

BAD ASCHOLERA.

Troops Repulsed by Thousands of Rioters.

Battle Between Russian Cossacks and a Murderous Mob.

Who Finally Carried the Baricaded Mosques—Many Killed and Wounded—Stories That Cholera Patients Were Being Poisoned Did It.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—Private information received in this city from Tashkent, a small town in Asiatic Russia, of Syr-Darya, gives particulars of serious riots which occurred at that place July 6, in connection with the government's attempts to suppress the cholera epidemic.

The natives, thinking that the doctors had been poisoning many patients who were cholera victims, became greatly excited. Five thousand angry, excited people suddenly invaded the Russian quarters of the town and wrecked the magnificent residence of Deputy Gov. Poustansoff, who fled on the approach of the howling mob. His flight was discovered, however, and he was pursued and overtaken in the street by a large and infuriated crowd of the attackers, who mercilessly vented their fury on the helpless official. He was surrounded on all sides by enemies hungering for his blood, and was maltreated in a terrible manner. He pleaded with his assailants for mercy, but his appeals were in vain, and at length he was flung to the ground, and after being trampled upon by the desperate rioters, was assailed with a shower of stones until the life had been beaten out of him and his features had been mutilated beyond recognition. The authorities having become aware of the state of affairs in the town took immediate steps to suppress the disorders and protect the other endangered officials. A body of troops was hurried to the scene of the attack on the deputy governor, and they were given orders to adopt the most rigorous measures in dealing with the rioters. Arriving at the place where the defiant Sarts were assembled, the troops opened fire on their ranks, killing several of them. The Sarts were armed with pistols and daggers, and, nothing daunted by the deadly fire poured into them, held their ground amid a desperate resistance to the soldiers. The two forces closed in on each other, and a desperate hand-to-hand fight resulted, the maddened Sarts, when their pistols had been emptied, slashed furiously about with their daggers and doing much execution with these weapons. The drilled and better armed soldiers were unable to overcome their fanatical opponents, and additional troops had to be sent to their assistance.

They were reinforced by a body of Cossacks and with the valuable aid of these soldiers they finally succeeded in quelling the riot and dispersing the Sarts in all directions. The Sarts were not disheartened by this repulse and soon took steps to resume their attack. They collected around the mosques, and taking possession of these edifices, at once set about the work of converting them into temporary forts, and defied the authorities to do battle with them. A large number of soldiers were dispatched to the scene of the new manifestations on the part of the rioters, and attempted to dislodge them from their strongholds. This was no easy task, however, as the Sarts were strongly ensconced behind the protecting walls of the mosques and could shoot down the soldiers while they themselves were in a practically safe position.

The Sarts made a sturdy resistance to every effort of the soldiers to drive them from the buildings, and fired from loopholes with telling effect upon the invaders. The troops at last concentrated their forces, and making a grand assault they triumphantly carried the mosques, and a scene of carnage ensued. The fighting inside the structures was of the most desperate and sanguinary character. Although the Sarts found they could not cope with their military opponents no quarter was asked for nor was any given, and they fell by scores before the weapons of the soldiers, their desperate courage being unwavering and their defiance unceasing to the very end. The character of the struggle may be imagined when it is known that sixty of the Sarts were killed and that hundreds of them were wounded, many of them most grievously. The soldiers, too, suffered heavily, the Russian loss being fifteen killed and many wounded.

The riot caused tremendous excitement and the authorities found it necessary to patrol the town day and night. Many arrests were made. It is feared that there will be another outbreak, and the troops are being strengthened.

Sprague Estate Final Dividend.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 2.—Trustee Sweetland, of the Sprague estate, is now paying the Sprague creditors a final dividend of 3-30 per cent, making in all 27 5-30 per cent. According to the trust mortgage deed the value of the Sprague estate was $20,000,000, and liabilities $14,000,000 due to 125 creditors.

Supposed Murderer Arrested.
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 2.—Adolph O. Blosser, who it is thought killed Peter Zurbuchen, whose body was found in the river last week, has been arrested and placed in jail to await his examination.

COUNTY OFFICIAL ABDUCTED

In Order to Prevent the Levy of a Tax—The Deed of Masked Men in Kansas.

