

THE REPEAL VOTE.

IT WILL PROBABLY BE TAKEN THIS WEEK.

THAT IS THE PRESENT OUTLOOK.

It is Not Likely That Any of the Numerous Amendments Can Be Passed—Speech Making Nearly Ended—Bankruptcy and Tariff Discussion in the House—Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The prospect at the close of the session last evening looked favorable to the beginning of voting on the amendments to the repeal bill by Friday. Senator Faulkner had been canvassing the senate during the afternoon, with a view of asking the senate to fix a time when the vote could be taken, but concluded not to make the request, for the reason that he was of the opinion after getting the view of various senators, the speech-making would be expedited by allowing the business to drift.

The result of Mr. Faulkner's inquiries was the discovery that the speeches on the main question would soon be exhausted. Senator Jones will conclude to-day and Senators Teller, Martin, Allen and Stewart each desire to talk from an hour to an hour and a half. So far as learned there will be no other speeches, and when the last of these shall have concluded the voting will be the next thing in order.

Later inquiry confirmed the prediction heretofore made that none of the amendments will receive a sufficient vote to insure an adoption, and it is possible none of them will receive as high a vote as will be recorded in opposition to the bill. The reason for this is found in the fact that the senate do not expect any of them to carry, and therefore consider it unnecessary to attempt to have any of them adopted.

There is still some talk that some of the more conservative repeaters will aid in preventing unconditional repeal by voting for some of the amendments, but a majority of the free coinage men are of the opinion nothing can be agreed upon that would be advantageous to silver, and many of them now announce their intention of voting only for the free coinage amendment and of giving no countenance to any of the other amendments. The program is of course subject to change, as many other programs have changed in the past few weeks.

It is believed if the voting on the amendments can be begun early in the session to-morrow the final vote can be reached by Saturday at the latest, and the bill sent to the house for its action. When the house will have acted upon the bill adjournment will be the beginning of the regular session in December.

It was at one time believed there would be an effort to pass the bill for the extension of the Chinese exclusion act, but that probability has been abandoned.

Senator Perkins of California, who has taken an active part in this matter, as has also his Democratic colleague, Mr. White, has asked the members of the committee on foreign relations to post up their report upon this bill until Mr. White shall be able to be in the senate and take part in the discussion, and he is led to believe the request will be granted.

ADMIRAL STANTON RELIEVED. Saluted De Mello's Flag, Which Was Unauthorized by Uncle Sam.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The navy department learned by telegram from Rear Admiral Stanton, in command of the United States naval forces at Rio de Janeiro, that this officer had saluted the flag of Admiral De Mello, commanding the insurgent fleet. This salute was unauthorized by any instructions the admiral had received.

It was an unfriendly act toward a friendly power, and the secretary of the navy, after consulting with the president and the secretary of state, issued an order detaching Admiral Stanton from command of his squadron and turning it over to Captain Pickens, the next officer in rank.

DEBATE IN THE HOUSE. Bankruptcy Measure Is Again Discussed—Mr. Coombs' Tariff Proposition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—In the house yesterday Mr. Cannonita asked unanimous consent for the consideration of his resolution relating to the separation of the Independence and Visalia land districts of California. Mr. Coffey withdrew his objection and the resolution was passed.

Mr. Coombs (Democrat) of New York created something of a sensation and a amusement by offering a resolution outlining a plan for a tariff bill and instructing the ways and means committee to bring in a bill in accordance with its provisions. This bill, according to the resolution, shall have four schedules:

REPEALERS BITTERLY DENOUNCED.

THE ALABAMA SENATOR ON THE RAMPAGE.

THE PRESIDENT AND THOSE SENATORS WHO REFUSED TO SIGN THE COMPROMISE AGREEMENT SEVERELY URGED TO REPEAL TO ANY AND ALL MEANS TO REPEAL—PROUD TO BE A FILLIBUSTERER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—When the senate resumed its session yesterday morning Mr. Peffer offered a resolution which was referred to the committee on judiciary reciting that differences of opinion existed as to the legal effect of a repeal of a part of the act of February 25, 1878, by the passage of the act of July 14, 1893, some persons maintaining that the free and unlimited coinage of the silver dollar at the ratio of 16 to 1 was still the law of the land and directing the committee on judiciary to investigate and report at its earliest convenience.

Mr. Peffer's committee on foreign relations reported a house joint resolution declaring it the sense of congress that the acknowledgments of the government and people of the United States should be tendered to the various governments of the world that had cooperated in the quadricentennial exhibition in Chicago in commemoration of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus and providing that a certificate of the resolution be prepared in suitable form by the secretary of state and forwarded to the foreign governments. He asked for the immediate consideration of the resolution, as the exhibition was in session.

Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts regarded the resolution as an exceedingly awkward and imperfect method of dealing with the question. This mode of tendering the thanks of the United States was a sort of circular, it seemed to him that the president of the United States should make an express and courteous acknowledgment to each government by name.

Mr. Callahan agreed with Mr. Hoar, but Mr. Sherman thought the resolution came from the secretary of state and that it contained in precise form what was desired.

Mr. Hoar offered an amendment that the president be authorized to communicate to each foreign government that had participated in the exhibition the acknowledgment of congress for its contribution. This was agreed to and the joint resolution passed as amended.

The consideration of the bill to repeal the purchasing clause of the Mr. Sherman act was taken up and Mr. Stewart of Nevada, who was entitled to the floor, yielded to the speaker and proceeded to address the senate against the bill. Referring to the recent compromise, he said that the Democratic senators had united in the spirit of an compromise and concession and selected a number of senators from those friendly to unconditional repeal and those opposed to it, and with the knowledge of President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle that such effort was being made to bring Democratic senators together upon some common ground that could be enacted into law.

They accomplished that laudable undertaking so far as to agree upon a compromise that secured the signature of every Democratic senator but six. The fact was not considered doubtful that forty-three Democratic senators would have sanctioned the compromise had not President Cleveland interposed his objection and demanded unconditional repeal at all hazards. He was now satisfied that all efforts at compromise had failed solely on account of President Cleveland and his secretary of the treasury. He was satisfied that he could not get a sufficient number of senators to join him in filibustering practices and he was forced to record his vote against this diabolical measure and appeal to the people to organize their forces for the great battle of the future. He was willing if he had sufficient support to resort to any and all means to defeat the pending bill. He was proud to be called a filibusterer in defeating a compromise that would have had the consequences of its success, to war, pestilence and famine. He would rather be called a filibusterer by the conspirators and lickspittles of the gold kings than to be called a traitor or faithless representative by the state and people who honored him with their trust and confidence. As for himself he would do his duty as he understood it and leave consequences to God and his country.

Mr. Stewart then resumed his speech. After speaking for an hour he gave way to Mr. Jones of Nevada, who finished his speech before noon.
