LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP TAKES A TRIP EAST AND HOLDS HIS OWN

This is the eleventh of a series of stories of the life and battles of Lightweight Champion Willie Ritchie, written exclusively for The Call.

By WILLIE RITCHIE After my battle with Welsh in Los Angeles I felt that I was on my way to climb up to the top of the ladder. It gave me plenty of confidence and, while I thought that I should have been entitled to at least a draw, I did not do any hollering, for I knew that my showing would give me a reputation all over the world, and I realized that this reputation meant more to me than anything else.

The fans gave me a fine reception when I returned home, and I felt rather proud of my success, for I figured that if I had class enough to give Welsh such a tough argument I had a license to go against any of them. I really believe that the confidence which I gained in that battle helped me in my later bouts.

I wanted another crack at Welsh, and I issued a challenge to fight him in San Francisco right away. Welsh seemed willing enough, too, provided that I would make 133 pounds for him, and I agreed to do this, for I knew that I could without weakening myself.

Tom O'Day was to promote the battle, and he sent for me. We had several conferences, but could not come to terms. Welsh wanted the big end of the purse, and after his cut there would be practically nothing left for me, so the match fell through.

GOES EAST WITH McFARLAND It was then that Emil Thery, manager of Packey McFarland, came to me and talked the eastern idea into my head.

"Come back with us, Willie, and take a chance," said Thery. "I can land you all kinds of good matches back there, and I know that you can beat those fellows in the short distance game."

"But how about Packey?" I said. "Maybe he will get sore if you pay too much attention to me. I don't want to start any trouble."

"There's no danger of anything like that," replied Thery. "Packey knows that he is the big show, and he will be glad to have you along with us. He likes your work and he will boost you along."

Before I agreed to go with Thery, I had a long talk with Packey, and he told me the same thing. He gave me a whole lot of good advice, which I will always remember. Packey was friendly to me at all times, and there never was any ill feeling between us, no matter what some of the knackers used to say about us in the past.

"Come along with us, Willie," said McFarland. "Leave it to Thery. He will fix you up. You can box with me, and I will do all that I can to send you to the front, for I think that you have the goods."

This sounded right to me, so I decided that I would take Thery's advice and look the eastern field over, anyhow.

MAKES BOW IN PHILADELPHIA We went right back to Chicago, where I was well received. Packey, as everybody knows, is a hero in the Windy City, and he went right to the bat for me. He told them how I showed up with him in the training camp, how I made such a great battle with Welsh at short notice, and he said that I was entitled to a match with any of the eastern lightweight.

I felt very much at home around Chicago, for everybody treated me as though I had been there all my life. But there was no chance to fight there, and I began to get restless. After laying around for a few days, Thery dug up a match for me with Young Saylor, who, by the way, is now in Australia along with Eddie McGeorty and Ray Bronson.

Saylor might have been a lightweight, but he looked more like a walter to me. Anyhow, I guess he could have got by as a Philadelphia lightweight. Everybody knows that they weigh any place from 140 up to 170 pounds. The fighters all over the country are on to them now.

It was early in January when I met Saylor. The weather was bitterly cold, and I did not have a chance to train properly. The change affected me, for I had just left sunny California, and I was not used to that snow and that sleet. Still, I figured that I would have to put up with everything that came along if I hoped to make good in the ring. I just knuckled down and made up my mind to do the best I could.

KNOCKS OUT YANKEE SCHWARTZ My battle with Saylor was a six round, no decision affair. I must confess that I was a bit nervous, for it was all new to me. I had been used to the rough and tumble style of the four round game here, and I know that I did not give as good an exhibition as I might have.

The battle was fast at that. Saylor tried a lot of new stuff on me, and I took it all good naturedly. He was the big favorite. They gave me a lot of "Nerve Son" yells, but I expected these, so I did not pay any attention to them. Anyhow, they seemed to like my work all right, and the papers said that I showed promise, but that I had a lot to learn about the game, and I was willing to admit this, too, and also willing to learn.

A week after my bout with Saylor I jumped over to Cleveland to fight young Kohler, who was a big card there. But the day before the battle Kohler hurt himself in training, so they sent me in against a fighty, husky fellow named Yankee Schwartz. I tried my right cross on him and flattened him in two rounds, and this made me feel pretty good.

