HENEY VS. CALHOUN

San Francisco, June 17.—Not all the diplomacy of a score of policemen could keep back the crush of visitors at Carpenter's Hall this morning as Attorney Moore arose to make his last installment of his speech to the jury in defense of Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railways, who has been accused of bribery. It had been announced that Francis J. Heney was to begin his address and the room was packed to hear the prosecutor.

Moore in concluding his remarks declared that detective W. J. Burns had inaugurated a spy system which sought to bring evidence against Calhoun and asked the jurors if they blamed Calhoun for using the same measures in defending himself. He scored the detective from Burns' office, who, he said, went to Utah and laid a trap for a brother mason. He said he was sorry for the strife which had troubled San Francisco, but believed an injustice was being done by the zealous of the prosecution.

Moore completed his address by making a plea to the jury to keep unstained the honor of Calhoun. Heney's address, which began ten minutes after Moore had finished, when the speaker could be heard to the street. The vigor which has characterized many less important battles during the trial, was applied in the opening words. His face was scarlet with the vehemence of his utterance and his arms swung forcibly in the gestures he usually employs.

In his address Heney asked if there was not sufficient evidence before the jury to "sink Patrick Calhoun to the bottomless pits of hell." He declared Calhoun to be in a position where he would commit more crimes to clear his skirts of the one of which he stood accused. He said he had taken abuse and wondered how many of the jurors would stand for what he had taken. He then declared, "but I will never go into court again as long as I live and allow any man to abuse me in the performance of a public duty, so help me God. What does it matter if I am abused by an attorney like Earl Rogers, partner of the notorious Luther Brown."

THE HARRY THAW CASE AGAIN BOBS INTO VIEW. Fishkill Landing, N. Y., June 17.—Harry K. Traw was taken from the state hospital for the insane at Matteawan today to White Plains for a hearing before Justice Mills to determine whether he is insane or not. Thaw was in the custody of Dr. Baker and two attendants and was accompanied by Rev. George Toop, rector of St. Luke's Church, Matteawan. Thaw's attorney was also a member of the party.

White Plains, N. Y., June 17.—Harry Thaw will have to remain in Matteawan asylum until July 6 for another hearing as to his sanity. This was decided this morning by Justice Mills upon the representation of District Attorney Jerome, who wanted the postponement on account of other business.

ness. Charles Moerschauer, attorney for Thaw, declared Jerome was hounding Thaw and that the asylum authorities were antagonistic to him. Mrs. William Thaw, the mother of Harry Thaw, collapsed when the Justice postponed the case. Her son helped her to an ante room.

MRS. GOULD WAS DRUNK

New York, June 17.—The taking of the testimony of servants and employees, of two Goulds and the Tates, in the suit for divorce by Katherine Clemons Gould against Howard Gould, asking for $250,000 yearly alimony, was proceeded with today, as a small army of servants appeared to give evidence that Gould was justified in leaving his wife because of her habits. The prospect of a large volume of such evidence caused the Justice to order a longer session and a night session may be called to hasten the trial. The prosecution has announced that it will call about fifty witnesses in rebuttal.

August Frederickson, a watchman at Castle Gould told of the occasion when he saw Mrs. Gould and when she appeared under the influence of drink. She wanted the key to an electric alarm apparatus and talked incoherently.

Edward Bechtel, who had charge of the wines on Gould's yacht, in December, 1906, saw Mrs. Gould intoxicated on several cruises. She drank more than others, he said, and on one occasion had to cling to a chair to keep from falling.

Bechtel denied the guests aboard the yacht had to sign checks for drinks and declared he heard Mrs. Gould curse and swear on several occasions. While the witness related the occasions when he saw Mrs. Gould intoxicated, Mrs. Gould shook her head and smiled sarcastically.

Charles T. Dodde, a carpenter, said one day at Castle Gould, Mrs. Gould came into the room where he and others were working and said they would have to stop talking or walk to the station.

Melville E. Chapman, a broker, told of the cruise of the Niagara. He said Mrs. Gould was frequently intoxicated and abusive towards the servants, and said she would run the yacht to suit herself. Chapman said Gould tried to pass things off pleasantly and calm her. Chapman said he was under no financial obligations to Gould.

Counsel for Gould read into the record a deposition of James Clark, a bell boy at the Hotel Carroll, Lynchburg, Va., where Mrs. Gould and Dustin Farnum stopped. The boy said he often saw Mrs. Gould and Farnum in the former's room alone. He said he did not see them in the public dining room together.

DAYTON STARTS TWO DAYS' CELEBRATION FOR WRIGHTS. Dayton, Ohio, June 17.—Somebody at dawn yelled: "Hooraah for little Old Dayton," which, coupled with the names of Orville and Wilbur Wright, became the slogan of the two days' celebration in honor of the aviators. By the booming of cannon, ringing of bells and the shrieking of whistles, the people of Dayton made it plain that their enthusiasm was as great as that of the rulers abroad over the triumph of the conquerors of the air.

The ceremony began at nine o'clock, when for ten minutes every whistle and bell sounded. Up to the hour of the beginning of the ceremonies, the Wright brothers hurried away in their workshop, getting ready for the flights at Washington.

platform, where the peasant representing events in the history of Dayton, passed before them.

The chief event takes place tomorrow when medals from the city, state and nation will be presented.

After completing the flights in Washington the brothers will sail for Europe to take up their work there.

