

Daily Gazette.

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY.

DEMOCRAT PUBLISHING COMPANY
W. A. HUFFMAN, President.
W. O. TOLSON, Secretary.
W. A. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
W. A. HUFFMAN, Editor.
W. A. HUFFMAN, Managing Editor.
W. A. HUFFMAN, Business Manager.
W. A. HUFFMAN, General Manager.

Office of Publication, Second St. Between Houston and Tenth Streets, Entered at the Post Office as Second-Class Matter, March 1, 1879.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.
 (Postage Prepaid by the Publisher.)
 One Year, $10.00; Six Months, $6.00; Three Months, $3.50; Single Copies, 10 Cents.

DELIVERED BY CARRIERS.
 Per Week, $1.00; Per Month, $3.00; Per Year, $30.00.

Rates of Advertising. Published on Application.

Resubscriptions by draft, postage money order or registered letter, at rate of 10 per cent.

Copyright notice. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

Patent information. Published on Application.

to see my name in the bust column." George Staples, Llano. In a bush. On with the bust.

Twenty-five drummers, writing from Laramie, say: "You defend us nobly and your reward will be the labor of 4500 drummers now traveling in Texas." On with the bust.

A million dollars' worth of oranges is a good many. It is enough to give one to every person in the United States, and have a few left over. That Florida frost story is "too thin."

"Please add five to my roll of GAZETTE each day, and twenty-five to the Sunday order. I will increase the daily order on the 1st of February by twenty copies." J. H. Dills, Sherman. On with the bust.

It is denied that Fort Worth men lost their reason on the subject of religion. There has never been a single religion in the city to run anybody crazy.—Breckenridge Telegram.

What does John Ireland pay his bootlickers a month to bewitch papers that exercise their right in this free country of having opinions of their own?

Talk Austin Statesman perceives that "the Fort Worth GAZETTE and the bull-boys are having a rough-and-tumble time of it. But the GAZETTE, as it usually does, comes out on top." Of course THE GAZETTE has never experienced the sensation of coming out at the bottom.

To the Dallas Times: Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road has commenced. On the ground are rails for fifteen miles and more are on route from Galveston. Waxahachie will be connected by rail with Fort Worth on the 1st of May, and then all Central Texas will be open to this proud young city. On with the bust.

The antiochian whom the Arkansas Traveler discovered is doing paragraph work on an esteemed Argentine contemporary. He asks: "What's the use of talking about how much a silver dollar is worth as long as it has a purchasing power of 100 cents?" To be sure! What's the use of covering the house as long as it doesn't rain?

The Paris Democrats have become offensive partisans. They want to elect a Democratic mayor, and being in the majority, propose to do it. In municipal elections local issues usually obscure politics, and the man best in accord with the prevailing local feeling is elected. Other things being equal, however, we see no reason why a Democratic majority should not elect Democrats to office.

The negro exodus now going on from South Carolina to Arkansas will not hurt the state that loses these citizens. If there is a greater demand for laborers than can be met by the negroes left after the emigration fever has exhausted itself, it will be supplied by white men from the North or from other states of the South. It is not South Carolina, which loses, but Arkansas, which gains these negroes, that is in a position to excite sympathy.

The January number of the Century is out of print and a new edition of 5000 copies is on the press. The publishers have had to increase the edition of the February Century, since it has been printing on account of the extra demand for this "Midwinter" number. The editors sent in word to the publishing department a few days ago that "if the public only knew how good the February number is going to be, the large edition considerably over 200,000 would be exhausted on the day of issue."

The GAZETTE still reports a large increase of orders. This is a people's license which, under the circumstances, is understandable. We presume.—Waco Examiner.

The Examiner is a doubting Thomas. It sees ads in THE GAZETTE, and refuses to believe we get any pay for them. It says THE GAZETTE is as good as the Kansas City and Denver papers, and refuses to believe that newspaper buyers also think so. Doubt on dear Examiner; we know you wish us well if you won't believe.