They wanted me back in Philadelphia again, so I returned. I took on Harry Trendall and Young Erne within a month. I thought that I had a good lead in each battle, but they were called draws by most of the critics, so I let them go at that, because I learned how to handle myself in the short distance game, and this experience helped me out a whole lot.

After the Erne fight the old feeling to return home got me, so I decided to go back to San Francisco. Up to this time they had been managing me, but as I was leaving and as he was busy with McFarland, we agreed to split up. There was no trouble between us, although all sorts of stories were printed about the big smashup. I still think a whole lot of Thery and Packey, and I believe they think the same of me.

The next chapter of the life of the lightweight champion will appear in Thursday's Call.

Pomona Beats Palo Alto High for the Rugby Championship

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—In one of the fastest and best played school football games ever seen in the south, the Pomona high team defeated the Palo Alto high team yesterday by a score of 27 to 10.

The game carried with it the state interscholastic title. The first half was even, and it was only in the last twenty minutes that the local team showed its superiority and played whirlwind football, rushing the Palo Alto of their feet and passing with rapidity and accuracy that the northern boys were unable to stop.

The Palo Alto team did not play up to the form that won the northern title, and did not show sufficient condition in the final stages to offset the strenuous work of the Pomona team.

Officers Named by Field Trials Club MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 16.—All officers of the National Field Trials Club, presided by W. G. O. Sage of New York, president, were re-elected here tonight at the annual meeting.

The first series of the club's first annual derby was run today over the Letohatchee course, narrowing the field down to three pairs, which will compete in the second series tomorrow. Pairs for the all age state were selected.

H. D. Duryea of New York is vice president of the club and H. R. Edwards of Cleveland, O., secretary and treasurer.

THINGS CHANGE

By L. W. NELSON

The old time fighters fought real fights and struck their blows with might and main. And in the time before the fights each man took lots of time to train; Each ran ten miles upon the road and chopped a cord of wood or two (This, every day's, the kind of thing that champs today dislike to do), And when they finally met to fight, the scrap was worth the money paid.

For fighting never stopped at all until one on his back was laid. But nowadays they hit the booze and exercise by jumping rope (And still, when beaten, have the nerve to say that some one slipped them dope). Sit up all night and wait for morn before they go a-dozing off; The hardest training stunt they know is getting out and playing golf. And when they fight they're off their form, with strength and constitution sunk; No wonder, then, that fans won't pay when modern fights are all the bunk!

SOCCER TEAM IS ENGLAND HOPES SELECTED BY STANFORD TO LIFT THE POLO CUP

Harry Maloney, coach of the Stanford university soccer team, has named the men to represent the university in a series of games at San Diego during the Christmas holidays. The team is practically the same as that which played the University of California in the intercollegiate championship series.

The men will leave here on steamer on Monday, and on arrival at San Pedro Wednesday will play a practice game there. The first game in San Diego will be played Christmas day against the Nomads of San Diego.

The San Diego team to oppose Stanford has been selected and will take the field in the following positions: Lamb, goal; Hill, Page, backs; Butcher, Kennedy, Kemp, halfbacks; Winchester, Gibson, Godman, T. Corbhill and Gorfuncle, forwards; I. Robinson and Bishop, reserves.

While Stanford is playing in San Diego the Barbarian soccerites will hook up with the Rangers team of Los Angeles. The local club team has completed arrangements for a game with the southern champion team, which will be played on Christmas day. Though the locals will not be able to take their full team south, the eleven to represent the club men is a good one.

The team to make the trip has been selected as follows: Ritchie, goal; Dyke, right back; MacCallum, left back; Lees, right half; Bartlett, center half; McKenzie, left half; Hudson, outside right; Stringer, inside right; Seymour, center; Ayres, inside left; Stanley, outside left.

The Barbarians are also negotiating with the Los Angeles Athletic club, with a view to playing a water soccer game in the athletic club tank against the southern club's team.

Other purchases include two ponies for Major F. W. Barrett, a member of the team. These are Mavourneen and Kitty. They have been placed by Barrett in many cup matches in England.

Jack Johnson Is No Wrestling Champion PARIS, Dec. 16.—Jack Johnson was pelted with a great variety of stale vegetables tonight after his defeat by the Scotch wrestler, Jimmy Esson, at the Nouveau cirque. Esson won an easy victory over the negro pugilist at catch as catch can.
