A hitch has occurred between the city council and school board. The former is disposed to prescribe rules for the government of the latter, but the board, as we understand, disregards the rules of the council. Both sides have obtained the opinion of the attorney-general. What will be the result is for the future to determine. At any rate, it is to be hoped that the controversy will not be permitted to injure the school.

Charles Bacon Sent Up for Seven Years-Capital Cullings. Special.

AUSTIN, TEX., May 30.-Charters filed to-day : The Mellssa Ranch company of Kerr county, capital $80,000; the Nueces Land and Cattle company of San Antonio, capital $100,000.

The new corporation act takes effect the 1st of June, after which no more land and cattle companies can be chartered.

The penitentiary board will meet June 10 to consider the application of Wiggins, Simpson & Co. of Houston to be relieved of their contract for sev-enty-five convicts to run ten years. They have already received one extension of six months in the labor bills but complain that on account of being unable to find a market for their labor they cannot meet their indebtedness to the state.

In the district court to-day Charles Bacon, alias Charles Perkins, was given seven years in the penitentiary for attempt to outrage a little girl about two months ago.

An Attempt to Assassinate a Deputy Sheriff.

PLANO, TEX., May 30 .- L. Franklin, deputy sheriff of this county, this morning, while on his way to Decatur, five miles east of Plane, came across a party on horseback who claimed to be a horse-hunter from the Indian Territory. They both rode up to a store at Decatur, the stranger getting off of his horse to purchase some provisions. Franklin noticed that the party carried a pistol, and asked the stranger to let him see it. The party pulled out the weapon as if he were going to hand it over. Instead of doing so he conit over. Instead of doing so he com-menced firing at Franklin. Five or six shots were fired, only one shot grazing the side of his face. Franklin was taken by surprise but recovered himself enough to fire several shots, none taking effect. The party escaped to the woods near by, leaving his horse. A large posse was organ-ized and is now in pursuit.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

He Speaks of the Political Situation of Our Country. WASHINGTON, May 30 .- Dr. A. T. P. Garnett of this city while on a recent trip South visited Jefferson Davis, with whom he has had a long and intimate acquaintance. The Star publishes an interview with Dr. Garnett in which the views of the ex-Confederate president are given on the politi-cal situation and other matters. Dr. Garrett says: "In the course of our conversation Mr. Davis alluded to the political condition of the country by saying that he knew nothing of the present executive and that he had not yet progressed far enough with his administration for him to form his opinion. He seemed satisfied with the members of the cabinet selected from the South, but was not disposed I thought disposed, I thought, to entertain a very hopeful view of our future, as he said the love and veneration for the constitution which animated the citizens of the United States before the war had now departed from our people, and that the syst u of government erected by our forefathers existed only in name, that there were elements of disintegration and disruption at work in our midst which could only be testimated and held in could only be restrained and held in check by force, that the underlying and fundamental principles upon which our system of government was erected and upon which the constitu-tion, as it was before the war, rested, tion, as it was before the war, rested, were fast becoming obsolete and forgotten by the old men and were never learned by the young, that under the rule of Republicanism during the war and subsequent to it the constitution was made of a rope of sand and while this party of so-called liberal ideas was proclaiming universal freedom and equality on one hand, it was tearing down and blotting out the very safeguards and on one hand, it was tearing down and blotting out the very safeguards and posts which alone, under our form of government, could secure it to them. Mr. Davis said ke had not authorized any petition to be presented to the federal authorities to have his disabilities removed. He to have his disabilities had been per-said that he at all times had been perfectly willing to undergo trial if government thought proper to bring such an issue, provided he was tried strictly under the provisions of the

"How Did 1 Get Dysnepsia ?"

Libertas in Reply to a Woman.

JEFFERSON, TEX., May 50, 1883, To the Editor of PRE GAZETTE: To the Editor of THE GAZETTE:

I have not time and you have not space to fritter away with my fair antagonist, Mrs. A. D. B. from Belknap, about an imaginary insult, of which she complained in her article in THE GAZETTE of the 16th of May, 1885. *I GAZETTE of the 16th of May, 1885. "I can only say that to the best of my knowledge I never insulted a lady in my life. Mrs. A. D. B. says "God did introduce prohibition into the garden of Eden." My answer to that bold assertion is that if that be so then God's prohibition was a fallyra.

prohibition was a failure. The Texas prohibitionists don't propose merely to forbid the making, seliing and using distilled and fermented itquors; they propose to destroy the business absolutely, root and branch,

the tree and its fruit, or put it where Eve could not have got at it, exactly the tree and its fruit, or but it where Eve could not have got at it, exactly what the prohibition folk say they are going to do, the catastrophy of the fall might have been averted. But God's plan of moral government is one thing and Madam A. D. B.'s philosophy on the same subject is quite a different thing.

The madam complains of my neglect to notice the tectotalism of John the PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 30.—Boston, facts, and evidently the work of a charlatan—1 literary mountebank, is doing herself great discredit, whatever she may be doing for her favorite cause. The fact is, the publishers became ashamed of the book, and out of a decent respect for the opinion of scholars, they took it from their shelves. I could fill columns with false quotatins, false criticisms and false hoods from the pages of Mrs. A. D. B.'s favorite book. Having taken her Samson from under her feet, all her little gabble about der her feet, all her little gabble about the unint-xicating wine made by the the unint xicating wins made by the Bavlor at Cana, and used by him at the institution of the last supper, passes by like the idle wind. The sacrad writers call it wine, sinos; the vul-gata has it vinum, now almos-vinum, ex vi termini, means fermented wine, solute unanimity, that such a thing as unfermented wine as a beverage is ununfermented wine as a beverage is unknown in all the Orient. The idea is preposterous. Grape juice, they say, could not be kept from fermentation

in that climate over twenty-four hours.

Mrs. A. D. B. asks, "Has Libertas ever seen or known of any alcohol in any of its forms or mixtures generated by the hand of the Almighty?" Ans: Yes; never saw it any other way. The process of fermentation is just as truly provided for by the laws of nature. process of fermentation is just as truly provided for by the laws of nature, which are the laws of God, as is the ripening process of the grape upon the vine. And while the abuse by excessive use of wine is everywhere in scriptures condemned, it is as frequently mentioned in the Bible as an indication of the divine favor as anything else. See divine favor as anything else. See Genesis xlix., 11. Geneels xlix., 11

It is with supreme deference I would suggest to my friend a more thorough study of the Bible, of chemistry and a little natural philosophy. She would then appreciate what the Savier said when he told them not to put new wine into old bottles; the fermentation process would tear the old hides to pieces.

My fair friend, in the exuberance of her solicitude for my better information on this surject, refers me to Geo. W. Samsons, D. D. If it affords my antagonist a pleasure, she is now informed that I have owned and possessed Dr. Samson's "Divine Law of Wines" several years, and have studied it with as much care as I ever devoted to any book except the Bible.

I am sorry for the madam that she has referred to Samson at all. His book is friend answere?"

I process would tear the old hides to pieces.

Mrs A D. B. charges me with negligence in not telling my reader that Paulisaid a 'bishop should not be given to wine." The madam ought to know that the revision has dropped that passage out. But if they had not, that mean Paulisaids, "It is not good for a man to touch a woman," I. Corinthians, vil, 1., and this reading the revisors have not disturbed. Is my referred to Samson at all.
