Children Offers a Cadetship to the Poor But Deserving Boy.

Denison, Tex., Dec. 3.—Maj. Maughan, who has a cadetship in the Maryland Naval Academy of Oxford, has offered a cadetship to a poor but deserving young boy who has been attending a school here.

The boy, who is named John, is a native of Denison, and has been attending a school here for several years. He is a very bright and capable boy, and has been a member of the Denison High School for several years.

New York, Dec. 3.—Mayor Grace has begun a libel suit against Joseph Pulitzer and the New York World for $50,000 damages in the superior court. Pulitzer was arrested this afternoon and taken to the sheriff's office, where he gave bail in the sum of $5000 and was released.

A Huge Joke.
Sam Owens, day clerk at the Western Union telegraph office, had a queer experience yesterday about 11 o'clock. It being warm and pleasant, Owens was walking up Main street in his shirt sleeves, and from the pocket of his vest hung a silver chain attached to his watch, but not fastened in the button-hole. As he crossed Third street a man standing in front of the Opera saloon brushed against him and easily and quickly lifted the watch out of his pocket. Owens rather saw the action felt it, and at once grabbed the man's hand and recovered his watch. The man pretended that the thing was a huge joke, and Owens being in a hurry to notify officers, passed on up the street without learning who the man was. The police have a description of the man. Yes, verily, it is a "huge joke" to have a man lift a watch out of your pocket at 11:30 in the morning on one of the main streets of a city of 50,000 people.

Fort Worth vs. Dallas.
DALLAS, TEX., Dec. 3, 1885.
To the Editor of the Gazette.
I saw this morning in THE GAZETTE a communication signed "Mother Hubbard" stating that the consumption of Dallas beer in Fort Worth was in excess of that in Dallas. I wish to say that when Dallas sells 100 barrels per day, Fort Worth consumes 300 barrels, and if it were not for Fort Worth's patronage the Wagenhauser Brewing association would probably not exist.

CONFLAGRATIONS.

The Barnum Wire Works at Detroit, Mich., Wiped Out of Existence by the Angry Flames.

One of the Largest Saw Mills in the World Destroyed by Fire—A Perfect Gale Blowing.

The Barnum Wire Works Burned.

DETROIT, MICH., Dec. 3.—This morning at 8 o'clock a fire broke out in the stockroom of the Barnum wire works. There was a delay of fully ten minutes before the alarm could be turned on and the fire spread with great rapidity. Three alarms were sent in and half a dozen engines were called out, but the whole building was a mass of flames before they arrived. A gale of wind from the west fanned the flames into fury. Huge cinders, hurled high into the air, were carried blocks away, and for a time it seemed that the whole neighborhood was doomed. The effort of the fire department was devoted chiefly to saving property in the neighborhood, it being impossible to save the wire works. Notwithstanding the hard work of the firemen, the fire spread to Howard street. The men were compelled to retreat before the flames, which scorched their faces and burned their clothes. The heat was intense, and set fire to three double two-story houses, which were about half consumed before the firemen could get in their work on them. The occupants were able to move most of the furniture to a place of safety. These houses were valued at about $8000, insured for $6000. The wire works are almost an entire loss. The building was valued at $112,000, the stock at $115,000 and the machinery at $50,000. The total insurance is $116,700.

The history of the Barnum wire works has been of universal interest in business circles. The prosperity of the company seemed unlimited until July 1884, when a large number of attachments were levied on the works and it was charged that indebtedness had been contracted by fraudulent representation. Eight suits were begun against the company in the superior court and two in the circuit. In consequence the company made an assignment July 24, 1884, with assets of $445,000 and liabilities of $349,000. Soon after the failure a syndicate bought the entire indebtedness of the concern for fifty cents on the dollar. The pressing claims were allayed, but the company was not out of trouble. A few who did not go into the syndicate claimed that the receiver had conspired to defeat their claims. Suits and counter-suits were commenced in all the local courts and these are now pending here. In the supreme court recently an effort was made to sell the works, but an order from the court stopped the sale.

A Large Saw Mill Consumed.

