Attempt to Capture the Notorious Flemings.

They Are Implicated in the Murder of the Mullins Family.

A Desperate Encounter Takes Place, in Which All the Participants Were Hurt and Two Are Already Dead—Another, It Is Believed, Will Die.

Big Stone Gap, Va., Jan. 29.—Ed Hall and "Doc" Swindell, two of the men shot in the terrible fight with the Fleming boys at Boggs, W. Va., last Saturday, arrived here Sunday. From them was learned the full particulars of the fight, the facts of which have been so meagerly reported, owing to the inaccessibility of the town from railroad and telegraph.

Off and on since the bloody and fiendish murder of the Mullins family, almost two years ago, by Doc Taylor, recently hanged, and the Fleming boys, parties of men have been on the watch and have made raids to capture the Flemings.

Most active in these raids were the Branham boys, Ed Hall and Doc Swindell. So eager and conspicuous were they that at times when they came upon the Flemings they were singled out as marks for their unerring rifles.

Escorted in the mountain fastnesses of Kentucky, among friends, it was almost impossible to get at the Flemings. So secure they felt that they went so far as to plant a crop, one of them in women's dress doing the plowing and attended to the running of a sawmill.

The Branham crowd did not, however, give up the pursuit, but have hunted and watched for the past year. The Flemings repeatedly sent them word that they would on old scores shoot any of them on sight. The motive of the Branham crowd in the capture, that of obtaining the reward for the bodies, dead or alive, and never from a sense of bringing the guilty to justice, now turned to a personal matter. With the Indian thirst for revenge Jno Branham, Ed Hall and Doc Swindell began in earnest to wipe out at any cost their differences.

They soon made it too hot for the Flemings in Kentucky, causing them to make their way into West Virginia. Branham, Hall and Swindell followed closely after them, and on last Saturday located them in Boggs, an out-of-the-way town in West Virginia. To be sure they were not wrong in their men, a man in the guise of a tax collector was sent to question them. He returned with evidence sufficient to convince them they were really the Fleming boys. Branham and his party now made their preparations for the fight, which they well knew the Flemings, for revenge and rather than face the hangman's noose, would make to the death.

The Flemings were making some purchases in a little store when Hall, the first of three, walked fearlessly in and caught Cal Fleming with one hand while he brought his pistol to bear with the other. Instantly Henan Fleming leveled his pistol and the ball grazed the back of Hall's head, causing him to loose his hold on Cal, who then drew his pistol and began firing. Hall, recovering himself, drove a 44 into Cal Fleming's brain, felling him to the floor. In the meantime Henan Fleming's unerring aim had been doing deadly work. Swindell, before, either from slowness or fright, he could fire, received a ball through the neck and made for the door. John Branham, in spite of his bravery, was lying on the floor with one hole just above the left and one through his right lung. Hall now turned his attention to Henan, and a bloody duel followed. Standing face to face at a distance of ten paces they fought unflinchingly until, with one bullet through his chin and his hand rendered useless, Henan Fleming ran into a back room to make his escape. Finding no outlet, he ran back to the door and threw up his bloody and still bleeding hands, with the fingers shot almost off.

"I can't do any more, Ed," he said; "I surrender."

Branham and Cal Fleming have since died. If Henan Fleming lives, which is not certain, it is believed that if the chance is given him he will turn state's evidence and implicate in the murder of the Mullins' family men whom no one for an instant suspect of being connected with such a terrible deed.

DESTRUCTIVE FLAMES.

Brook Block and All Adjoining Buildings at Loveland, O., Burned.

LOVELAND, O., Jan. 29.—One of the worst fires that has ever occurred in Loveland broke out Sunday morning at 8 o'clock in the Brook block on Broadway, and succeeded in burning, except the Lever building, all the business houses on that street. The fire was discovered in the rear of John Shulser's drug store, but before the fire company could reach the scene had spread to the storeroom of John D. Starry on one side, and the post office on the other.

There being so much oil and paints stored in the drug store the fire soon spread to the Masonic hall and J. H. Dobson's store, when the mayor telegraphed to Morrowtown for aid. The Morrowtown company responded promptly, and at 1 o'clock the fire was subdued.

The following buildings were destroyed and firms burned out: W. W. Brook's two storerooms, occupied by John D. Starry and J. H. Dobson; loss $10,000, no insurance on buildings. J. J. Shulser, building and drug-store; loss $5,000, De Mulloy's building, (postoffice); loss $5,000, insured. Mrs. Dempsey's saloon, damaged by smoke and water; loss $500. At 11 o'clock Sunday night he was in about the same condition, with nothing upon which hope of recovery could be based.

Together With a Full Kit of Safe-Blowing Tools, Revolver, Etc.

