SOCIETY MAKES ITSELF USEFUL.
dispatch from Hot Springs, Va., the famous winter resort notes that society women are promoting the "Made in America" movement.

The influence which women of social prominence might exert in this direction is enormous. It would be such an easy thing for the social leaders in a dozen great cities, to pass around the word that it is strictly "the thing" to wear American goods.

The purchases made by such women easily become a matter of public note. Clerks talk about it to all their customers. The idea spreads from circle to circle and clique to clique.

People are governed in their daily purchases by sentiment. There has been a vague feeling for many years that foreign made goods were better. In some cases they may be cheaper, yet perhaps the principal motive for the preference has been the feeling that they are more artistic or stylish.

The use of American products, in so far as reasonably possible, would be a move of real patriotism. It would help the home cotton grower and manufacturer and makers of all American textile fabrics.

THE HARM DONE BY FLOODS.
Every return of spring weather brings the news of damage by floods along the nation's great rivers.

The public seems to think that the floods are an injury only to the communities directly affected. But as several of the recent Mississippi river freshets have each caused damage estimated at $80,000,000 or more, this destruction is a tax on the whole country.

Scientists say that the people of 2,000 years ago were much more efficient in handling their rivers. Flood damage was a great problem even in those days.

GOOD ADVICE IN

KIDNEY TROUBLE

I have been troubled with my kidneys for many years. One day I could hardly move, and someone told me to get a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I did, and in a few days I was alright.

Yours very truly, reached a point of skill scarcely attempted in this country.

The ancient people turned these flood tigers into friends of man.

Engineers say that much of the levee building along the Mississippi has been worse than useless.
The people of one district build dikes that may save themselves for a time, but are destructive to those a little farther down the stream.

If the owners of land did not want this done, it is asserted that it would pay the United States to buy the land.
After a period of 20 to 25 years the river, by flowing more regularly, could be made to deepen its channel.

May Wed Brother of Lord Decies.

Letters received here since the sailing of Miss Britton and Miss McAdoo, to become war nurses, brought the news of the former's engagement, and while it was not possible to learn from Miss Britton's parents any details of the affair, it is understood that she has written to Mr. and Mrs. Britton, asking their consent.

Stories From the Theaters of War.
By Frederick White

London. (By Mail.)—The gauntlet of dangers through which a small band of Americans and Englishmen passed in their escape from a copper mining camp in the Caucasus mountains at the time of the outbreak of war between Turkey and Russia is told by A. H. Trotter of Syracuse, N. Y., chief engineer of the company, who has finally reached London.

bring black powder and lead bullets.
The fighting became so intense, that Trotter decided to make his escape. On the way down the mountain he often had to take refuge from the fire.

Meanwhile, however, the Turks had slipped across the crest of the opposite ridge and had begun a surprise attack on the ammunition train.

Trotter tried to jump on one of the wagons to escape, but was prodded off with bayonets, and sought cover. When a motor car filled with wounded came by he tried his luck again, but was unable to explain himself, for lack of Russian, and was again bayoneted off the car.

The Russian commandant, coming up later in an automobile gave him safe conduct to Porchka, where the ammunition train was overtaken and Trotter's money recovered.

The rest of the English-speaking party at camp, caught in the fighting too late to escape, had remained in the small hospital at the mine, flying the Red Cross flag. The artillerymen serving the guns at the camp were cut off to two men, and the infantry toward night became helpless.

Two of the party, an American and a Scotchman, started out to cross the mountains to the Russian town of Artvin, while the others, under cover of darkness took a chance on reaching Porchka and got through safely.

By good fortune, an old Turk formerly employed at the mine recognized Caldwell as an American and set him free. He returned to the mine, boarded up the camp, and then worked his way to Trebizonde.

LETTER FROM B. F. HARRIS.
I have been asked many questions relative to my candidacy for Commissioner of Public Safety as to policies I would adopt and if elected what changes I would advocate or made from the office for which I am seeking at the coming general election, April 6th, next. First and foremost I am for good government.

The police department will be conducted by citizens of the city. They will be required to be polite and courteous to civilians. They must be polite and observing of the rights imposed.

The ladies shall have the inside of the sidewalks, especially in the business districts where show windows are decorated and on display.

While this city is the metropolis of this county at this time it occupies the position of only a county seat and any of this muscle counts good to around about for its support.

As it is now, many of the smaller towns are enjoying daily balances fully equal to ours at this time. This is a fact well known to observing persons.

These are only a few of the many things to be considered by our thinking people of our city. Upward and onward should be our slogan.

Respectfully yours,
B. F. HARRIS.
