

BORN A FIEND.

H. H. Holmes Confesses to His Many Atrocities.

He Unfeelingly Describes the Commission of Twenty-Seven Murders.

Holmes Born With the Evil One as His Sponsor, and He Has Been With Him Ever Since—He Murdered for the Love of It—Great Cruelty.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—H. H. Holmes, who is to be executed in this city May 7 for the murder of Benj. Pitzel, makes confession of that and his many other crimes. The multi-murderer introduces his confession with the following:

"The following confession was written by me in Philadelphia county prison, as a true and accurate confession in all particulars. It is the only confession of my fearful crimes I have ever made or will make. I wrote it fully appreciating all the horrors it contains and how it condemns me before the world."

"April 9, 1894."
In prefacing the confession, which covers in full nearly two newspaper pages, written in Holmes' own handwriting, and detailing with a minuteness that is simply appalling, the arch-murderer and author of 27 murders, as he admits himself to be, states with something like pathos that he does so simply that he may obtain money enough to educate his boy.

Holmes writes of his blood-curdling atrocities with an abandon that simply appalls one. Not one grain of remorse seems to enter into the construction of that document, and never for a moment, except in two isolated cases—where he refers touchingly to the memory of Minnie Williams, and another time, when he pathetically speaks of an outrage perpetrated on his boy—does the redeeming element, pity, figure in the case. Regret is never for a moment expressed, and he comes out boldly and without compunction on his very opening with the statement: "I was born with the very devil in me."

Even now he believes that the evil spirit is the guiding genius of his destiny. He believes that he is fully under the spell of the damned, and despite the assertions to the contrary that he is receiving the attentions of a minister of God, and is gradually becoming imbued with the spirit of forgiveness and religion, he feels that he is lost hopelessly. He even goes further. He asserts that he is gradually changing in appearance, in figure; that his face is becoming distorted, and he sees, whether in the distortion of his bloody imagination, which conjures up hosts of vengeance-calling dead, or not, his face assuming the look, the eyes the leer, and the very ears the exact similitude of the picture of Satan himself.

"I was born with the devil in me," says he to one part of his confession. "I could not help the fact that I was a murderer no more than the poet can help the inspiration to song, nor the ambition of an intellectual man to be great. I was born with the evil one standing as my sponsor beside the bed where I was ushered into the world, and he has been with me since."

"The inclination to murder came to me as naturally as the inclination to do right comes to the majority of persons. Where others' hearts were touched with pity, mine filled with cruelty, and wherein the others the feeling was to save life, I revolved in the thought of destroying the same."

"Not only that I was not satisfied in taking it in the ordinary way, I conceived of a vice strange, fantastical and even grotesque. It pleased my fancy. It gave me pay to work my murderous will, and I revealed in it with the enthusiasm of any alchemist who is hot on the trail of the philosopher's stone."

"This inclination," continues Holmes, "came to me early in life. I remember, when a mere lad, my ambition was to study medicine, that I might know the relative effects of poisonous gases; that I might fully become acquainted with their uses, and learn to be an expert in handling them."

"I am convinced," he declares, "that since my imprisonment I have changed woefully and gruesomely from what I formerly was in feature and in figure."

"If you look at my picture, when I was first taken into custody in Boston, nearly two years ago, and look at my face now, you may begin to observe something of what I mean."

"I mean, in fact, that my features are assuming nothing more or less than a pronounced satanic cast; that I have been afflicted with that disease, rare but terrible, with which physicians are acquainted, but over which they seem to have no control whatever."

"That disease," he declares, "is a malformation or distortion of the osseous part, causing deformity so marked that in many cases men are made to assume likenesses to the inferior animal."

"The horror of the thing did not pall on me, for it was quite in keeping with my nature, and like a true medical student, I began to study the new conditions that had arisen."

"From what I can see I fully believe I am growing to resemble the devil; that the osseous part of my head and face are gradually assuming that elongated shape so pronounced in what is called the degenerate head, and that the similitude is almost completed."

HOLMES' LETTERS.

Written After His Conviction, to H. W. Bullock, His Attorney, in Regard to the Murder of Pitzel, Ind., April 13.—Sunday B., at a curious series of letters was turned over to the United Press by H. W. Bullock, attorney for the murderer, H. H. Holmes, written by Holmes from his cell in the Philadelphia county prison.