Toledo Detectives Make a Good Hunt, Landing John Flavel, Charles Proctor and Henry Jackson Behind the Bars on a Tip From Wyandotte, Mich.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 29.—John Flavel, alias "Johnny the Rat," Charles Proctor and Henry Jackson, three of the most notorious safe blowers in the United States, were arrested on a Michigan Central train a mile outside of this city, at 11:30 Friday night, but not until after a desperate fight with the Toledo detectives did the three criminals surrender. They were apprehended on a tip sent from Wyandotte, Mich., by an ex-detective of this city, who recognized the trio when they boarded the Michigan Central train in Detroit at 9:15.

When the local officers met the train at the Wagon Works, a station a mile from Toledo, Proctor and Jackson were asleep. Flavel recognized his danger at once, and reached for his revolver, but was pinned to his seat by three officers before he got the weapon out.

When he and his pals were searched at the station a full kit of safe-blowing tools, nitroglycerine and two revolvers were found on them. They have served time in Joliet, Ill., Columbus, O., and several other places, and are among the criminals in Supt. Byrnes' rogues' gallery. Flavel, alias "Johnny the Rat," is known as one of the most murderous crooks in the United States.

EXTENDED

To February 1 is the Debate on the Wilson Bill in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—There was a slim attendance on the floor and only a fair attendance in the galleries when the house met at 11 o'clock Saturday. Prominent among the members was Mr. Cockran (D., N. Y.), prepared to continue his tactics against the income tax bill. He was spared the necessity, however, for Mr. Haines, another democratic member of the New York delegation, made the point of no quorum. The roll was then called.

Mr. Outwaite, from the committee on rules, brought in a special order extending the time for the consideration of the tariff bill until February 1, and giving over Monday and Tuesday to general debate on the income tax bill. Mr. Cockran (dem., N. Y.) the spokesman of the opponents of the income tax bill, asked that debate under the five-minute rule begin at 2:30 Tuesday and continue to the same hour Wednesday. Objected to.

The previous question being ordered the resolution was agreed to—but one vote being given against it, that of Mr. Cockran.

GOSPEL IN THE DARK.

Remarkable Experience of Minister and Congregation at Pomeroy, O.

POMEROY, O., Jan. 29.—Rev. D. S. Porter, who is holding a protracted meeting at the M. E. church here, preached a sermon Friday night under circumstances unequalled in the history of the city. Just as he had completed reading his text the city electric light plant broke down and plunged the church into darkness, no doubt blacker than that historical article of the Egyptians. He paused long enough to request the people to sit quietly in their seats and then went on for thirty minutes to turn from the evil of their ways, and at the close of the sermon, he said: "I suppose my congregation is still here, so we will sing a familiar hymn and be dismissed." This incident produced a most weird effect.

A Rule Agreed Upon.—WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The house committee on rules has agreed to an order allowing the income tax to be offered as an amendment to the tariff bill, giving Monday and Tuesday for general debate, Wednesday for debate and amendments under the five-minute rule, with general debate in the evenings, the vote to come on the tariff bill and amendments on Thursday noon; it is expected there will be a hot fight before the rule is adopted.

Valliant Asks No Favors.—PARIS, Jan. 29.—The court of appeals having sustained the sentence of death passed upon Auguste Valliant, the man who threw the bomb in the chamber of deputies, the only hope the prisoner has of escaping the guillotine is in President Carnot, who has it in his power to either pardon or commute. As yet Valliant has not signed any petition to the president asking for clemency.

MIDWINTER EXPOSITION.

The San Francisco Fair Opened With Great Pomp.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Saturday is a great day in the history of the Golden state. It marks the formal opening of the Midwinter exposition, a Chicago World's fair in miniature, which owes its inception to the wonderful triumph of which the metropolis of the west was the scene last year. Technically the grounds have been open for visitors since New Year's day, but the formal inauguration was delayed owing to the fact that many of the buildings and exhibits were at that time far from completion. By proclamation Gov. Markham declared the day a legal holiday throughout the state, and his action was seconded by Mayor Elliott, who issued a proclamation closing all municipal offices and calling upon business men of the city to close their establishments. This request was very generally complied with, and between the suspension of business and the elaborate decorations and abundance of bunting San Francisco presented a gala appearance.

The formal exercises at the exposition grounds were preceded by a grand parade of the National Guard, friendly and patriotic societies and the municipal departments. The procession was several miles in length and the twenty divisions were each headed by a brass band. The exercises opened at 2 o'clock in the court of honor on the green sward of which there was standing room for over a hundred thousand people. A grand stand with accommodations for several thousand people had also been erected, and this was occupied by representative people from nearly every state in the union. The programme opened with an address of welcome by Gov. Markham on behalf of the state and Mayor Elliott spoke for the city of San Francisco. Director General De Young spoke for the exposition, and then, amid a salvo of applause and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the United bands, Mrs. De Young pressed the button, the machinery was started in motion and California's fair was an accomplished fact. When the enthusiasm had subsided Gen. W. H. L. Barnes, the silver-tongued orator of the Pacific coast, commenced what proved to be a most eloquent oration. The ceremonies closed with the playing of "America" by the United bands of the exposition, the multitude of spectators joining in the chorus. Saturday night there will be a grand display of fireworks.

