Mr. Johnson says he enjoyed his stay in the famous health resort and the progressive people there, "but there's no place in the world like Tulsa," he said with his characteristic aftermath, "Tell papie the truth."

Since his return L. D. has been seen regularly on the streets in his Chandler Lemozine taking in the money as usual.

Most housewives spend the day Saturdays "cleaning house" and making preparation for Sunday and as a rule, are too tired to go shopping Saturday afternoon. This works a hardship on the woman who likes to see what she buys before buying it, in order that she may get the best.

But the housewives who patronize this store have learned that they need not worry about dressing and going to town to buy their groceries and Meats, because we have proved to them that they can phone their order in and have it sent out by messenger all with the assurance that they will get what they order and that they will be Satisfied.

TWO ARE WOUND'D IN SHOOTING AFFRAY

Lark Mills May Die As Result of Alleged "Frame Up"

Lark Mills, a well known young man of this city, was shot through the abdomen and Howard Callins another young man of this city was shot through the arm in a sensational shooting affair which took place in the home of Bill Stevenson on Independence street in the Gurley-Hill Addition early Tuesday night.

Mills is at home on N. Greenwood under the care of physicians who operated on him following the shooting and Jodie "Red" Carroll charged with the shooting, Howard Callins and others are in the county jail awaiting the results of Mills' wound. According to a statement made by Mills at his home Wednesday, the shooting was the result of a "frame up" on the part of the Carroll boy and his friends.

One of the boys went to Mills' home and left word for him to go to the home of Bill Stevenson where the shooting occurred.

Mills, it seems, went to the Stevenson home and as he entered the front door the Carroll boy opened fire on him. Two or three shots were fired one of which penetrated Mills' abdomen penetrating the intestines, leaving about thirty holes. Mills said he quickly pulled his gun and returned the fire. In the melee Howard Callins was shot through the arm.

Officers failed to find "Red" Tuesday night, but Wednesday he surrendered to officer Henry Pack. Carroll stated to the officer that he shot in self defense after Mills had shot at him, and after Mills had said he had bought a gun to kill him.

Little hope is entertained for Mills' recovery.

BRIEF COMMENT CONCERNING NEGRO MAGAZINES

The year 1919-1920 marks a wonderful stride in the publication of monthly magazines by the Negroes of this country. While for many years Colored men and women, too, have ventured into this field, yet their productions as compared with the ordinary monthly magazines published by the whites, were not to their credit. In fact, many of their attempts at magazine publishing have been puerile, and even preposterous, in their pretension. It must be understood however, that to undertake to publish a book, and that is what a magazine is, once a month on time for a year is no small job. One of its greatest obstacles is the general indifference of the Negro reading public to such publications and secondly, the prevalent habit of the more intelligent classes of Negroes to heartily approve of such a journal, provided some one else pays for them.

Despite these and others including the H. C. L., we have on our desk several very creditable monthly publications, issued by our Race. The Woman's Voice, published by Somerville Z. Fauntleroy, at 1924 Fitzwater street, Philadelphia, Pa., dedicates itself "By Women, For Women and Of Women," and undertakes to serve as a medium through which "Woman"—can express her hopes, ideas and ideals. Certainly this journal has a wide field for its striving, and from a perusal of its pages, we are inclined to believe it worthy of support, not alone by women, but by men also. The March issue discusses man as a "Logical Animal." Quite so, he is the logical animal to uphold this brave venture of the Negro Women of the Race with subscriptions a plenty.

The World Work published under auspices of the Home Mission and Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church at 150 Fifth ave., New York, so far as its October 1919 issue is concerned is the equal of any white magazine of its class usually found on news-stands. We are highly pleased with its pictorial cover in handsome colors and congratulate the publishers on the numerous portrait engravings which appear throughout the book. Also a double paged engraving representing Egypt as the back ground of the Negro race is finely executed. The World Outlook is indeed worthy of substantial support from the Race and our prayer is that the Outlook may continue through years to come and gain greater strength with the years.
