"AS YOU LIKE IT." A SMALL AUDIENCE WITNESSES THE GREAT SHARESPERRAN COMEDY.

Miss Adelaide Moore appeared at the opera-house last night as Rosalind in "As You Like It," and the performance was witnessed by a small audience. She did not appear to as good advantage as she did the evening previous in the chapacter of Lady Teasie, and the play moved heavily from beginning to end.

Shakespeare was in a sportive mood when he created the airy, volatile Resalind, and she is one of the quaintest productions of his genius. The character is one that scarcely finds a parallel in the history of Rierature, and may be ranked as one of the greatest portraitures of the great author. Rosalind is not of the heroic mold of women, but she reflects some of the stronger characteristics of her sex, blind devotion, coquetry, mis-chievensness, wit, and all the light vani-ties and aris of feminionly sparkle in her composition with diamond brilliancy. She is a perfect model of the female sex, stripped of its lower and higher vices and virtues, and a more pleasing picture has never been seen behind the footlights than this girl-boy. The character pre-sents at many phases of human nature that it can indeed be viewed "As You Like It."

Miss Moore undoubtedly has histrionic taient, but she has a defect in her voice which approximates a lisp and causes her periods to be reached in a way that soon be-comes disagreeable. The last few words in her sentences are often jumbled and inaudible. Her acting is artless, and unaffected, but her articulation could be much improved by a thorough training.

The support was fair; Mr. George Morton, as Jacques, being the great re-deeming feature of it, while the others of the cast played in a manner calculated to amuse, though not with as much interest in the play as they should have displayed.

TWENTY-THREE YEARS AGO.

A MEETING OF TWO OF PORREST'S COM-MAND WHO SAW SERVICE TOGETHER.
Col. Thomas W. Harris and Edwin Gholson of Holly Springs, Miss., two able lawyers, have lately come to our city to locate and practice their profession. Col. Harris was an officer of the rank mentioned in Gen. Forcest's famous command, and carries an empty sleeve in remembrance of it. The colonel was aston ished yesterday to meet an old comrade here, one who was also an officer in Forrest's command, and one who, twentythree years ago, was as dashing and brave a soldier as Southchivalry produced. This was T. B. Sheridan, well known in our city as an old-time journalist who was in 1876 and 1877 connected with the Standard is this city. The meeting was in some respects a sad one and the major's eyes filled with tears as he grasped the hand of Col. Harris, who had shared the tolls, privation and glories of several campaigns, but the gentlemen were glad to meet once more. Col. Harris, a scholaric and convenience. arly and courteous gentleman, related in a feeling manner to a reporter the cause of the major's present erippled condition. Maj. Sheridan was in the front line of bat-tle, riding a splendid horse, when a shell struck the horse and exploded, killing the animal and throwing the major against a tree, injuring his right leg. The contact coming on the major's head came near killing him. Col. Harris says after the war was ended Gen. Forrest was walking on the streets of Memphis when he saw Maj. Sheridan on the sidewalk, and, running to bim, threw his arms around him and gave him a literal hug. Both old soldiers are somewhat gray now, but it is hoped they will live long and prosper greatly before the last, bugic call Col. Harris enjoys s plendid health, but Maj. Sheridan has been almost an invalid for years. While the major would not ask aims, it would be a noble deed on the part of the soldiers of the lost cause whom God has prospered if during the coming Christian boliday season they presented him with a handsome testimonial. Surely the Southern people will never forget the gallant and heroic deeds of those whose hair is now silvered by the hand of time, of those whose limbs have been bent and whose physical health have been runned while facing those who at the time were our ene-mics. Our citizens will be glad to wel-come Col. Harris and his partner, Mr. Ghelsen, to warm-hearted Texas.

OVER THE BLUFF

AND THE CITY OF PORT WORTH WILL HAVE A DAMAGE SUIT ON HAND. Some time ago City Attorney Capps

urged upon the city council the necessity of putting the road leading down the bluff from the head of Houston street in good repair. He warned them that, should any damage ensue from the should any damage ensue from the wretched condition of the road, the city would be liable. Yesterday about 1 o'clock an accident occurred on this very road, which will doubtless make City Attorney Capps' words come true. For weeks past a portion of the rip-rapping which was washed down by bard rains has been left as nature placed it. The road on a line with this break is just wide enough for one wagor to pass, not six inches to spare either. A false step of a horse, the slightest acci dent, will cause team, wagon and all, to go over the bluff, and maybe some of these times down to the river bank and death. Yesterday James Fletcher, a wagoner in the employ of Dr. Whalen of Azic, was on his way to that village with a load of holiday goods the doctor had purchased. On the wagon were goods to the value of at least $400, There were eandles from Capera & Bro., toys from Anderson, faucy vases and other articles liable to damage. When the team reached the place mentioned above, a breast-strap broke, the horse nearest the edge of the bluff was forced from his feet, over the bluff he went, pulling the other horse with him. While wagon and goods were quickly following, Fletcher, by a quick jump, saved himself. Fortunately there was a kind of shelf formed by the stones which had been washed down, and this shelf stopped the career of the horses on their way to the river, so they were not killed, but seriously bruised. But the candy—ask the small boy who was on hand about that candy. Chocolate, carameis, jelly beans, lemon, sassafras and peppermintstick, taffy, French confections were mingled as they never were before, with here and there a sprinkling of glass from the pulverized vases. The little one's hearts would have bied to have seen the way those tops were mangled, in short it was a total wreck. Mr. Fletcher is a poor man and caused afford to have the work man and cannot afford to lose the work Dr. Whalen is a sensible of his horses. man and law-abiding citizen, that roads should be made half-way safe, and will not be disposed to suffer the loss sustained by damage to his goods.

THE COCAINE HABIT.

A Prominent Chicago Physician Recomes a Victim to the Terrible Habit.

CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 29 .- Dr. Charles D. Bradley, a physician of this city, was taken to the Washingtonian home yesterday, a mental and physical wreck, wrought by the immoderate use of cocaine. Not only the patient himself, but his entire family, consisting of a wife and five children, have been practically reined by his excesses. On Friday, the patient, accompanied by some friends, was taken before Judge Pendergast. The luming cases or over the desired in the companies of the insuc cases proper had been disposed of and the room was almost clear of the usual crowd of curious spectators. There was no jury and the affair was conducted as quietly as possible. It was shown that Dr. Bradier outer and the state of the control of the state of the control ley, quite a prominent physician, had been addicted to the use of cocaine to such an extent as to render him practically in-sane. The story was told that the doctor, under its influence, performed experi-ments on his family that have made them physical wrecks. His claim was that he could eject hydrochloral without pain, and remove the flesh without pain to the patient. He injected some of it into his own arm, and with a redhet from burned it out without flinching. Some more of it he injected into the wrist of his threeyear-old child, and then, with a knife,
