OLDEN TIMES

How Several Members of Family Distinguished Themselves

As an evidence of what great changes have taken place in this section within the memory of those of the older class it may be stated that of a large and well known family there isn't now one of the name here.

This family numbered among its members a College President, a distinguished Western Jurist, a prominent Southern lawyer, one of the most profound lawyers of this state, a Colonel of a Louisiana Regiment killed in battle from his adopted state, and the father an intimate friend of Henry Clay.

A different class altogether is now the order of the day.

What have we gained?
