McGONIGLE AND CARROLL.

The Albuquerque Journal's Account of Their Victory.

The big cowboy tournament is now over and Clay McGonigle, the Pecos Valley champion, with the aid of the best cow horse in the territory, his marvelous skill with the lariat and good luck has again carried off the big purse in the steer roping contest.

The winner of the rough riding contest was Pat Hughes, from near Magdalena. He carries off the $500 purse. Curtis Jackson gets the second money, Dan Sie third and Clay Nichols fourth. The judges decided that considering all things the viciousness of the bronches, the length of time they bucked and how vigorously they did it, and the way the men stuck in the saddle these men were entitled to the money in the order named. The crowd had a fine opportunity to witness the exhibition given by Pat Hughes, as his broncho yesterday scraped the fence in front of the grand stand all the way down the line and more than once sent the crowd rolling back when he showed signs of jumping the fence. Pat did not bother with a bridle and altogether the people who witnessed his performance concur in the opinion of the judges.

McGonigle gets first money for roping, amounting to $500. His time was 38 1-2 seconds. J. E. Carroll, of Roswell, gets the second purse of $250, having roped and tied in 46 1/2 seconds. Kelly Phillips is awarded third place and his record of fifty seconds gives him $100. Allen Barkdale, of Deming, gets the fourth money, $50, with a record of one minute and four and one-half seconds.

Clay McGonigle, the winner of the $500 purse in the steer roping tournament left last night for his home in Carlsbad. J. E. Carroll, who got second money in the same contest, left on the same train for Roswell, accompanied by his family.

Dan Sie of Roswell went sailing after an enormous white steer that seemed to go about twenty feet every jump, the fastest animal of all the horned racing stock in the corral. Sie's horse could not keep with in shouting distance of the steer and the one throw made by the rider missed.

Earl Carroll, of Roswell, on McGonigle's big sorrel horse, caught the quarry by one horn the first throw and missed altogether on the second so he made no record.

BOUGHT WILLINGHAM PLACE.

J. W. Ewing of Cleburne, Texas, the Purchaser.—Consideration $7,000

J. H. Ewing bought the Willingham place yesterday through L. J. Beard, and left on last evening's train to take possession of same. Consideration, $7,000 cash. Mr. Ewing came here about four months ago from Cleburne, Texas, and was formerly a merchant in that city. He says, "I have been looking around for some time, and the Willingham proposition was the best I could find. There are forty acres in the place, with twenty in orchard. There are about two thousand trees and there will be about one thousand bushels of apples this season. The place is a half mile from Hagerman and the sale includes residence property, stock, apple crop, hogs, chickens, dogs, cats, and in fact everything but the household furniture." Price $3,500.

Landed on Their Heads.

J. B. Blea and Frank Santana, two of the clerks at the Famous, started to drive home Tuesday night and the horse ran away and threw both of them out at the corner of First and Main. Both of them landed on their heads, and the left side of Mr. Santana's head was bruised. Mr. Blea's forehead was badly bruised and a portion of his hair was torn out.

It is said that there will be a change in the Pecos Valley railroad schedule. Mr. Chris. Totten, of Kentucky, has purchased Mr. Clayton's interest in the Roswell Planing mill, and takes charge at once. Mr. Totten has had a lifetime experience in the planing mill business and comes to Roswell highly recommended.

A SLEEP FANTASY.

The Confusion and Absurdities That Come to Us in Dreams.

If you would know what stuff dreams are made of, read the following description of a sleep fantasy from F. Marion Crawford's novel, "Cecelia." Sometimes in meandering through a maze of absurdities in which we feel as madmen must, believing ourselves to be others than ourselves.

Conceiving the laws of nature to be reversed for our advantage or our ruin, seeing right as wrong and wrong as right in the pathetic innocence of the idiot or the senseless rage of the maniac, convinced beyond all argument that the absolutely impossible is happening before our eyes, yet never in the least astonished by any wonders, though subject to terrors we never feel when we are awake. Has no one ever understood that confused dreaming must be exactly like the mental state of the insane? Inanimate things turn into living creatures, the chair we sit on becomes a horse, the armchair is turned into a wild beast, and we ride a-hunting through endless drawing rooms, which are full of trees and undergrowth, till the trees are suddenly turned into people, who dance and laugh at us because we have come to the ball in attire so exceedingly scanty that we wonder how the servants could have let us in.

