WELL, WELL, WELL!

Mr. J. M. Brooks is the Only Real Thing in His Line.

Mr. J. M. Brooks left this afternoon for Evansville, Ind., to purchase a large bankrupt stock of new goods, such as boots, shoes, hats and caps, clothing, in fact a general stock. Jim has been dubbed the only real thing in the bankrupt stock sales and rightfully so, for he has a funny way of getting the best goods for almost nothing and charging his customers no profit on them. In the states Jim would be arrested for selling clothing, etc., so cheap.

A CHICAGO SHOP GIRL

TAKES "FITZ" DOWN THE LINE IN JIG TIME

WHILE BUYING BABY CLOTHING.

The Great Pugilist Forced to Spar For Wind—But He Came Near Forgetting Something After All.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Robert Fitzsimmons, champion horseshoer and pugilist of the world, went shopping yesterday morning. For two hours the "Champ" was the victim of a sales girl in a big downtown store. He got what he went after, the outfit for Rosalie Julian Fitzsimmons—Miss Fitzsimmons, whom the stork brought to earth two weeks ago. Miss Fitzsimmons found an elaborate wardrobe waiting for her on her arrival, but it was not elaborate enough to suit Bob. As the country papers would say, "Bob Fitzsimmons wears a broad smile. It is a girl," Bob was still smiling yesterday when he started out to buy an outfit for Miss Fitzsimmons. He wanted the best that could be made, and he wanted to outdo Mrs. Fitzsimmons, and show her how the youngest member of the tribe of Fitzsimmons should be gowned. He knew that Mrs. Fitzsimmons had delicate, long dresses and soft, warm flannels at home, all prepared for Miss Fitzsimmons, but he wanted to show that he appreciated the new female addition to the family as much as did the mother.

Bob started down town, accompanied by his valet and Martin Julian, Julian didn't want to go, but he was impressed into service, and the valet was taken along to carry home the purchases. The champion was full of confidence. Along his path the small boys crowded eagerly to get a glimpse of him, and he smiled at them all in his joy. The party finally entered a State street store. The sales women and cash girls were all agog. Customers were left neglected, while the whole store watched with wide eyes as the Auburn-haired champion brushed through the crowd. A floor walker intercepted and asked, "What department?" "Babies' clothes," responded Fitz, bravely.

He was directed upstairs, where a young woman, with a pencil thrust recklessly through a knot of hair, from which protruded a straggling spiral curl, presided. The young woman was evidently unused at the onslaught of the pugilistic party. She chewed absently at the end of a pencil, which was not working, and said: "What is it, please?"

"The 'Champ' spurred for wind a minute. 'Clothes for the baby,' said 'Oh, baby at home, eh? How old?'"

"Two weeks," responded Fitz who was weakening under punishment.

"Well," said the saleslady, "where shall we begin, at the shoes?"

"That's the stuff," responded Bob, "shoes first. But, by George, I don't know the size. Martin," he continued "go out and telegraph my wife and ask what size shoes Rosalie wears."

The saleslady scornfully informed him that he was a lobster and that all babies had the same size shoes, and Fitz again spurred for wind. For half an hour the purchasing went recklessly. Fitz buying everything offered. He purchased enough to last a couple of generations of Fitzsimmonses—silks, and soft woolsens, long, dainty, embroidered skirts, delicate little caps of lace, heavy half hose of wool, soft as silk, anything and everything that the demure and dignified young female person in charge offered for sale. Finally Bob breathed a sigh of relief and said:

"Haven't you forgotten something?"

asked the demure little saleswoman, raising her eyes a trifle.

"Guess not," said Fitz, "that finishes the outfit."

Just then Julian dragged him by the arm, hauled him out of ear shot and whispered something in his ear. The champion's face and throat turned two shades redder; he rallied from the stroke, however, and he walked back toward the demure young person and said:

"Yes, I did forget something. You may give me two dozen of them, the best you've got."

"All right," responded the artless saleswoman. "I'll throw in a couple of dozen of safety pins with them."

Bob reeled to his corner and was counted out. Julian ordered the box sent to the Fitzsimmons home in New York.

SPANISH SOLDIERS

ARE ON A STRIKE

Refuse to Obey Orders Until Paid Their Salaries.

GEN. ARROLAS BADLY HURT

While Trying to Quell the Mutiny—Only One Company Remains Loyal to Blanco—Havana is Practically in a State of Anarchy.

Scrpps-McRae League.

