SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 15.
 WITHIN $3500 of Corsicana. Let the gulf be bridged.
 FORT WORTH has never taken a step backward. It is too late to think of such a thing now.
 IN FORT WORTH, 84 degrees, and cool. In Dallas, 102 degrees, and steam discouraged. That was the record of the weather for Thursday.
 The San Antonio Express feelingly inquires the color of Reagan's socks before committing itself to his support. Is this another "issue?"
 AN ENTERPRISING reporter announces that the president has bought two new suits of clothes. That sounds like the standing item during Arthur's term.
 The Jersey Lily is said to be much mortified over the late flat encounter about her. If mortification had struck her long ago she might have saved her reputation and present embarrassment.
 AT THIS time, of all others, Fort Worth cannot afford to make a slip. Only about $8500 is needed to make up the necessary $75,000 for the New Orleans railroad. There ought to be no trouble in getting $8500.

THE FORT WORTH GAZETTE for the fifth time calls Senator W. H. Pope a free-grass man. Next week, when it says it again, that will make six times. (Houston Post.)
 Truth, when it is uttered in praise of virtue, cannot be too frequently spoken. Senator W. H. Pope is a free-grass man.
 It was an inopportune thing, perhaps, to cheer the living lieutenant at the dead general's funeral, but it served to show how small a void the death of the greatest leaves in the surging ranks of humanity. "Le roi est mort; vive le roi!"

Good dirt roads to bring cotton to Fort Worth are as necessary as railroads. Good roads build up the country, and the country builds up the city. If we handle 60,000 or 75,000 bales of cotton, as is expected, there must be a way to get them here.

THE GAZETTE counsels its Glen Rose contemporary to wait a little while. We are getting the Fort Worth & New Orleans road started now. In a week or two, when that is well under way, we'll take up and dispose of the Fort Worth & Rio Grande.

THE BULLIONAIRES of the Nation evidently appreciate the full meaning of the order, "Stand not upon the order of your going, but go at once." Col. Hunter, one of the largest St. Louis cattle owners, has completed arrangements to move 1500 head per week, and smaller owners are following his example.

THE GAZETTE is in receipt of the first number of the San Marcos Daily Free Press, a neat little three-column paper. Its mission as announced is to supply the visitors to the Chautauqua meetings at that place with a daily report of the day's proceedings. Its police court report, as in Ouida, however, is the star feature of the issue.

WILL the administration see the matter in its true light and refuse to appoint a successor to Mr. Kelley as minister to Austria? If Austria does not want an American representative at her capital, dismish hers at Washington and balance accounts. America can stand that if Austria can, but this government can not afford to be insulted in the person of her representative.

THE rival telegraph companies are getting a good deal of valuable advertising out of the press. THE GAZETTE has a higher regard for the welfare of its readers than to clutter its columns with what the B. & O. has to say about the mendacity of the W. U., and the retorts of the W. U. about the bankruptcy of the B. & O. What interest has the reading public in the merits of the quarrel? It's purely a case of witch and devil which wins.

LET us have the announcement from an authoritative source that the Missouri Pacific headquarters are going to Dallas. All that has been done so far, as we learn from that town, was a dicker about a building which somebody offered to put up and rent for a good price to the railroad company to use. Why don't we hear something from the railroad officials about it? And Mr. Hoxie said it would probably be a month before the matter could be decided!

If local option doesn't wear out before next spring, there promises to be a pretty good-sized "issue" for a campaign. It will keep.

JOHN ROSEN contributed $100,000 to the last Blaine campaign fund, and yet there is no announcement that Jim has done anything to help John out of his present trouble.

SCIENTIFIC men say that cigarette smoking leads to idiosyncrasy. There is where the scientific men are off again. Idiosyncrasy is fully developed before cigarette smoking commences.

TEXAS furnished the only fool on the day of Grant's funeral. The man who tore down the flag at Dallas. (Memphis Avalanche.)

TEXAS can be relied on to furnish anything, but its stock of the above kind is limited, the supply exceeding the demand.

AN ENGLISH paper in reporting a cricket match, says: "Miss Leslie spanked Miss Hubbard hard for two." Either the style of the game or the manner of reporting it will have to be changed before American ladies can adopt it.

