Seven Wonders of the World. We have no indication of the existence of a cycle of seven wonders until about the end of the second century B. C. This appears in an epigram of Antipater of Sidon an enumeration of seven great works, which prove to be the very ones later appearing as the seven wonders. They are (1) the walls of Babylon, (2) the statue of Zeus at Olympia, (3) the hanging gardens of Semiramis at Babylon, (4) the Colosseum of Rhodes, (5) the pyramids of Memphis, (6) the mausoleum of Halicarnassus, (7) the temple of Diana (Artemis) at Ephesus. Within the next century Varro, by his laudatory allusion to the septem opera, betrays that the saying had already assumed current proverbial form. Diodorus, in the second half of the same century (died B. C.), speaks, too, of "the so called seven works," and Strabo, a little later, uses the very phrase, "the seven wonders." From this time on, at least, the septem miracula have an assured place in all the common lore of Rome.

Political Methods in Japan. Lafcadio Hearn through his wife and a few pupils had access to the intimacies and courtesies, the customs and legends and superstitions of the past, which made his happiness. But the necessities of his livelihood brought him into contact with a colder world of politics, practical persons, whose habits of mind jarred at every point on his more wayward and emotional spirit. Writing on behalf of a western friend, whom he considered to have been harshly treated by oriental employers, he said bitterly: "Japanese officialdom is not lovable, and it is oriental when unpleasant. It does not say, 'Here, if you don't like things, get out; here's your salary!' On the contrary, it sadder, becomes coaxing, caressing, infinitely sweet, and invites you out for multitudinous insult. Then you are suddenly surrounded by smiling combinations unimagined and unimaginable and softly struck in a hundred ways. A knockdown blow is nothing to it. I pity a man of letters in the government service in Tokyo."—Craftsmen.

Mrs. S. Joyce, Claremont, N. J., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy. It cured me of a severe case of kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." For sale by C. R. Renfro.

WITH THE MAGAZINES.

A Good Story. In an unusually good short story in this number of the Popular is "The Primal Instinct," by Bertrand W. Sinclair, whose previous stories in this magazine have gained him quite a following of readers. "The Last Dose," by E. Temple Thurston, is dramatically strong. It has for its scene a jungle in Equatorial Africa, and shows a really in a man when freed from conventional surroundings.

HERE AND THERE. Running Mate Sherman is both a banker and a canner. He will now attempt to can the democratic candidates.

Why should Mr. Roosevelt go all the way to Africa to shoot big game? Why does he not take a shot at Mr. Taft?

All is not gold that glitters, particularly when you see it in your wife's eye.

When a lover tells his beloved he is unworthy of her she doesn't believe it any more than he does.

Mr. Peevish says when they built their new house they spent ninety dollars on a butler's pantry to keep the mouse trap in.

WHAT EDITORS ARE SAYING

A Good Way. Senator Foraker's kind letter from the nominee proves again that one way to get what you want in the cowardly politics of the present time is to fight like fury and thus scare it out of the nominees.—Dallas News.

Two "News" Views. Such business seems not to be confined to the generals. A little lower down, in the same column, the News announces a republican victory in Oklahoma.—Dallas News.

Convention Made a Stupid Choice. "Jim Sherman, the nominee for the vice-presidency, has been identified long and profitably with those elements of indecency and corruption which have brought the republican party in this state to its present deplorable pass. It can be said, at best, that the convention made a stupid choice. It might have taken Gull!

All the same Sherman will get a good, large vote in this state. He has, for him, inestimable advantage of being little known. His nomination is chiefly important in pointing out to Mr. Taft the supreme importance of taking care of his health.—New York Sun.

QUAKER MEDITATIONS.

(From Philadelphia Record.) An all round good man should be many sided. Some men never arrive at a conclusion until they die.

The people who go to law don't always find it so easy to get back. Most of us feel that we could bear each other's burdens better than our own.

The coward rejoices in the theory that discretion is the better part of valor.

It isn't necessarily the man with the red nose who believes in letting his light shine before men.

When a woman marries a man with whiskers she is curious for the rest of her life to know how he would look without them.

Bobbs—"A woman over in Jersey gave birth to quadruplets the other day." Slobbs—"Yes, she stork sometimes makes a goose of himself."

"It takes a lot of nerve to succeed," remarked the Wise Guy. "Yes, but it takes a lot more to explain successfully why you didn't," added the Simple Man.

"When a woman reaches the age of 30 she begins to worry for fear she won't get married." She—"And how about a man?" He—"Oh, a man begins to worry for fear he will."

The mathematical problem of electing a president will now be the leading amusement for democratic papers, a sort of graveyard whistle to keep up courage.—Shawnee News.

MY TOAST.

Whichever way the wind doth blow, Some heart is glad to have it so; Then blow it East, or blow it West, The wind that blows—that wind is best!

My little craft sails not alone; A thousand fleeds from every zone Are out upon a thousand seas; And what for me were favoring breeze Might dash another with the shock Of doom, upon some hidden rock. And so I do not dare to pray For winds to waft me on my way; But leave it to a Higher Will, To stay or speed me—trusting still That all is well, and sure that He Who launched my bark will sail with me Through storm and calm, and will not fail. Whatever breezes may prevail, To land me, every peril past, Within His sheltering haven at last.

Then, whatsoever wind doth blow My heart is glad to have it so; And blow it East, or blow it West, The wind that blows—that wind is best! —Frank N. Lynch.