Stow's Celebrated Monkfish.

One of the nightmares of John Ashton's "Curious Creatures of Zoology" is the monkfish, or sea monk, he being indebted to both Aldrovandus and Stow for his account. If the old writers are reliable, these monsters were quite common in the North sea, the British channel and along the Irish coast up to the year 1414, when they are said to have become extinct through the ravages of a plague similar to that which was affecting men at about the same time. The superstitious of those days believed that they were priests or monks who had been cursed for some crime and condemned by God to an endless life beneath the waves. Stow's account of one caught in 1187 is as follows: "He had the shape of a man in all points and was kept in the castle at Oxford by the keeper thereof. All manner of raw meats he did gladly eat; but more greedily of raw fishes, after that he had crushed out all moisture. Often he was brought to the church, but showed no signs of reverence, and at length, when not well looked to, he stole away to the sea and was never seen again after."

Aerobatic Soldiers.

Clever and skillful is a feat which is frequently performed by Italian soldiers. Foreigners generally suppose that it forms part of their drill, as they never perform it except when they are in uniform, but it is really one of a series of gymnastic exercises which Italian soldiers have for many years been accustomed to practice after their regular drill is over. The feat consists in piercing an object with the point of a sword while the swordsman is in a most abnormal position. That it is not easy to do this can readily be imagined. Indeed a soldier must practice steadily for months before he can feel sure of reaching the mark. Whether the skill which he thus acquires will ever be of any practical use to him is doubtful; but, as it is rather a pastime than a military exercise, the soldiers never think of asking themselves this question.

Stone That Bends.

"Firm as a rock," "unbending as flint," are phrases often used; but, as a matter of fact, there is a sort of stone that is as flexible as wooden fiber. It is of course very rare, and the few specimens known are now in museums. One of the finest is in the Hartley Institution, in Southampton, England, having been found near Delhi, India. It is lathlike in shape, about an inch thick and two feet long. It is a particularly flexible specimen and can with the hands be curved several inches from the horizontal; otherwise it is hard and mineral-like, having the grain of ordinary gray sandstone.

Powerful Effect of Pure Saccharin.

Saccharin should never be taken in a pure state. Some idea of its power will be conveyed when it is understood that one part of it will give a very sweet taste to 10,000 parts of water. Tasted in too large a quantity it acts upon the nerves in such a way as to paralyze the sense of taste, just as powerful music stuns or deadens the auditory nerves or a bright light acts upon the optic nerves.

Heart Failure.

"Terrible thing happened to Bill in the poker game last night."
"What was it?"
"Heart failure."
"You don't mean it?"
"Yes; he held four hearts and drew one card; got a spade."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Successful Experiment.

"Mabel married that awfully dissipated young Flutterby to reform him."
"And is she satisfied with her choice?"
"I should say she is! His uncle died last week and left him half a million."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Diamonds.

When Lord Randolph Churchill visited the diamond fields of South Africa, while looking at a huge parcel of diamonds he remarked, "All for the vanity of woman." A lady who heard the remark added, "And the depravity of man."

The first American newspaper was Public Occurrences. It appeared in Boston in 1689 and was promptly suppressed by the government of the colony.

George C. Morton and J. B. Roach of Big Springs, Texas, were in the city yesterday and left on last evening's train for their home. They have invested in Pecos valley real estate and will return with their families in the near future and locate permanently.

City Engineer W. M. Reed, who was one of the delegates at large to the Irrigation convention at Albuquerque, was delighted with the trip. He says, "It was one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the kind ever held in New Mexico. The men who took part were among the most prominent in the territory."