THE paragraphers have been poking a world of fun at Miss Carrie Dam, who was lately married up north, because her name was used upon all occasions. Since she got married, however, she don't Carrie dam how much they talk about her.

GEN. ROSS never opened his mouth at the Waco anti-local-option meeting. We commend the general's prudence, and regard his dumbness as a very good evidence of statesmanlike discretion. We have too many men who "put their foot in it" when they unclothe their lips.

THE Harrold Weekly Times, the El Paso International Live Stock, Land and Mining Journal, and the Sherman Evening News, are the new publications that have appeared in Texas this week. All are creditable, clean and thrifty-looking, and will do their share toward making Texas the land of promise.

ST. JOHN says he is going to beat the Republicans in Ohio, or bust something. St. John, like St. Paul, has had the scales knocked from his eyes, and is taking a big part in the Lord's cause. He has discovered that it is no use to kick against the pricks. Well done, then good and faithful servant. Do it again.

"THERE are more ways of killing a dog than by choking him to death with butter," says a homely old proverb, which the governor of Delaware is proving to be true. The law prohibits the governor from committing the death sentence, so he overcame the legal prohibition by respiting William F. List until Friday, May 29, 1910—over fifty-four years. List is now in his twenty-fifth year.

IN REFERRING to the recently formed railway pool in this state, similar ones in Missouri, and a proposed one in Georgia, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch says: "The governor of Texas has put himself at the head of a fight against the same sort of thing in his state, but no prominent Democrat of Missouri has yet dared to raise the standard of revolt against the abrogation of our constitution by Jay Gould."

OFFENSIVE PARTISANSHIP.
 An "obnoxious partisan" in office and an "obnoxious partisan" out of office are two very different individuals. One is a private citizen free to do as he pleases; the other a public official, appointed by partisan influence perhaps, but the servant of the whole people. In the discharge of his duties the latter should not be partisan, and, if he happens to be, he should be deprived of his office. This is right. It is what is due to the general public which has business to transact with such office-holders in their official capacity. If such an officer neglect his duty, if he shows favoritism, or if he makes himself disagreeable by converting his office into a partisan workshop, or by abusing his political opponents, he ought not to be considered a proper person to serve people of all shades of politics, but should be removed. Before assuming the duties of an office, or after he has retired from office, a private citizen can do as he pleases, but, as soon as he enters the public service, he stands in a different relation to his fellow citizens, and assumes new responsibilities which he should not be permitted to ignore. The distinction is very broad, but the Republican press is attempting to confuse the public mind in regard thereto, by claiming that a private citizen who may have been active in the service of his party should be excluded from office for the same reason that an office-holder is. The proposition is absurd, for what is wholly objectionable in a private citizen is often very improper in a public servant.

DIRTY POLITICS IN ENGLAND.
 The scandals that were charged against our two presidential candidates in the last campaign furnished occasion for our English cousins to say a great many harsh things about our want of public virtue and our disreputable political practices. Revelations of the recent past show that these gentlemen were casting their stones from glass houses of the very fairest pattern. The campaign now going on in that country has developed two scandals of the first magnitude against leading candidates for parliament, and it is pretty certain that these revelations are being made use of by political agents of the opposition. The story of Sir Charles Dilke's disgraceful revelation with members of the Crawford family is being used with zest by the Conservative press, when display little regard for "political ethics" in their use of such disreputable ammunition against their opponent. Now the Liberals have gone gunning for Tory game, and brought down a big buck in the person of Mr. Pearce, who is charged with betraying the virtue of the daughter of his friend. Mr. Pearce is the candidate of the Tories for parliament and the Liberal press are whetting their knives to carve him. His sacrifice will be a fair revenge for the destruction of Sir Charles.

We have no monopoly of scandalous politics. The English stand well in that regard. With the campaign hardly opened they have two leading candidates impaled, and the reserve supply is not small. We look with a good deal of interest for developments when the fight begins to get hot.

CARLISLE AND RANDALL.
 The Washington Star prints the following information and conjectures:
 A report is revived which the Star published three months ago, to the effect that negotiations are in progress between the Carlisle and Randall wings of the Democracy, looking to the unanimous renomination of the ex-speaker. There is little doubt this will be done. Mr. Carlisle gave good satisfaction as speaker, and there is no reason why he should not receive the ordinary compliment of a re-election. As speaker of the next house Mr. Carlisle would be obliged to revise his list of commitments, owing to the great number of changes in membership as well as from other considerations. It is not likely, however, that he would alter the assignments of the leading men. Mr. Morrison is certain to have the chairmanship of the ways and means committee again if he strikes it, and Mr. Randall is equally sure of being put once more at the head of the appropriations committee.

