for us to do is to view with admiration the one and to love the other to adoration."—Golden Penny.

Menelek and the Missionary.
A story is told of an attempt made by a Swedish missionary to obtain a foothold in Abyssinia. No sooner had he begun to preach than he was brought before King Menelek, who asked him why he had left his home in Scandinavia in order to come to Abyssinia. The missionary promptly replied that he had come to convert the Abyssinian Jews. "Are there no Jews in your country?" asked Menelek. The missionary admitted that there were a few. "And in all the countries that you have passed through did you find no Jews or heathens?" the king continued. "Jews and heathens," the missionary admitted, "are plentiful." "Then," said Menelek, "carry this man beyond the frontier and let him not return until he has converted all the Jews and heathen which lie between his country and mine."

An Arab Legend.
"There is none so poor but there is one poorer."
A poor Arab spent his last bar on a handful of dates and went up on a high cliff to eat them and die. As he threw the stones over a lean hand shot out below and caught them.
"Ho!" said he. "Why do you catch my date stones?"
"Because, O brother," answered a weak voice, "I have not eaten these three days, and Allah has sent these stones to save my life."
"Praise be to Allah," answered the first man, "for he has saved me also, for here is one poorer than I."
And both men went into the city.

Malleable Glass of the Egyptians.
Strabo and Josephus both affirm that the Egyptian glass workers were so well skilled in their art that they imitated the amethyst and other precious stones to perfection. Malleable glass was one of the secret arts of the ancients, the formula for making it being now reckoned as lost. Strabo mentions a cup of glass which could be hammered into any desired shape, the material of which it was composed being as ductile as lead.

Too Much Argument.
Dar's a good deal in argument, but it can also be overdone. As long as Uncle Moses believed in sulphur and brimstone he let my cabbages strictly alone. When I had argued him into believing that no such place existed he cleaned out my truck patch in one night.—Detroit Free Press.

The Difference.
Miss Languish—Mercy! You don't mean to say you destroy all your love letters? I save mine religiously.
Miss Pertly—Of course; but, then, you know it makes a difference where one has only a few.—Boston Transcript.

His Mission.
"Yes," said the would be poet, "I started as office boy for an editor. I used to help empty wastebaskets."
"Indeed!" said the girl who had seen some of his effusions, "and now I suppose you help fill them?"—Philadelphia Record.

Misunderstood.
"Sir, you look like an optimist. You have a happy countenance. Lend me a dollar."
"My friend, do you know why I look happy? It's because I haven't any wealth to bother me."—Exchange.

A critic in noticing a disclosure on "The Sayings and Doings of Great Men" remarks, "It is sad to observe how much they said and how little they did."