Thos. B. Catron of Santa Fe was elected president; Ex-Governor L. B. Prince, vice president; C. W. Ward of Las Vegas, secretary, and R. E. Twitchell of Las Vegas was elected chairman of the executive committee. He will canvass the territory in the interest of the permanent organization of the Irrigation Congress of New Mexico, and promises the territory the strongest organization of the kind in the entire west. The next meeting will be held at Las Vegas a week or ten days prior to the meeting of the National Congress at El Paso. All of the proceedings of the recent meeting are to be published in pamphlet form, and will be generally circulated throughout the territory. Some of the papers read were of sufficient importance that the Historical Society of New Mexico asked for copies to be put on record."

SAFE OPENING TOOLS.

Implement of Which Burglars Never Even Get a Glimpse.

"We have tools for opening safes," said the foreman of the machine room of a safe factory, "that no burglar could imitate even if he got them. But it would be one of the most difficult things in the world for him to get even a sight of them. The tool room is guarded as closely as a bank vault. A watchman stays in it all night. We are very careful about employing our men. They must give bonds and have the best of references. The chance of a burglar getting into our employ for the purpose of learning our methods is scarcely worth thinking about."

"Very frequently we have hurry calls for a man to open a safe where the time clock has gone askew or where the clerk has forgotten the combination. You can readily imagine that with a bank or trust company it is an essential thing to have the safe open before business begins. When we send a man out he takes a wagon load of tools, for he must open the safe without ruining the lock, and he does not know precisely what the trouble is. He carries a photograph of himself with our credentials on it. Nor will he open the safe while alone. Some bank official must remain with him, no matter how long the job takes. That is for our own protection. Some very queer alleged robberies have been charged to men sent out to open safes."

"To mechanics in our business it is laughable to read that a full kit of burglars' tools has been found beside a safe. As I have said, it would require an express wagon to carry them, and burglars don't work that way. If they care to take chances by blowing up a safe with dynamite it is another matter; but those fellows nearly always get caught."

"A police officer told me that burglars make their own tools. The big crooks are all spotted and are afraid to go out and buy the material for them. Some of them send their wives and children."—Philadelphia Ledger.

POULTRY POINTERS.

The best way to feed corn to young chickens is cracked or crushed.

A good dust bath will go far toward keeping fowls in good condition.

Clear, raw corn meal wet with water is not a good feed for young ducklings at any time.

Destroy the nest of a sitting hen as soon as the chickens are a day old. Give her a new nest and burn the old one.

Separated early and raised up by themselves, pullets are worth at least 25 per cent more for use than if allowed to run with a lot of cockerels.

On the farm if more than one breed is kept it is necessary that they be kept separate, and one or the other must be kept confined part of the time.

It is important to keep the young turkeys dry until they are about eight weeks old, and even then they should be strong and well developed. Dampness is almost always fatal to young turkeys.

Religious Training of Japanese.

Little or no importance is attached to the religious training of Japanese children. Whether the parents be Buddhists or Shintoists it matters not, for in either case the children rarely take any part in the religious life of their parents or elders, and indeed usually grow up in blissful ignorance as to what it is all about. True, they may occasionally be taken to the temple and taught to rub their palms together, clap thrice and incline their heads toward the shrine as they toss their offering of rice through the wooden grating of the huge money till. They may have some vague notion that there is something meritorious in all this, but nothing more, although every Japanese home has a latticed niche, or kamidana, dedicated to the service of the household Lares and Penates, or Daikoku and Ebisu as they appear in Japan.

No Reptiles in Newfoundland.

Everybody knows that there are no snakes in Ireland, but very few know that Newfoundland is just like Ireland in that respect, and there is no record that Newfoundland had a St. Patrick to drive the snakes off either. There is plenty of game in Newfoundland, but not a reptile of any kind—snake, toad, frog, lizard or even turtle. Another queer thing about the province is that while some wild animals are abundant there no one ever saw a squirrel, porcupine, mouse or lynx anywhere within its boundaries. This is all the more singular because the adjoining provinces of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton have all these animals and many kinds of snakes and other reptiles.

An Achievement.

"I don't see why you should be so proud of winning that case," said the intimate friend. "You were plainly in the wrong."
"You don't understand these things at all," answered the lawyer. "That's the very thing that makes me so proud."—Exchange.