"Send five more daily." T. C. McKee, Dallas. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Sunday list." C. B. Massey, Paris. On with the bust.

"I want two more daily." R. F. Logan, Goldthwaite. On with the bust.

"Send four more daily." J. W. S. Donnell, Morgan. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Saturday order." A. S. O'Sell, Waco. On with the bust.

"Increase my order ten more, making 150 daily in all." Dick Chamberlin, Denton. On with the bust.

"Add twenty-five to our order for Missouri Pacific train north." Union News company. On with the bust.

Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road was begun yesterday. On with the bust to Waxahachie.

"You may add five to my daily and Sunday order, and ten to Monday." J. C. Glass, Whitesboro. On with the bust.

"I have worked up five new subscribers for you, to begin February 1 next." J. E. Hooper, Colorado. On with the bust.

We need more hotel room now. What with the need be when the Fort Worth & New Orleans road opens up a connection with the Central system on May 1st.

I need five subscriptions and will send another batch next week, and I hope the police, and in doing everything to prevent its discovery, which they would not have done if they had believed they were engaged in a lawful business.

The proposition to do away with the intervention of the electoral college and vote directly for president by the people will put the Democratic party in an embarrassing position. As a party committed to the sustaining of States rights it must oppose the change, for nothing could so effectively annihilate States rights as a general national vote for president. On the other hand, its party advantage all lies along with the new scheme. The Democratic party of the nation is in a numerical majority, and has been ever since 1870. Tilden had 250,000 more votes than Hayes. Though Garfield had a few hundred more than Hancock, it was because so many Democrats failed to vote in the South, knowing that their States would go for Hancock anyhow, and a small majority in that case would count as much as a large one. If the president were chosen by direct popular election the South would poll 250,000 more votes and give the Democratic candidate at least a majority.

Thus do the brethren rage and imagine a vain thing.

What senatorial candidate keeps a private "booklet" at Fort Worth in pay for having himself "booked" in certain newspapers of the Southwest Times?

What does John Ireland pay his bootlickers a month to bewitch papers that exercise their right in this free country of having opinions of their own?

Talk Austin Statesman perceives that "the Fort Worth GAZETTE and the bull-boys are having a rough-and-tumble time of it. But the GAZETTE, as it usually does, comes out on top." Of course THE GAZETTE has never experienced the sensation of coming out at the bottom.

To the Dallas Times: Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road has commenced. On the ground are rails for fifteen miles and more are on route from Galveston. Waxahachie will be connected by rail with Fort Worth on the 1st of May, and then all Central Texas will be open to this proud young city. On with the bust.

The antiochian whom the Arkansas Traveler discovered is doing paragraph work on an esteemed Argentine contemporary. He asks: "What's the use of talking about how much a silver dollar is worth as long as it has a purchasing power of 100 cents?" To be sure! What's the use of covering the house as long as it doesn't rain?

The Paris Democrats have become offensive partisans. They want to elect a Democratic mayor, and being in the majority, propose to do it. In municipal elections local issues usually obscure politics, and the man best in accord with the prevailing local feeling is elected. Other things being equal, however, we see no reason why a Democratic majority should not elect Democrats to office.

The negro exodus now going on from South Carolina to Arkansas will not hurt the state that loses these citizens. If there is a greater demand for laborers than can be met by the negroes left after the emigration fever has exhausted itself, it will be supplied by white men from the North or from other states of the South. It is not South Carolina, which loses, but Arkansas, which gains these negroes, that is in a position to excite sympathy.

The January number of the Century is out of print and a new edition of 5000 copies is on the press. The publishers have had to increase the edition of the February Century, since it has been printing on account of the extra demand for this "Midwinter" number. The editors sent in word to the publishing department a few days ago that "if the public only knew how good the February number is going to be, the large edition considerably over 200,000 would be exhausted on the day of issue."

The GAZETTE still reports a large increase of orders. This is a people's license which, under the circumstances, is understandable. We presume.—Waco Examiner.

