WHAT OF THAT.

Tired! Well what of that? Didst fancy life spent on beds of ease, Fluttering the rose leaves scattered by the breeze? Come, rouse thee! Work while it is called today!

Lonely! And what of that? Some must be lonely! 'Tis not given to all To feel a heart responsive rise and fall, To blend another life into its own.

Hard! Well, and what of that? Didst fondly dream the sun would never set? Dost fear to lose thy way? Take courage yet!

No help! Nay, it's not so! Though human help be far, thy God is nigh, Who feeds the ravens, hears his children cry, He's near thee, wheresoe'er thy foot-steps roam, And He will guide thee, light thee, help thee home.

NOT HIS POLITICS.

But He Does Agree With "The Ledger" on Most Subjects.

The following letter from a loyal gentleman—loyal to his old town and to his friends—will be read with interest by all who know him—

HILLSBORO, O., Sep. 12th, 1900. Friend Davis: I notice on paper my subscription expired August 16th, 1900, to LEDGER. I do not agree (as you know) with the politics of the paper, but I do agree with its conclusions on most other subjects, and moreover it is a good paper for all items of interest occurring in my native town. It is courageously edited and spicy, and I therefore renew my subscription for the year beginning where the last ended, for which find my check. I have been planning a brief visit to "the Gates of the Bluegrass," but the infernal hot weather has so far knocked out all traveling propensities. Very cordially your friend, C. H. COLLINS.

SUDDENLY STRICKEN.

A Louisville Young Lady Faints in a Railway Waiting-Room.

At the waiting room of the C. and O. at Cincinnati this week our correspondent was a witness to a sad affair.

A young girl, a traveler, was taken suddenly with a violent fainting spell, an affection of the heart or something of that order, and could not be resuscitated.

The crowd of ladies around the poor girl seemed enough to shut off what little air there was, and the officials didn't seem to make any endeavors to keep them back, nor did they call a physician until a young lady of our company suggested this as the proper thing to do.

In some way the young girl, who was evidently refined and perhaps wealthy, as she was on her way to Washington City to attend school, gave them to understand that her address at Louisville, from which city she came, could be found in her purse.

When we had to leave they hadn't succeeded in restoring her to consciousness.

She was traveling entirely unattended.

WAS A M. C.

How a Rural Congressman Didn't Capture a Cincinnati Clerk.

Congressmen are about the same as the general run of men, says a correspondent of THE LEDGER who was a witness to a proceeding in the Queen City recently that was rather ludicrous.

We were in a Fourth street store, and a certain Congressman came in in a few moments, introduced himself to a clerk as Mr. So-and-So, when, seeing the man didn't seem to catch on to the fact that there was so distinguished a personage before him, he went on to inform him that he was well acquainted with the member from that Cincinnati District, calling him by name, and saying he served with him at Washington.

There wasn't any flurry made over him after all, things going along just as usual. The amusing thing to an on-looker, though, was the way the M. C. took to let the people in the store know there was so grand an individual among them. "All is vanity," said the Wise Man.

THE STIRK FAMILY.

Proud Aristocrats in the Realm of the Amusement Arena.

The famous Stirk family, one of the great features of The Wallace Shows, does work that borders on the marvelous. In truth, some of their attainments are of such complex difficulties that it frequently passes with but little more notice from the public than their simpler displays solely because the audience cannot follow its intricate and perplexing paradox.

It not infrequently happens that when a particularly hazardous feat is accomplished the strongest and most pronounced applause will come from the entry wherein the other actors of the show may invariably be found ranged as spectators when "the Stirks are on."

This tribute to their genius from their fellow performers is as unusual as it is spontaneous, and testifies to their superiority more eloquently than any eulogy possibly could.

When an act held the attention of actors as that of the Stirks does, it may indeed be said to be truly great.

Does It Pay to Buy Cheap?

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Roche's German Syrup." Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart Failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by J. C. Pecor.