ST. JOHN-MARTIN WEDDING A PRETTY ONE. Mr. John St John and Miss Sadie Martin were married at 8:30 last night, their nuptials being celebrated with a pretty home wedding in the presence of a crowd of four score of their friends at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Martin, at the corner of Alameda St. and South Lea avenue.

While no magnificence was attempted in the plans for the event, every detail that goes with a home wedding was nicely carried out. Prettier decorations are never seen than those with which the Martin home was beautified. Roses, carnations, sweet alyssum and smilax were profusely used in artistically setting off all the rooms, and every corner, every mural opening and every chandelier had its appropriate setting of flowers and greens. The central object of the decorations was the bay window in the dining room, which was banked with palms and ferns and centered with a beautiful wedding bell of carnations and roses, suspended from the ceiling. The color scheme of pink and white was closely followed throughout.

Mrs. W. L. Hill was at the piano and as she sounded the Mendelssohn march the party advanced to a point under the wedding bell, where they met the minister, Dr. W. G. Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. First came the groom and his best man, Harry Morrison, advancing from the door on the right, both in evening attire. Then appeared from the door on the left the bridesmaid, in the person of Miss Mildred Martin, sister of the bride, gowned in white French lawn and carrying bridesmaid's pink roses. Following her was the bride, on the arm of her father, C. C. Martin, the bride in pure white, with veil, and carrying bride roses. As the party reached the appointed place the music died away and Dr. Alexander pronounced the mystic words that united the couple for life. The Episcopal service was followed, Mr. Martin giving away the bride and the ring being utilized as the symbol of the bonds that were formed. Following the service came the exchange of greetings and the giving of congratulations.

The evening was spent socially, appropriate refreshments of strawberries, iced cream in pink and white, coffee and punch being served. The bride and groom slipped away from the crowd early in the evening as a surprise to all.

The couple received a magnificent collection of presents, many of them very costly, and they were viewed with interest by the guests.

REPORT ON EXCHANGES

New York, June 16.—The report of the Committee appointed by Governor Hughes to investigate speculation in securities and commodities and the organizations used in dealings therein was made public tonight. The New York Stock, the Consolidated Stock, the Cotton, the Produce, the Coffee, the Mercantile, and the Metal Exchanges and the Curb Market were thoroughly investigated and recommendations looking to improvement of existing conditions were made at length by the Committee. The most drastic finding is that affecting the Mercantile and Metal Exchanges, as follows: "Under present conditions, we are of the opinion that the Mercantile and Metal Exchanges do actual harm to producers and consumers, and that their charters should be repealed."

Concerning speculation in general, the Committee declares that it may be wholly legitimate, pure gambling, or something partaking of the qualities of both, that in some form it is a necessary incident of productive operations; that it tends to steady prices and that for the merchant or manufacturer the speculator performs a service which has the effect of insurance. "In law," says the report, "speculation becomes gambling when the trading which it involves does not lead, and is not intended to lead, to the actual passing from hand to hand of the property that is dealt in."

"The rules of all the exchanges forbid gambling as defined by this opinion; but they make so easy a technical delivery of the property contracted for, that the practical effect of much speculation, in point of form legitimate, is not greatly different from that of gambling."

The committee makes no presentment against short selling but declares the tendency of such selling is to steady prices. It is recommended that the minimum margin should be 20 per cent and strong disapproval is expressed of branch brokerage offices which supply liquor and resort to other improper means to induce speculation.

The New York Stock Exchange. Taking up the New York Stock Exchange, the volume of transactions thereon is referred to as making it probably the most important financial institution in the world. Its "enormous business affecting the financial and credit interests of the country in so large a measure that its proper regulation is a matter of transcendent importance." Patrons of the Exchange are divided by the committee into five groups, namely, investors who pay for what they buy; manipulators of prices; floor traders; outside operators having capital and experience and "inexperienced persons who act on interested advice, tips, advertisements in newspapers, or circulars sent by mail, or 'take flyers,' in absolute ignorance and with blind confidence in their luck. Almost without exception they eventually lose." As to the character of the transactions the Committee declares it is unquestionable that only a small part of them is of investment character; a "substantial part may be characterized as virtually gambling. Yet we are unable to see how the State could distinguish by law between proper and improper transactions, since the forms and mechanisms used are identical. Rigid statutes directed against the latter would seriously interfere with the former. The experience of Germany with similar legislation is illuminating. But the Exchange, with the plenary power over members and their operations, could provide correctives, as we shall show.

"Purchasing securities on margin is as legitimate a transaction as a purchase of any other property in which part payment is deferred. We therefore see no reason whatsoever for recommending the radical change suggested, that margin trading be prohibited.

"Insofar as losses are due to insufficient margins they would be materially reduced if the customary percentage of margins were increased. In preference to recommending legislation, we urge upon all brokers to discourage speculation upon small margins and upon the exchange to use its influence, and if necessary, its power, to prevent members from soliciting and generally accepting business on a less margin than 20 per cent."

Pyramiding, that is the use of paper profits as margin for further commitments should be discouraged, says the committee. In this connection it is suggested that if brokers and the banks would make it a rule to value securities for the purpose of margin or collateral, not at the current price of the moment, but at the average price of, say, the previous two or three months, (provided that such average price were not higher than the price of the moment) the dangers of pyramiding would be largely prevented.

The committee does not favor the incorporation of the Stock Exchange holding that "under existing conditions, being a voluntary organization, it has unlimited power over the conduct of its members, and it can subject them to instant discipline for (Continued on Page Four.)