The Examiner is a doubting Thomas. It sees ads in THE GAZETTE, and refuses to believe we get any pay for them. It says THE GAZETTE is as good as the Kansas City and Denver papers, and refuses to believe that newspaper buyers also think so. Doubt on dear Examiner; we know you wish us well if you won't believe.

"Send five more daily." T. C. McKee, Dallas. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Sunday list." C. B. Massey, Paris. On with the bust.

"I want two more daily." R. F. Logan, Goldthwaite. On with the bust.

"Send four more daily." J. W. S. Donnell, Morgan. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Saturday order." A. S. O'Sell, Waco. On with the bust.

"Increase my order ten more, making 150 daily in all." Dick Chamberlin, Denton. On with the bust.

"Add twenty-five to our order for Missouri Pacific train north." Union News company. On with the bust.

Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road was begun yesterday. On with the bust to Waxahachie.

"You may add five to my daily and Sunday order, and ten to Monday." J. C. Glass, Whitesboro. On with the bust.

"I have worked up five new subscribers for you, to begin February 1 next." J. E. Hooper, Colorado. On with the bust.

We need more hotel room now. What with the need be when the Fort Worth & New Orleans road opens up a connection with the Central system on May 1st.

I need five subscriptions and will send another batch next week, and I hope the police, and in doing everything to prevent its discovery, which they would not have done if they had believed they were engaged in a lawful business.

The proposition to do away with the intervention of the electoral college and vote directly for president by the people will put the Democratic party in an embarrassing position. As a party committed to the sustaining of States rights it must oppose the change, for nothing could so effectively annihilate States rights as a general national vote for president. On the other hand, its party advantage all lies along with the new scheme. The Democratic party of the nation is in a numerical majority, and has been ever since 1870. Tilden had 250,000 more votes than Hayes. Though Garfield had a few hundred more than Hancock, it was because so many Democrats failed to vote in the South, knowing that their States would go for Hancock anyhow, and a small majority in that case would count as much as a large one. If the president were chosen by direct popular election the South would poll 250,000 more votes and give the Democratic candidate at least a majority.

Thus do the brethren rage and imagine a vain thing.

What senatorial candidate keeps a private "booklet" at Fort Worth in pay for having himself "booked" in certain newspapers of the Southwest Times?

What does John Ireland pay his bootlickers a month to bewitch papers that exercise their right in this free country of having opinions of their own?

Talk Austin Statesman perceives that "the Fort Worth GAZETTE and the bull-boys are having a rough-and-tumble time of it. But the GAZETTE, as it usually does, comes out on top." Of course THE GAZETTE has never experienced the sensation of coming out at the bottom.

To the Dallas Times: Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road has commenced. On the ground are rails for fifteen miles and more are on route from Galveston. Waxahachie will be connected by rail with Fort Worth on the 1st of May, and then all Central Texas will be open to this proud young city. On with the bust.

The antiochian whom the Arkansas Traveler discovered is doing paragraph work on an esteemed Argentine contemporary. He asks: "What's the use of talking about how much a silver dollar is worth as long as it has a purchasing power of 100 cents?" To be sure! What's the use of covering the house as long as it doesn't rain?

The Paris Democrats have become offensive partisans. They want to elect a Democratic mayor, and being in the majority, propose to do it. In municipal elections local issues usually obscure politics, and the man best in accord with the prevailing local feeling is elected. Other things being equal, however, we see no reason why a Democratic majority should not elect Democrats to office.

The negro exodus now going on from South Carolina to Arkansas will not hurt the state that loses these citizens. If there is a greater demand for laborers than can be met by the negroes left after the emigration fever has exhausted itself, it will be supplied by white men from the North or from other states of the South. It is not South Carolina, which loses, but Arkansas, which gains these negroes, that is in a position to excite sympathy.

The January number of the Century is out of print and a new edition of 5000 copies is on the press. The publishers have had to increase the edition of the February Century, since it has been printing on account of the extra demand for this "Midwinter" number. The editors sent in word to the publishing department a few days ago that "if the public only knew how good the February number is going to be, the large edition considerably over 200,000 would be exhausted on the day of issue."