BAY CITY, MICH., Dec. 3.—At 11 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the cupola of the fire-room of the saw mill of Beardsell & Barker. The wind blowing from the west carried the fire to the main building of the mill, which soon became a mass of seething flames. The firemen saw that the mill must go and directed their attention to keeping the fire from spreading, and confined the conflagration to the mill property and the adjoining tramways, which were soon in ruins. The mill was the largest on the Saginaw river, and at the time of its erection in 1873 it was the largest concern of the kind in the world. The loss is $15,000; insurance $10,000. It is not known whether it will be rebuilt.

A Barn Burned.

BLEUM, TEX., Dec. 3.—About 9 o'clock last night a barn filled with grain, belonging to N. J. Smith, living two miles from here, was entirely consumed by fire. The loss is $1500, with no insurance.

A Blaze at Big Spring.

BIG SPRING, TEX., Dec. 3.—A fire caught in an out-house at the Texas & Pacific railway shops last night and but for the timely arrival of assistance the entire shops and round-houses would have been destroyed together with the machinery, etc. After considerable work the fire was extinguished with a loss of about $200. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A Blaze in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, CONN., Dec. 3.—This morning fire destroyed the shop of N. E. Welsh & Co. of Forestville. The building was entirely destroyed, together with the engine, boilers, machinery and stock. The loss is $90,000, insurance $45,000.

SAVAGE TRIBES.
Gen. Schofield Shows Our Army to Be Entirely Too Small for Protection.

Trusting to the Government, the People of the Frontier in Imminent Danger Daily.

Schofield's Report.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Maj.-Gen. Schofield, commanding the division of Missouri, says in his annual report that his force in round numbers consists of 3500 infantry, 5000 cavalry, and 280 artillery, aggregating 15,000 men. They occupy 65 different stations, giving an average of 231 men at each. He has the following to say about the means necessary to prevent great destruction of life and property from savage Indians. "The Indians are well mounted, having several ponies to each man, well armed and abundantly supplied with ammunition. Being trained from early childhood they are excellent horsemen and expert marksmen, equal in this respect to the best regular troops in the world. It is impossible to permanently overcome or hold in subjection such bodies of savages by the show of any force far inferior to them in numbers. If information of a threatened outbreak of any tribe is obtained in time it may be prevented by the rapid concentration of troops by rail, and this has been done in several instances, as in that in Cheyenne last summer, but if two or three tribes become disaffected at the same time, or any tribe takes advantage of the absence of troops, as they frequently do, to manifest their latent hostility, it may be impossible to prevent a general uprising, which must result in vast destruction to life and property. Considerable progress has been made toward the civilization of some of the tribes, but their savage nature has not yet been changed and their love of war has not yet greatly diminished, while the temptation to engage in hostilities and the opportunity to do injury have been vastly increased, the reservation being now surrounded by great herds of horses and cattle and by vast fields of wheat and corn, and by thousands of defenseless settlers. When the lapse of a few years has dulled the recollection of past punishment, only a slight provocation will be needed to induce the young warriors to yield to such great temptation to satiate their native thirst for blood and plunder and their brutal lust. The great majority of the frontier population are strangers to the early history of the Indian country. They have settled there since the Indians were located on the reservations. Relying on government protection, they are unconscious of the danger, while in truth they are liable at any moment to experience all the horrors of savage warfare. The number of Indians in this division is reported by the interior department to be about 175,000; of these about 53,000 are rated as peaceable, while the remaining 122,000 are more or less uncivilized and warlike, their warriors, who number at least 25,000, equal to the strength of the United States army, or two-thirds more than the whole number of troops serving in this division. The question to be now considered is whether the vast increase of the interests and the lives involved does not demand that such military action be adopted as will prevent in the future any wholesale destruction of life and property by the uncivilized tribes of the country. I beg leave to submit that in a country of 50,000,000 of people 50,000 men would be a small army to be maintained, with some reference to a possible foreign war, but when the country has constant daily use for nine-tenths of that force to protect its people and their property against destruction by savage tribes it is extremely unwise to trust the army in its present condition."

Mr. Blaine's second volume of "Twenty Years in Congress" will be published in January.