This is all stuff of the boldest kind. Mr. Carlisle does not need to descend to "negotiations" to secure a re-election as speaker. He will be stronger in the next house than he was in the last, and Mr. Randall's candidacy cannot defeat him. Hence he would be childish to make terms with a man from whom he has nothing to fear, especially when the condition of his compromise is to pledge Mr. Randall the very important place of chairman of the appropriation committee.

Mr. Randall is too much at variance with an established Democratic principle to be given so important a position as that of chairman of the appropriation committee. His course during the last congress, while in that position, was not satisfactory to the Democrats of the nation. He persistently thwarted the will of the majority by the arbitrary use of power his position conferred upon him, and would recognize no guide save his own will. He has not announced any intention of reforming, and the party he acts with is not in such extreme need of his service as to elevate him to that place again. Mr. Carlisle will strengthen himself and his party by ousting Mr. Randall from the chairmanship of the appropriation committee of the Forty-ninth congress.

A SCHEME TO "HUMILIATE THE PRESIDENT."
 The ways of some politicians are past understanding. Doubtless if asked to give a respectable reason for many of their acts they would be lost to name one. The more open of them would probably say that they didn't care for reason; that they wanted office.
 Some of the New York politicians are preparing to "humiliate" the president, because they fancy he has not shown a high enough regard for their advice in distributing official favors, and has not made official changes fast enough to suit them. Their scheme to make the president feel disgusted with himself is to "repudiate" him at the coming election in New York by staying at home on election day and allowing the Republicans to carry the state by as large a majority as was given to Cleveland himself in 1882.
 There are good reasons for pronouncing this scheme too full of foolishness for even a New York politician to enter into. First, because it cannot be carried out. The people of New York, not the politicians, do the voting, and they do not feel disposed to stay from the polls to vindicate a few sulky political malcontents. And, second, because it would be no indication of ill-will toward the administration if the state should go Republican by ever so heavy a majority. The unfortunate and offending Democratic candidates buried in the avalanche would be the sufferers, and there is probably not a very prevailing disposition to make them vicarious victims of disaffection toward a man whose conduct they are not responsible for.
 Good sense is not an inseparable accompaniment of the New York political leaders, but they hardly are so destitute of sense as to bite their noses off to spite their faces in this way. The loss of the election in New York means a deprivation of many of the offices they now are in possession of, and it would be a poor way to show their displeasure at the president's slowness in giving them offices, for them deliberately to throw away those they now have.

A Foreigner's Opinion.
 Cleburne Chronicle.
 Be the word "chic," "pschlutt," or what not, that develops brightness and clearness of mind, the word must be applied to THE GAZETTE. It is one of the best looking papers in Texas.

Premium Wit at the Texas School.
 Dallas Democrat.
 The Fort has another heavy load on hand. Of the needful $75,000 to induce the Fort Worth & New Orleans railroad to come to this point, only $9,500 was raised after calling seven town meetings. Peter Smith thinks the other $74,500.50 can be raised if the proprietors will take it out in GAZETTE wind.

The most popular cigarettes at the popular price are Opera Puffs.

TEXAS TOPICS.

Opinions and Comments of the State Press.
 Of all classes of laborers the world has yet produced, it has not matched the Mexican, either in laziness, dishonesty or treachery. We speak understandingly of them, both in Texas and in their own country. We worked thousands of them in building the Mexican Central railroad, and we worked them in the southern part of this state, and on the Texas coast, where they have been employed as shepherds and sheep herders. Their trail has been marked by rapine, arson and murder, even women have not escaped their bloody hands when in search of plunder, and it were better to invoke the curse of the Aztec deities to our midst than to import these half civilized Latins. (Sherman News.)

Without white or colored labor enough to secure the crop, the proceeds of every pound of which is absolutely necessary to pluck Texas from her present financial slough of despond, the question naturally arises, what are we going to do about it: let the crop or the growers go?