The GAZETTE still reports a large increase of orders. This is a people's license which, under the circumstances, is understandable. We presume.—Waco Examiner.

The Examiner is a doubting Thomas. It sees ads in THE GAZETTE, and refuses to believe we get any pay for them. It says THE GAZETTE is as good as the Kansas City and Denver papers, and refuses to believe that newspaper buyers also think so. Doubt on dear Examiner; we know you wish us well if you won't believe.

"Send five more daily." T. C. McKee, Dallas. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Sunday list." C. B. Massey, Paris. On with the bust.

"I want two more daily." R. F. Logan, Goldthwaite. On with the bust.

"Send four more daily." J. W. S. Donnell, Morgan. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Saturday order." A. S. O'Sell, Waco. On with the bust.

"Increase my order ten more, making 150 daily in all." Dick Chamberlin, Denton. On with the bust.

"Add twenty-five to our order for Missouri Pacific train north." Union News company. On with the bust.

Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road was begun yesterday. On with the bust to Waxahachie.

"You may add five to my daily and Sunday order, and ten to Monday." J. C. Glass, Whitesboro. On with the bust.

"I have worked up five new subscribers for you, to begin February 1 next." J. E. Hooper, Colorado. On with the bust.

We need more hotel room now. What with the need be when the Fort Worth & New Orleans road opens up a connection with the Central system on May 1st.

I need five subscriptions and will send another batch next week, and I hope the police, and in doing everything to prevent its discovery, which they would not have done if they had believed they were engaged in a lawful business.

The proposition to do away with the intervention of the electoral college and vote directly for president by the people will put the Democratic party in an embarrassing position. As a party committed to the sustaining of States rights it must oppose the change, for nothing could so effectively annihilate States rights as a general national vote for president. On the other hand, its party advantage all lies along with the new scheme. The Democratic party of the nation is in a numerical majority, and has been ever since 1870. Tilden had 250,000 more votes than Hayes. Though Garfield had a few hundred more than Hancock, it was because so many Democrats failed to vote in the South, knowing that their States would go for Hancock anyhow, and a small majority in that case would count as much as a large one. If the president were chosen by direct popular election the South would poll 250,000 more votes and give the Democratic candidate at least a majority.

Thus do the brethren rage and imagine a vain thing.

What senatorial candidate keeps a private "booklet" at Fort Worth in pay for having himself "booked" in certain newspapers of the Southwest Times?

What does John Ireland pay his bootlickers a month to bewitch papers that exercise their right in this free country of having opinions of their own?

Talk Austin Statesman perceives that "the Fort Worth GAZETTE and the bull-boys are having a rough-and-tumble time of it. But the GAZETTE, as it usually does, comes out on top." Of course THE GAZETTE has never experienced the sensation of coming out at the bottom.

To the Dallas Times: Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road has commenced. On the ground are rails for fifteen miles and more are on route from Galveston. Waxahachie will be connected by rail with Fort Worth on the 1st of May, and then all Central Texas will be open to this proud young city. On with the bust.

The antiochian whom the Arkansas Traveler discovered is doing paragraph work on an esteemed Argentine contemporary. He asks: "What's the use of talking about how much a silver dollar is worth as long as it has a purchasing power of 100 cents?" To be sure! What's the use of covering the house as long as it doesn't rain?

The Paris Democrats have become offensive partisans. They want to elect a Democratic mayor, and being in the majority, propose to do it. In municipal elections local issues usually obscure politics, and the man best in accord with the prevailing local feeling is elected. Other things being equal, however, we see no reason why a Democratic majority should not elect Democrats to office.

The negro exodus now going on from South Carolina to Arkansas will not hurt the state that loses these citizens. If there is a greater demand for laborers than can be met by the negroes left after the emigration fever has exhausted itself, it will be supplied by white men from the North or from other states of the South. It is not South Carolina, which loses, but Arkansas, which gains these negroes, that is in a position to excite sympathy.