Havana, Nov. 11, via Key West.—An anarchy revolt prevails since Wednesday night. There has been little bloodshed yet. The Havana militia has been in a state of revolt for twenty-four hours and have practically been joined by regulars. Blanco is left with but a little force to maintain order. He has but one battalion of regulars, brought this morning from Mantanzas, that remains entirely faithful. It is guarding Blanco's palace. This afternoon more troops were brought from Mantanzas. Wednesday night the regulars refused to obey orders to attack the order of the publico and the civil guard, and the regulars joined the military. General Arrolas, while incensed, struck one of the soldiers with a sword. Another soldier jumped onto the general and tried to kill him with his machete. His aide interfered and received a blow on the arm. Today a truce prevails, Blanco pledging the men of the order of the publico that they shall receive their pay within twenty-four hours. The regulars now threaten to revolt unless paid Saturday. The artillery on Fort Cuban refused to embark for Spain yesterday because they are paid in orders for which they cannot get more than fifty per cent. The revolters claim that the speculators did not pay in full on purchased warrants, and that the profits are divided with the generals. It is reported that the Cubans and Spanish are fighting in Mantanzas, province

JILTED A BARON.

Sensible Act of a Once Famous Kentucky Beauty.

Louisville, Ky., November 11.—The richest woman in Kentucky, Mrs. Marie Goodloe—Shreve-Ransom-Bullett, has jilted the Baron von Nord, of Berlin, nephew of the late Prince Bismarck. He came nearly 3,000 miles over land and sea to claim his Blue Grass bride, only to find that she had changed her mind and preferred her old Kentucky home to a castle on the Rhine.

The story of their engagement is quite a romantic one. In her childhood days, a half a century ago, Mrs. Bullitt attended school at Berlin and there she formed the acquaintance of the baron, who was a dashing army officer. Miss Goodloe was a beautiful girl and came from the bluest blood of the proud old Kentucky stock. Their troth was plighted and Miss Goodloe promised to become the bride of the Baron von Nord when the lover crossed the ocean to claim her as his own. But the engagement was broken by the parents of the young man, and the Kentucky girl was told the lovers must care for each other no more.

Years passed and the beautiful Miss Goodloe became in turn Mrs. Shreve, Mrs. Ransom, and Mrs. Cuthbert-Bullett. Her husband is a prominent lawyer and southern society gentleman. After a brief wedded life they separated and a divorce was secured. The other husbands died. During all this half a century the woman remembered her vow of vengeance upon the house of Nord.

At Chicago last summer she met the baron. Both were old and gray, but the spark of love for the Kentucky girl was not yet extinguished in the heart of the baron. A few weeks of her society fanned it to a blaze, and again asked her to share his heart, baronial possessions, and title. She told him she would consider the matter and give him his answer November 1, when he must come to her Kentucky home and learn his fate. The baron came. He was received with open arms by society. Mrs. Bullitt gave a reception in his honor at Fountain Ferry Park, and society was there in full force.

Two weeks passed, during which she showed him every attention. Then came the first day of November. With fast beating heart the nephew of the Iron chancellor knelt before the once famous Kentucky blue grass beauty and asked her to be his wife. He was politely refused, and told that she valued a cabin in Kentucky more than all the ancient castles, crowns and titles Germany could produce. The baron left for his home in the Rhine and Miss Goodloe was avenged. Mrs. Bullitt got out the story herself.

How in an American Consulate.

Mexico City, Mex., Nov. 11.—The condition of affairs in the American consulate general here attracts much attention. Vice Consul Bennett having been suspended and forbidden entrance to the consulate by Consul General Barlow, who has not made known the grounds for his action. Colonel Bennett's friends insist that he has been unjustly treated and that due causes should be shown for his removal which, in reality, must be approved by the state department at Washington. Bennett is likely to demand a full investigation of all the affairs of the consulate. The American minister is reported to be examining into the matter.

The exportation of Henouquin from Progresso for the United States amounted last month to nearly 1,000,000 gold.

BIG SCHEME

To Advertise Business Firms in Oklahoma—Bill Posters Combine.

El Reno Star: Mr. Jesse J. Sinclair, the city bill poster, is making arrangements with six of his brother posters in Oklahoma for the biggest bill posting scheme ever offered to mercantile advertisers. It seems that in his efforts to make Oklahoma the most prominent advertising center for eastern advertisers in this line of work and at the same time thoroughly advertise El Reno and the boys in neighboring cities, he has concocted the following scheme and intends pushing it through:

Six of the best bill posters of this territory will take a trip overland, taking something in the neighborhood of 100,000 sheets of paper representing every drug, coffee, tobacco and different other firms now distributing posting matter over the territory, and thoroughly post every country route that has ever been posted in Oklahoma. The firms are to furnish the paper and the boys to put it up, furnish paste, teams, and everything that is required to give them an elegant showing in Oklahoma.

This will be complimentary to advertisers and when they get through we feel that the Oklahoma bill posters will be known everywhere. Mr. Sinclair will in a few days make a trip and arrange with his brother posters the most desirable time to start. This is something never before attempted by local bill posters and certainly never offered to advertisers.

UNABLE TO SEE FROM ECZEMA

I suffered with eczema of the worst kind, my face and neck down to my shoulders were one inflammation, was not able to see out of my eyes for quite a while, and was unable to sleep for weeks, on account of the severe pain, swelling, and blotches. I used three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, four boxes CUTICURA (ointment), three cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and my friends and one of the doctors are surprised, and asked, "How cured you?" and I tell them quickly, "CUTICURA RESOLVENT."
