PAYING THE PIPER.

One of the reasons why it costs more to live today than it cost a generation ago is that the luxuries of that time have become the necessities of today.

Forty years ago people were able to keep comfortable with wood fires which went out overnight and had to be built anew each morning at least.

Behind every kitchen stove of those days was the woodbox, and it was the duty of the small boy of the family to keep this receptacle filled.

No bed rooms were heated in those days, an exception being made, perhaps, in the case of grandmother's room.

Don't go and buy a big bouquet, For which you find it hard to pay, Don't hang around me looking blue I may be better off than you.

Don't tell the folks I was a saint, Or any old thing that I ain't, If you have hope like that to spread, Please hand it out before I'm dead.

If you have roses, bless your soul, Just pin one in my button hole, Today, while I'm alive and well, Not wait till I'm safe in heaven.

Softly the bright stars o'er Judea is gleaming, Radiant, the east for a glory is gleaming, Down on a mother; to her babe fondly chinging, And hears a song the angels are singing.

Wondering the shepherds, nightly are keeping, Flocks on the pastures but lo; they are sleeping, As the Lord's angel, himself is revealing, Sweet is the music that o'er them is stealing.

It was a great day in the home when coal became available and the base burner arrived, bringing with it unimagined luxury.

Looking back over the years, we of today wonder sometimes how people survived their discomforts and their hardships; how they managed to grow up healthy and sane and strong amid them, and how, on the whole, they enjoyed life at all, when it had so many disadvantages. But it is gravely to be doubted whether people today, with all their creature comforts, with all their luxuries which have become necessities, are any happier or get any more out of life than their forbears.

Besides, we received by parcel post from Cousin Jennie, Trenton, Tenn., a box containing a spare rib, some sausage in shucks, four rabbits, and three pounds of yellow country butter.

It is to be desired that some flowers be planted, shrubs put out, and the service of a landscape garden be vitalized at Hadley Park during the good year, 1918.

To our thousands of readers: May your passage through 1918 be on the highway of peace, plenty and prosperity.

Meanwhile, speaking of furnaces and bathtubs, if one must dance, one must also expect to pay the piper.

Kleptomaniac, well, let's see. There is no such animal, but there is a plain every day thief.

After having made some one happy on Christmas day, we are sure you felt better.

There is no need of swearing off, there is no liquor in sight and the performance would be a nullity.

Furthermore, the Negroes of Nashville need a more centrally located grammar school.

Some one has said: "work like Helen B. Happy."

But, it was a safe and sane Christmas.

Goodbye, Santa Claus, take care of yourself.

And, Happy New Year.

A BETTER JOB. By W. E. Cook, Pikeville, Tenn. When I shall quit this mortal shore

Don't weep, don't sigh, don't grieve, Don't weep, don't sigh, don't grieve, Don't weep, don't sigh, don't grieve.

I may have struck a better job, I may have struck a better job, I may have struck a better job.

Don't go and buy a big bouquet, For which you find it hard to pay, Don't hang around me looking blue

Don't tell the folks I was a saint, Or any old thing that I ain't, If you have hope like that to spread,

Please hand it out before I'm dead, Please hand it out before I'm dead, Please hand it out before I'm dead.

If you have roses, bless your soul, Just pin one in my button hole, Today, while I'm alive and well,

Not wait till I'm safe in heaven, Not wait till I'm safe in heaven, Not wait till I'm safe in heaven.

Softly the bright stars o'er Judea is gleaming, Radiant, the east for a glory is gleaming, Down on a mother; to her babe fondly chinging, And hears a song the angels are singing, And hears a song the angels are singing.

Wondering the shepherds, nightly are keeping, Flocks on the pastures but lo; they are sleeping,

As the Lord's angel, himself is revealing, Sweet is the music that o'er them is stealing, Sweet is the music that o'er them is stealing.

Down in the manger, and o'er him is streaming, Heaven's own light from the angels descending,

Singing this song majestically blend, Gloria in excelsis Deo, Gloria in excelsis Deo, Pax hominibus et bene in terra.

'Tis Christmas time, and far and near, Kind gifts we send to those most dear,

With joyous laughter, clear and sweet, Our friends, and all we daily greet, But why not make this happiness last?

O, JOY! Brother W. L. Miller, editor of the Nashville Globe, ultimates so eloquently upon the virtues of "that steak we had in Louisville"—an old home of ours—that we faint would have been with him there.

RIOTERS DIE BRAVELY. S. M. George in Ohio State Journal: It is with some feeling of gratification, we consider, that citizens—of whatever color—may contemplate the recent execution of 13 colored soldiers in Texas.

And what more was to have been expected than that the Nashville Globe, coming as it does from the Athens of the South, should forgo to the front as one of the greatest newspapers in the hands of the race?

He whose coal bin was empty and whose wardrobe exhausted, when this frigid weather slipped up and the mercury slid down to zero points, found himself in the middle of a bad fix, and like the five foolish virgins had to hustle out in the night and cold to replenish their neglected vessels.

But however keenly the neglect of temporal preparations might have been felt however dear such neglect had to be paid for in suffering, deprivation and want; it is not to be compared with the incomprehensible pangs which in their most acute and paroxysmal state shall endure forever upon those who neglect to make spiritual preparations for the awful and eternal bliss that is sure to come. —The People's Defender.

Rev. Samuel R. Skelton, D. D., the World's Leading Negro Evangelist and President of the Interdenominational Evangelical Bureau, (Col) of U. S. A., has arrived and for some time the Church has been looking forward to this distinguished evangelist's visit in this part of the city.
