Little Stories for Bedtime

By Thornton W. Burgess. (Copyright 1914 by J. G. Lloyd.)

It was a smart dog who was chasing Peter Rabbit. There was no question about that. Even Peter himself admitted it, and you know Peter is rather inclined to things that dogs are very easy to fool; in fact that they are not smart at all. But this one wasn't easy to fool. Peter had tried every one of the common tricks and not one of them had bothered that dog more than a few minutes. It was clear that he knew a great deal about rabbits and their ways.

Peter wouldn't have minded this particularly if the dog had been alone, but when Peter found that a hunter with a terrible gun was looking for him and was standing where he could shoot Peter if he should try to run to the dear Old Polar Patch, why then Peter did begin to get a little worried. It was very clear that he must get rid of that dog somehow. Without the dog the hunter never could find him, never in the wide world.

So Peter ran a little harder than before. Hippy-hippy-hippy-hip, just like that. And the dog, running with his nose in Peter's tracks, made the green forest ring with his voice: "How-ee-ow-ow-ow-ow." Just like that. Peter ran in a big circle and he ran so fast that he almost caught up with that dog. If you could have looked down from the blue, blue sky and seen them as jolly bright Mr. Sun did, you would have thought that Peter was chasing the dog instead of the dog chasing Peter.

When he had almost caught up with the dog, Peter ran off to one side in a straight line a little way and he ran very fast. Then he turned around and ran straight back to his own tracks almost to where he had turned off and there he did a most surprising thing. That is, it would have been surprising to any one who didn't know Peter and his tricks. He kept off to one side, making just the longest leap he possible could so that there was a long distance between the place where his feet left the earth and where they touched it again. Then he did it again and again and still again. After that he headed straight for the Laughing Brook and when he reached it he ran along in the water on the very edge until he came to a hollow log lying on the bank. That log was hollow its whole length and open at both ends. Peter crawled into it from the end nearest the Laughing Brook, and there he made himself comfortable while he rested and listened to the dog.

He could tell just what that dog was doing just as well as if he was watching him. You see Peter leaves a little scent in his tracks. He can't help it. So all the dog had to do was to keep his nose to the ground and follow that scent. All the time he kept barking to let his master know that he was following Peter. When he reached the place where Peter had turned and ran back along his own track he was puzzled and stopped barking. After a little he began to work back. He suspected what Peter had done, but he wasn't quite sure and he didn't bark so much. When he reached the place where Peter had made the long jump to one side he stopped barking altogether. Peter smiled. He knew just how that dog was running back and forth trying to make out where Peter had gone. After a while he barked once. He had found the place where Peter had hopped the ground after his long leap.

He Could Tell Just What That Dog Was Doing as Well as if He Were Watching Him.

Now that dog had patience and perseverance. He kept at it until at last he found where Peter had started for the Laughing Brook. Once more his voice rang through the Green Forest

But when he reached the Laughing Brook he stopped barking. You see the running water had carried away Peter's scent. Peter chuckled. By and by he heard the hunter come over and talk to the dog and encourage him to hunt for the lost scent. Then he heard the hunter come tramping along the bank of the Laughing Brook. When do you think happened then? Why, that hunter sat down on the very log in which Peter was hiding! Yes sir, that is just what he did! He sat on the log while the dog barked and hunted for the lost scent. Of course it made Peter a little bit nervous, but he just had to laugh to himself to think how close together he and the hunter were without the hunter having the least idea of it.

WILLIAMS APPOINTS

A. W. Wilcox Named as Republican Member of Board of Affairs—Leecraft and Eary Get Places.

Official announcement of three additional appointments was made by Governor-elect Williams late Saturday afternoon.

A. N. Wilcox, of Durant, was named as the Republican member of the state board of public affairs. Wilcox is a well known Bryan county business man and is a close friend of the governor-elect. The other two members of the board of affairs, previously named, are J. M. Aydelotte of Oklahoma City and Samuel Morley of Hartshorne.

Judge Williams also announced the appointment of A. N. Leecraft of Durant as his private secretary and Axel Eary as his chief executive clerk. Leecraft is a Durant merchant and also a close personal friend of Judge Williams. Eary is 21 years old and for two years was law clerk and stenographer to Judge Williams while the latter was a member of the supreme court. Eary was chairman of the speakers' bureau during the recent campaign, was secretary of the Williams good government club in the primary and at present is secretary of the State Belgian Relief committee.

TUESDAY at Kerr's TUESDAY
Christmas Sale of Furs—
The Reductions Extend to Half

Every year we hold this sale. A number of people wait for it not to buy furs for gifts but for their own use. They will find this year's event richer in savings, wider in variety and larger in size than any in the past years. The cause is obvious. The weather, of course, it has left us with larger stocks than usual at this season, and it has left importers in the same fix. We shall sell off the surplus at breath-taking reductions. In some instances the prices are half, in others the reductions amount to one-third; not one scarcely is less than that.

And they are beautiful furs, selected by our own expert. Every piece is of intrinsic merit.

TO SHOW IN FEBRUARY

Livestock Breeders Will Hold Annual Show and Sale at the Stockyards Here February 22 to 29 Inclusive. Fancy stock of all varieties and breeds will be exhibited and offered for sale and it is expected by the management that livestock breeders from all over the southwest will be in attendance. The fact that the federal government has asked the postponement of the Denver livestock exhibition from January until spring is expected to add to the interest in the show to be held here. The managers of the Oklahoma Swine breeders association will hold an open meeting at the stockyards on December 21 and at 10 o'clock and are desirous of meeting all breeders interested. President Walt Williams of Marlow will hold the gavel. The officers of the Oklahoma show association are Tom Smith, Norman, president; Sidney L. Brock, Oklahoma City, vice president; W. B. Mar-

tinous, Oklahoma National Stock Yards, secretary.

ONE KILLED, TWENTY-FIVE INJURED; TRAIN JUMPS TRACK

Northfield, Minn., Dec. 14.—One person was killed and more than 25 injured, eight seriously, when Rock Island passenger train number 63 was wrecked eight miles south of here late yesterday. Five cars rolled down a fifteen foot embankment. A broken rail is said to have caused the accident.