While in point of grandeur and impressiveness, California's World's fair is not open to comparison with the Columbian exposition, yet at the same time it is a noted exemplification of what energy and determination can accomplish in this country in a period of a few months. The principal buildings may be described in brief as follows: Manufacturers and Liberal Arts, 462 feet long and 225 feet wide; Manufactures and Liberal Arts annex, 370 feet long and 60 feet wide; total area of building, including annex and gallery, 177,000 square feet; total cost, $120,000. Mechanic Arts building, 330 feet long and 160 feet wide; total area of building, including galleries, 57,041 square feet; total cost, $72,000.

Horticulture and agriculture building, 400 feet long and 190 feet wide; total area of building, including hall floors, 77,397 square feet; total cost, $62,300. Building of fine arts, total space in running feet for exhibit of paintings, 2,000; total cost, $64,000. Administration building, 70 square feet; total floor area, 16,400 square feet; total cost, $30,000. Festival hall, 141 by 133 feet; total cost, $20,000.

The total outlay to date on account of the fair has been in the neighborhood of a million and a half dollars. Of this half a million has come from concessionaires. The people of San Francisco put up $700,000 and the people of the state the rest. Most of the subscriptions were in small amounts save the one of $50,000 from the Southern Pacific road. The fair lacks a midway pleasure, but there are some two score side shows scattered through the grounds that in the aggregate duplicate the attractions of that once famous thoroughfare. There are the same Turkish, French and German restaurants, the same Old Vienna, the German tavern, the same rolling chairs, Cairo street, Chinese theater, ostrich farm, captive balloon, Hawaiian cyclorama, and, in fact, duplicates of the most of the attractions that gave the Midway Pleasure name and fame. There are many state structures, together with structures for occupation by Canada, Great Britain, Italy and Servia, Rumania and Montenegro.

FROM JAPAN.

A Growing Movement There Against Foreigners.

The Soshi Advocating the Expulsion of Foreign Missionaries.

Great Excitement Exists, and Bloodshed and Violence May Be Precipitated at Any Time—An Element as Dangerous as the European Anarchists.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—News brought by the steamer Belgic shows that Japan is in a state of excitement, and that bloodshed and violence may be precipitated at any time. In Japan the anti-foreign agitation increases. The sudden dissolution of Parliament simply advertised the weakness of the government. A majority of the lower house, the vice-president of the diet and the Christians are all clamoring for the enforcement of the treaty revision, which means that foreigners will be debarred from extending trade in the interior, and that they will be forced to give up consular courts and submit to the jurisdiction of Japanese tribunals, which are notoriously prejudiced and corrupt. The capital is over-run with Soshi of poor scholars, who are venomous haters of everything foreign. They advertise to lend their services to candidates desiring election, for money, and they seem to be reviving the lawless practices of the Ronins, who flourished under the old feudal system in Japan.

From these men, who are as reckless and desperate as European anarchists, there is much to fear. They have already made several assaults on foreigners in Tokio and Yokohama, and ladies have been grossly insulted in the streets. The Soshi are advocating the expulsion of foreign missionaries, although every progressive Japanese admits that the missionaries have done much to aid the country and to bring in wealth. Curiously enough, many native Christians declare that the withdrawal of the missionaries will help Christianity; so the anti-foreign movement is religious, political and commercial, and it is gaining such headway that the best observers in Yokohama declare that the government will have great difficulty in checking it, or in preventing open outrages. England has done nothing to protect her subjects, but it is understood Russia has declared that the expulsion of foreigners from the interior, and the closing of all except the large ports, will not be tolerated. The foreign colonies in Tokio and Yokohama are alarmed as the native hatred is so plainly manifested, that they fear street riots.

MENTALEGRAPHY.

Two Foreigners Develop a Remarkable Power of Mind Reading.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Two young foreigners, who met for the first time at the World's fair, have developed a new process of mind reading that is believed by experts to be the brain communication Edison has been trying to discover, and which he calls mentelegraphy. Frank Hagen, a Norwegian in charge of the exhibits in the Danish section, met Richard Foss, a visitor from Copenhagen, and they became close friends.

Unconscious of any mental communication, they frequently told each other what they were thinking, and soon made the startling discovery that it was an easy matter to read each other's thoughts. To them it was neither an art nor science, but an unexplainable phenomenon. They are giving careful study to the question, and have come to the conclusion that their brains are as telephones at opposite ends of an invisible wire. At private exhibition before several newspaper men, numerous severe tests were given them that they carried through successfully. Every effort was made to detect a system of signals, but the result was always the same.

Public Printer.—WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—It was reported Sunday night with considerable positiveness that the president has promised the public printership to F. A. Crandall, of Buffalo, N. Y. A New York democratic congressman says the president told him that he did not intend to make any more appointments, surely none from his state, until the senate confirmed a lot of nominations before it. New York democrats do not know of the president's reported intention to nominate Crandall public printer.