Something is up. The Western Union and Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph companies are abusing each other. It all appears in the Associated Press dispatches which pass over the Western Union wires. Don't you know there is something rotten in Denmark? There is some iniquity, and this seeming quarrel is intended as a blind, is intended to cover up. (Dallas Journal.)

The Journal seems to take about the same view of the controversy that THE GAZETTE does—some stock jobbery at the bottom of it. However, let thug quarrel, "when thieves fall out honest men get their dues."

If the location of private poker rooms in Dallas was marked with red ink a map of the city would look like a sheet of paper sprinkled with polka-dot paper. (Houston Post.)

Has the Post man been up to Dallas lately? From the assertions of the truly pious papers of the Xroads THE GAZETTE had been led to believe there had been no gambling there since "the woods burned over."

There is a great principle at stake in this prohibition matter. We acknowledge that drunkenness is a great evil, but there are other evils just as bad and some far worse. It is infinitely more dangerous to give the government so much of an oil mill, for factory and wooden mill; next, a railway to the great Southwest. These are the stones for Cleburne's sling. (Cleburne Chronicle.)

With but few exceptions the leading papers of the state are declaring against local option as the question is being sprung in the different localities.

Fort Worth is peering away on the Rio Grande railway, and is asking the towns along the line to come to time with the right-of-way and depot grounds. It takes a "Little Giant" like the Fort to handle two big railroad projects at the same time. If Fort Worth wishes to assume the character and habits of Goliath, Cleburne will do his best in the part of David. First, the Cleburne & Corsicana railway, second, an oil mill, for factory and wooden mill; next, a railway to the great Southwest. These are the stones for Cleburne's sling. (Cleburne Chronicle.)

Does the Chronicle mean to insinuate that it proposes to help "lay out" Fort Worth, as David did Goliath? If so it had better provide itself with a different kind of a "sling." Throwing pebbles won't do it.

Ablene is distressingly healthy. Our physicians have felt blue and threatened to appeal for the repeal of the health ordinance. An undertaker's establishment has closed its doors and departed for some more inviting field, and now the marble-yard and tombstone establishment has broken up and made ready for departure. The city is too healthy for such an establishment to flourish. (Ablene Reporter.)

Send them over to Dallas. With her daily murders and suicides every undertaker in the city is getting rich and there is plenty of room for more.

Nero fiddled while Rome was burning, and now Mr. Cleveland is laying while Democrats are starving. (Mt. Pleasant News.)

Democratic office-seekers are not all paupers, neither are they starving. A man who is not self-supporting is not worthy of an office.
 The Texas land board is liable to protest too soon. (Galveston News.)

They have protested that they won't hit back. Now turn over the clip and let the bug out.

We Can Take Care of Both.
 San Antonio Express.
 The "Waxahachie Tap" will be neglected in Fort Worth for a season. The people of that city will be interested in another kind of "tap" while the prohibition question is pending.

Why the Post is Worth.
 Houston Age.
 If the Fort Worth GAZETTE does not get a fight out of the Post for putting good, liberal, correct anti-lease law sentiments in its mouth, the Post is not the man we have taken it to be.

More Than One Jones.
 St. Paul Globe.
 Jones, the Indianapolis postmaster, should not be confounded with Jones, the revivalist. They are both kicking up a good deal of racket, but are pulling at different ends of the string.

Depending on the Gazette.
 Antelope Clipper.
 When we look over the columns of the Fort Worth GAZETTE and see the names of some of our old Georgia comrades in arms registered, it gives us the "chills," because circumstances were such that we could not attend, but THE GAZETTE will keep us posted.

She's Watched There.
 Panola Watchman.
 The Fort Worth GAZETTE, in her elegant new dress, proposes to wait at the head of the Texas journalistic quadrille, and in our humble opinion she will get there. Among our many exchanges, none are more welcome and more appreciated than THE GAZETTE.

A Great Blood Medicine.
 Rosadalis cures scrofula, swellings, goitre, skin diseases, liver complaint, rheumatism, &c. Read the following: I have been a great sufferer for 15 years, not able to walk, from an injured leg. Have tried many M. D.'s and their remedies to little purpose. I believe Rosadalis will cure me. Send me one dozen by steamer. It was recommended to me by a friend. I have taken two bottles, and find it helping me. The druggists who usually keep it are out of it, and I cannot afford to wait the slow arrival of their supplies.
