KILLED A COUGAR.

A Prodigious Wild Animal Killed Near Enid.

Yesterday afternoon, near Enid, a couple of hunters ran across a large cougar crouched in the grass. At first they thought it was a large buck deer but when they fired a shot into the animal it sprang at them like a fiend incarnate. For a few moments it looked like the two men would be torn limb from limb, but both were armed with Winchester and after putting fifteen shots into the animal's body it fell dead at their feet. The cougar measured seven feet from tip to tip and weighed 175 pounds. It was a narrow escape. Claim holders in that vicinity will be wary of sleeping out on the open prairie hereafter.

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Seth Abbott, 6th and 6th, a considerable family from the estate of his daughter, the late Emma Abbott, adds to it by selling through the South a life of the singer.

Mrs. Pauline Fryer, better known in army circles as Major Pauline Cushman, is living in San Francisco on a small pension granted on account of her first husband's services.

Yoshi Hori, the eldest son of the Japanese mikado, who is coming to the world's fair, is only fourteen years old, but he is said to be as precocious as most American youths at twenty.

General Booth has passed over his son, Lieutenant General Bromwell Booth, and nominated his daughter, La Marechal Booth Gilman, to succeed him in command of the Salvation army.

Queen Victoria's crown is worth $1,000,000. It costs in interest $30,000 a year for this headpiece which she never wears. The interest alone would buy about 5,000 lovely bonnets every Easter.

Dr. P. H. Reiche of Waverly, Md., has a bronze medal which was struck by congress to commemorate the valorous charge of Colonel John Rager Howard, January 17, 1781, at the battle of Cowpens.

Miss Braddon has realized the historic ambition of Sir Walter Scott, who vowed he would make a name for himself by his writing. This, with fifty-three novels standing to her credit and a still unwaning popularity, is probable enough.

Professor A. S. Hardy has some wholesome ideas concerning realism. "A man nowadays goes out and the first thing he sees is a mud puddle, and he describes it. But if you look sharp enough and long enough, at the bottom of every mud puddle you can see the sky, and that's just what your modern realist doesn't see."

The great difference in stature between Meissonier and his wife always produced a comical effect when the two went out together. A Paris correspondent writes of once seeing the extraordinary pair at a picture exhibition and of overhearing another artist who was present say: "I should like to make a sketch of Monsieur and Madame Meissonier, and when my picture was finished, I should call it the 'Giantess and the Gnome.'"

HISTORIC STRUCTURES.

The largest cut stones in the world are in the temple of the Sun at Baalbec. Many are more than sixty feet long, twenty feet broad and of unknown depth.

The city of Babylon, in Great Bueharia, is set in the side of a mountain. There are 12,000 artificial caves, some very large, and two statues, one ninety, the other twenty feet high, each hewn from a single stone.

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon were terraces on columns. The gardens were 400 feet square and 400 feet high. The ascent from terrace to terrace was by flights of marble steps, and on the highest was a large reservoir.

The Tower of Babel at Babylon was composed of eight square towers, one upon the other, the pile being 600 feet high. Babylon was a square fifty miles on each side, the walls eighty-seven feet thick and 370 feet high.

The wall of Severns, separating England from Scotland, was thirty-six miles long and guarded by twenty-one forts. It was twenty feet high and twenty-four feet thick, and to the north was protected by a moat forty feet wide and twenty feet deep.