Bullock was retained by Holmes after his conviction to collect evidence to clear him of the murder of young Howard Pitzel, supposed to have been committed at a cottage rented by Holmes in Irvington, a suburb of Indianapolis. In his letters he gives copious notes of evidence to be secured and in one he makes out a regular brief in which he urges Bullock to get Wishard, the attorney of the Franklin family, as he calls his wife's people, to use in clearing the case up in their minds. He says in one of his letters that he has no hope of saving his life, but is anxious to have this investigation pursued after his execution. All the way through he gives evidence of being pressed for money and finally declares that he will have to fall back upon the offer of a newspaper syndicate of $5,000 for his confession.

COL. INGERSOLL.

The Great Agnostic Speaks to the Church Militant Congregation, Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 13.—With a prelude that included the pronouncing of an invocation, the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison, the reading of the tenth chapter of Luke, commencing with the 25th verse, the singing of an hosanna of "Nearer My God to Thee" and "America," the greatest living agnostic of the age stepped to the rostrum of the Church Militant Sunday morning and for nearly two hours expounded to the congregation his views upon "How mankind could be reformed." The Church Militant is composed of the major portion of the former adherents of the Fuller Avenue Presbyterian church, one of the strongest parishes of that denomination in the city, and who, with their pastor, Rev. Dr. John Rusk, branched off into an independent organization some months since, as a result of opposition to the minority of the congregation, to the introduction of radical changes in the conduct of the services.

MASKED MEN

Take a Negro From Jail at Seal, Ala., and String Him Up.

The mob aroused the jailer with the story that he had a prisoner to put in jail and on his appearing, he was surrounded and his keys taken. Adams was carried to a clump of trees about two hundred yards away and hanged. His body was cut down Sunday morning.

Adams was laid and shot R. T. Renfro last November, and after shooting him, robbed his person, burglarized his store and set fire to his dwelling. Adams had been on trial last week, and after deliberating from Wednesday until Saturday, the jury could not agree and a mistrial was announced.

FROM SPAIN.

Ex-Consul Hobart C. Taylor, of Chicago, Arrives in New York.

He Has Been Making an Extensive Tour Through the Spanish Domain.

Spain Not Averse to War With the United States—Ignorance Regarding the Size and Resources of Our Country—People Inflamed by the Press.

New York, April 13.—Among the passengers on board the American line steamship New York were Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Chatfield Taylor, of Chicago.

Mr. Taylor was the consul of Spain at Chicago during the World's fair and he and his wife have been making a tour of Spain. They went aboard on September 1 and spent some time in Madrid, but had left before the breaking out of the Barcelona riots. Mr. Taylor was not surprised at the troubles, as the feeling against America and Americans was intense in Spain.

"Spain is proud and sensitive," said Mr. Taylor, "and I have no doubt that she is not averse to war with the United States. There appears, as far as I was able to see, only one opinion in Spain regarding the Cuban troubles, and that is that the rebellion must be overcome if it takes every drop of Spanish blood and every peseta of Spanish treasure. Spain is confident that she can quell the revolution if this country does not step in. She has improved wonderfully since the last Cuban war, and is consequently better equipped to deal with the insurgents than before."

"While in Madrid, I talked with political leaders, such as Senor Moret, formerly minister of foreign affairs; Sagasta, leader of the liberals; and Silveira, a conservative leader. From these talks I am led to believe that the Spanish leaders understand the institutions and people of the United States far better than our own political leaders do those of old Spain. Outside of the better classes there is a great amount of ignorance regarding the size and resources of this country. The men I have mentioned, and their colleagues, realize the effects of a war with the United States, and realize the great odds against which their country would have to fight. Consequently they do not wish to precipitate a war and few of them believe that Spain would have any chance of being successful."

VESSEL DESTROYED.

The Tugboat Peter Dalton Burned—The Crew Rescued.

CHICAGO, April 13.—The tug Peter Dalton, of the Independent Towing Co., burned early Sunday morning two miles off Rogers park. The crew was rescued by the Welcome, of the same company, which happened to be passing the Dalton when the fire broke out. The fire originated about the furnace. Not a little anxiety was felt on account of the fact that the tug had a quantity of dynamite on board. The only hose on board was a small coil three-quarters of an inch in size. This was inadequate but the men did the best they could in trying to keep the flames down until they could get a place of safety.

FOR SCROFULA.

"Since childhood, I have been afflicted with scrofulous boils and sores, which caused me terrible suffering. Physicians were unable to help me, and I only grew worse under their care. At length, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and very soon grew better. After using half a dozen bottles I was completely cured, so that I have not had a boil or pimple on any part of my body for the last twelve years.
