THE PLANTING AND CARE OF TREES.

(Address of Wyatt Johnson at the Farmers Institute Friday afternoon, Feb. 14.)

This should be the first, and is one of the most important considerations for the person intending to develop land anywhere, but especially so in the Pecos Valley, where results are so satisfactory, because of our system of irrigation, our continual sunshine, and soil particularly adapted to certain varieties of fruit trees as well as shade trees and shrubs.

In planting an apple orchard, the first thing to be considered is the distance to plant trees. Twenty-five by thirty feet the short way, north and south, is, in my estimation, certain of best results. However, the distances should be varied some, according to the kinds planted. Some varieties require more sunlight to color the fruit than others. Also, there is a difference in the size of trees.

The Arkansas Black, which is about one-third of the planting this year, grows rapidly, and to a large size, and therefore should be planted farther apart. The Missouri Pippin, which is about one-fourth of present planting, is the reverse. But with proper care the two can be equalized with very profitable results.

Fertilize the Missouri Pippin; this will force the growth of wood and lessen the supply of fruit buds, enlarge the size of the fruit and keep the trees from over-bearing. Prune heavily while dormant. If the trees seem to still over-bear, pick some of the apples when first formed.

The Arkansas Black is considered a shy bearer, and should never be fertilized, or the growth will be in the wood, and it will be years before the trees bear a full crop, while they have grown to be very large in caliber and size. This objection can be largely overcome, too, by pruning the roots or tops, after the sap is up, and the leaves nearly grown.

These two varieties are mentioned simply because they are the two extremes. Other varieties should be treated in like manner to the extent that their apparent tendencies will indicate.

I do not advocate the planting of orchard and alfalfa together. The alfalfa soon absorbs the moisture, causing the apples to be small and fall off before harvest time. The cultivating of a small strip of ground along the tree row, is good for a year or two. Then comes the difficult task of ridding the ground of it. When the two are, however, desired, it is well to trim or head the trees at least four feet from the ground.

Grain crops in a young orchard are desirable, as the continual cultivation is very beneficial to the trees, the long slender roots being just below the plough.

At this season of the year, when there is some uncertainty of the peach and Japan plum crop, it is advisable to keep the ground not only moist, but wet, during the blooming period, as moisture seals the bloom and prevents the damaging dry freeze, also holding back the bloom by keeping the ground cold.

It is a well known fact that the peach belt of Michigan gets its moisture from that river, the moisture taking care of the bloom. I would advocate the planting of peach trees near your artesian wells, reservoirs, or river banks, as the case may be.

The orchard of Mr. A. M. Thompson, in the forks of the Hondo and Berrendo, seldom fails to bear, and there are a number of others.

In my estimation, much of the success in growing peaches depends upon dampness surrounding them in the early spring time. This will also hold good with small fruits, as the water running through or near them during the blooming season causes a damp atmosphere, which moistens the pollen that is distributed by the bee from bloom to bloom, but which will not fertilize without moisture.

Save One-third The Labor

In the Spring rests the secret. What's the use in working so hard when the same results can be accomplished with a third less labor? Save time and effort by dividing the work, doing half at each stroke of the handle instead of doing all at one stroke, and meanwhile be working against only one-half the pressure indicated on the gauge. Magic pumps are built in two sizes and have non-clogging ball valves. It is worth your while to see one in operation.

$27,000,000

The Great Western Life Insurance Company, with home office in Kansas City, Mo., is a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Missouri, and began business on the 19th day of April, 1907, with an authorized and paid-up capital of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) and up to and including the 31st day of December, 1907, which covered a period of eight and one-third (8 1/3) months, had written insurance to the amount of twenty-seven million ($27,000,000) dollars, placing it practically in sixth position among all of the legal reserve companies doing business in the United States during the entire year.

This record was never equaled by a new company in either this or any other country. In consequence of this very large volume of business being written in so short a time on the company's limited capital, it was deemed best to increase its capital stock to one million ($1,000,000.00) dollars in order to enlarge its capacity to take care of its insurance operations, and the stockholders and directors have accordingly authorized such increase, and application has been made to the proper officials for the requisite authority.

Experience has shown that Life Insurance stock is the very highest class of securities for returning profits to investors, and it invariably sells at a premium.

Mr. T. Whitaker, from the Kansas City office, has been in Roswell for several days and has interested a number of the leading business men of this city in this proposition. Mr. Whitaker comes to us with the highest of references from the home office and leading business men and bankers of Kansas City, and expects to locate in Roswell. He will endeavor to call upon all of those whom he thinks might be interested in a good, safe business investment.

"THE DEAR OLD DAYS."

Gimme back the dear old days—all the boys in line—
"Boy stood on the burnin' deck" an' "Blunge on the Rhine."
"Twas midnight; in his guarded tent"—we spoke it high an' low,
While Mary trotted out that lambs "whose fleece was white as snow."

Gimme back the dear old days that mem'ry loves to keep,
With "Pilot," 'tis a fearful night—there's danger on the deep."
The old time, awkward gestures—the jerk meant for a bow—
We said that "Curfew shall not ring" but, Lord, it's ringin' now!

Gimme back the dear old days—the pathway through the dells
To the schoolhouse in the blossoms; the sound of far off bells
Tinklin' 'cross the meadows; the song of the bird an' brook;
The old time dictionary and the blue back spellin' book.

Gone, like a dream forever—a city's hid the place
Where stood the ol' log schoolhouse, an no familiar face
Is smilin' there in welcome beneath a mornin' sky;
There's a bridge across the river, an' we've crossed an' said "goodbye,"