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 2.—All Hartger county is in an uproar over the alleged abduction Monday morning of one of the county commissioners and the attempted carrying off of speedometer member. Monday the board of county commissioners were to meet and levy a tax to cover county railroad bonds to the amount of $110,000, long overdue, and which, it is claimed, are fraudulent.

The people, through the commissioners, have fought the payment of the bonds through every court, and finally the supreme court ordered them paid. Some alliance leaders, however, have promised to uphold the commissioners if they denied the court's order, and it is not known whether the absent member of the board is a voluntary or enforced absentee. The story is that a body of masked men called Monday morning at Commissioner Amon Farmer's house and carried him off, and that another force went to Commissioner Abe Terrell's place for the same purpose, but found him absent.

Terrell was at the board meeting, but owing to Farmer's absence an adjournment was taken without any levy being made. The bonds in question were voted a score of years ago, when first the county was organized, to some railroad company that built a few miles of road, sold the bonds, then tore up the line and left the county.

CONVICT DOYLE

Makes an Attempt at Suicide in the Ohio Penitentiary.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 2.—James Doyle, a five year convict from Ottawa county for burglary and larceny, attempted suicide at the penitentiary Monday morning. He tried to hang himself with his gas jet with a sheet, but was discovered by Guard McHenry and cut down before he was at all the worse for the stretching. Doyle is a former pal of Frank Rowland, the convict who suicided a few weeks ago and left a confession of murder. They were convicted and sent up together for the same job. Doyle has been troubled with hallucinations ever since Rowland killed himself. He imagines that Rowland visits his cell at the witching hour and bends over him in a spectral form. The supposition now is that Doyle fears Rowland implicated him in other crimes in the confession.

Mexican Robbers Shot to Death.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 2.—An organized band of robbers, seven in number, has been arrested and shot in the town of Santos, state of Jalisco, for the murder of a merchant named Francisco Vallejo and his wife, who were killed for a small sum of money and three burros. The finding of a sombrero with blood stains on the river, and a handkerchief with the name of one of the murderers on the scene of the crime, led to the apprehension of the perpetrators. The bodies of the victims had been thrown into a disused well and covered with stones.

A Frenzied Parachute Incident.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Aug. 2.—The parachute craze has overcome the small boys, and Monday two or three little fellows made one of these descending vehicles from an old horse blanket by tying the four corners with their mothers' clothes lines. One of them jumped from Maddox's big barn and, contrary to expectations, went down like a shot. Fortunately he alighted on a manure pile, and, other than a bad shaking up, sustained no injuries.

Wept Over Freda's Grave.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 2.—Alice Mitchell was taken to the insane asylum at Bolivar Monday evening. Before her departure she was taken to the grave of Freda Ward, at Elmwood, at her own request, and there she shed silent tears and plucked flowers to carry away and preserve as mementoes. This last scene in the Mitchell-Ward drama was one of intense pathos.

A Significant Sentence.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—The first general circular issued by the Iron Hall early in the eighties will be recalled by those who saw it when it is mentioned that it had this heading: "You Don't Have to Die to Beat This Game." The order's literature has been decorated from that day to this with lurid quotations from every source available for emphasis.

Mother Falls Dead at the Christening.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind., Aug. 2.—At Sparta, five-n miles west of here Sunday, Fred Slater and wife took their twin babies to the church to be christened. Just at the close of the ceremonies the happy mother, while walking down the aisle suddenly fell forward and expired. Not a groan escaped her. Heart disease.

A Big Heist.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 2.—Charles V. Whaley, formerly business manager of the Chicago Evening Journal, was arrested in this city Monday night on a charge of embezzling funds to the amount of $150,000, belonging to the Journal Co.

Death of Gen. Fry.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 2.—Gen. Speer Fry, the man who killed Zollicoffer in a hand-to-hand conflict at the battle of Mill Creek, on the Tennessee line, January 15, 1862, died Monday night at the soldiers home, near this city.

Somberly Appears and Disappears.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—Freeman D. Somerby arrived Monday evening from Detroit and dined with his private secretary, Rowland Evans. Since then he has disappeared in order, it is supposed, to escape being interviewed.

The Eight Hour Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The president, Monday, signed the act limiting hours of labor of laborers and mechanics employed on public works.