The January number of the Century is out of print and a new edition of 5000 copies is on the press. The publishers have had to increase the edition of the February Century, since it has been printing on account of the extra demand for this "Midwinter" number. The editors sent in word to the publishing department a few days ago that "if the public only knew how good the February number is going to be, the large edition considerably over 200,000 would be exhausted on the day of issue."

The GAZETTE still reports a large increase of orders. This is a people's license which, under the circumstances, is understandable. We presume.—Waco Examiner.

The Examiner is a doubting Thomas. It sees ads in THE GAZETTE, and refuses to believe we get any pay for them. It says THE GAZETTE is as good as the Kansas City and Denver papers, and refuses to believe that newspaper buyers also think so. Doubt on dear Examiner; we know you wish us well if you won't believe.

"Send five more daily." T. C. McKee, Dallas. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Sunday list." C. B. Massey, Paris. On with the bust.

"I want two more daily." R. F. Logan, Goldthwaite. On with the bust.

"Send four more daily." J. W. S. Donnell, Morgan. On with the bust.

"Add ten more to my Saturday order." A. S. O'Sell, Waco. On with the bust.

"Increase my order ten more, making 150 daily in all." Dick Chamberlin, Denton. On with the bust.

"Add twenty-five to our order for Missouri Pacific train north." Union News company. On with the bust.

Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road was begun yesterday. On with the bust to Waxahachie.

"You may add five to my daily and Sunday order, and ten to Monday." J. C. Glass, Whitesboro. On with the bust.

"I have worked up five new subscribers for you, to begin February 1 next." J. E. Hooper, Colorado. On with the bust.

We need more hotel room now. What with the need be when the Fort Worth & New Orleans road opens up a connection with the Central system on May 1st.

I need five subscriptions and will send another batch next week, and I hope the police, and in doing everything to prevent its discovery, which they would not have done if they had believed they were engaged in a lawful business.

The proposition to do away with the intervention of the electoral college and vote directly for president by the people will put the Democratic party in an embarrassing position. As a party committed to the sustaining of States rights it must oppose the change, for nothing could so effectively annihilate States rights as a general national vote for president. On the other hand, its party advantage all lies along with the new scheme. The Democratic party of the nation is in a numerical majority, and has been ever since 1870. Tilden had 250,000 more votes than Hayes. Though Garfield had a few hundred more than Hancock, it was because so many Democrats failed to vote in the South, knowing that their States would go for Hancock anyhow, and a small majority in that case would count as much as a large one. If the president were chosen by direct popular election the South would poll 250,000 more votes and give the Democratic candidate at least a majority.

Thus do the brethren rage and imagine a vain thing.

What senatorial candidate keeps a private "booklet" at Fort Worth in pay for having himself "booked" in certain newspapers of the Southwest Times?

What does John Ireland pay his bootlickers a month to bewitch papers that exercise their right in this free country of having opinions of their own?

Talk Austin Statesman perceives that "the Fort Worth GAZETTE and the bull-boys are having a rough-and-tumble time of it. But the GAZETTE, as it usually does, comes out on top." Of course THE GAZETTE has never experienced the sensation of coming out at the bottom.

To the Dallas Times: Track-laying on the Fort Worth & New Orleans road has commenced. On the ground are rails for fifteen miles and more are on route from Galveston. Waxahachie will be connected by rail with Fort Worth on the 1st of May, and then all Central Texas will be open to this proud young city. On with the bust.

The antiochian whom the Arkansas Traveler discovered is doing paragraph work on an esteemed Argentine contemporary. He asks: "What's the use of talking about how much a silver dollar is worth as long as it has a purchasing power of 100 cents?" To be sure! What's the use of covering the house as long as it doesn't rain?

The Paris Democrats have become offensive partisans. They want to elect a Democratic mayor, and being in the majority, propose to do it. In municipal elections local issues usually obscure politics, and the man best in accord with the prevailing local feeling is elected. Other things being equal, however, we see no reason why a Democratic majority should not elect Democrats to office.

The negro exodus now going on from South Carolina to Arkansas will not hurt