THE INDIANS!
They Certainly Had the Old Town Last Night.

RED FIRE AND PLENTY TO EAT.

The great trail of the aborigines passed over our streets last night amid the glare of red fire which came from the spruce and the pine.

The Tribes were in war paint and feathers, having brought the papoose as a memento should the pipe of peace fail to favorably flow to appease the wrath of the progressive paleface.

There have been trails, then again there have not been trails, but certainly to the latter class last night's Wyandotte entertainment does not belong.

From the sixth sleep to the sixth dawning the whoop and war cry of the Redmen were heard, making the night hideous and palefaced to seek the covert of their abodes—huts of logs in which they dwelt, with the flint lock ready over the door, while a strict vigil is kept within—eyes ever at the peep-holes scanning the surrounding wood for the creeping, soft-footed devils who lurk and stealthily steal upon the settlers who, with the march of progress, disperse barbarity and rude way of living by transplanting them with humane deeds, charity and intelligence.

Giantonoma, Monadnock and Whoop who with Minnehaha and Waugam, following close came little papoose strapped to the board with cords, while on the back he gaily rode with his shrill cry of waaee, waaee. The Medicine Man with herbs and kettle. The Wild Maid Lover with club for battle. The Pocahontas girls in brass bedecked with beads and moccasins, sandals and crowns, while over them all, in warrior-like mien, the whoop and club were hung.

To the glare of the light and the beat of the kettle these Indians marched to the tune of "Me-na-me-me-ni-me-no," ominous, guttural gibberish, crazy, wild and uncouth, laggard and lazy, rearing and plunging on bridleless horse, with blanket to cover their persons, the mighty clubs swing, the Chiefs' whoops ring and the swoop of the inhabitants of the wilds is made and poor paleface is captured, whorescap pays the penalty they exact for the lack of the red in his face. Forth to the Wigwam they bear him away amid shouts which omen a transport joyless, fierce and direful, but by degrees he learns that his fate is not so hard after once adopted, for dressed in the costume of a son of the forest he stands to march against the scene which now stands open before him. The banquet is spread and the tables all groan with their weight of edibles daintily served and bountifully supplied. Mine Host Willett arranged his dining-room with those tempting viands which whet a dull appetite and make gourmands of all these Indians.

At 11 o'clock the banquet began and continued with unabated zeal until the smaller hours which make revelry cease, and thus only by force of circumstances was stopped one of the most successful trails which Redmanship in Kentucky has enjoyed.

The great showing of visitors in the line and on the streets made the old town wild with festivity and glad with joy.

The Manchester Tribe arrived by boat, having on board the regular Indians as well as the Uniform Rank of Redmen, a gallant, handsomely appareled lot of men who made a fine show in the parade. Bradyville, Aberdeen, Bentonville and other towns came in force, while Augusta's Paughcaughnashique were to come by their own boat, but it getting crippled—the name clogged the shaft—the Manchester boys quickly sailed down la belle after them.

They soon arrived in great strength with a fine band of music, which with Manchester's band, made the air delightfully heavy with sweet sound.

Policeman "Doc" Wallace was the unfortunate paleface who lost his scalp. Very likely his chair at the table will be

Liver Trouble

When the yellow flag of quarantine is hoisted over a dwelling it means disease and danger. So when the yellow flag flies in the face—when the cheek is sallow and the clear white of the eye is dyed saffron—there is danger. It is liver trouble. The liver is one of the most important organs of the body. On the proper discharge of its functions depend human health and happiness. When the liver fails of its duty, poisons at once begin to generate, and other organs of the body become involved. Never neglect the liver if you value health. If you are suffering from liver trouble, begin at once the use of AYER'S PILLS and you will find prompt relief and permanent cure.

"I was so weakened by liver trouble that I could scarcely lift my head. While in this condition I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued their use until I was cured of my complaint."
H. R. W. BENTLEY,

not used for some time—the mantle-piece is more proper.

With toasts and music, happy speeches and many beautiful women of Augusta and Manchester to grace the occasion surely nothing was lacking at the Trail of the Redmen to make it a great go.

The rain might have gone away for a little time, but even that came down.
