OUR WEEKLY SPORT LETTER

BY C. H. ZUER.

CINCINNATI, O., August 8th, 1912.

The past week has developed no sensational changes in the matter of the fight for the championship in the two big leagues. In the American the Washingtons cut down the margin between them and Boston in a slight degree, while in the National the New Yorks increased their advantage to some extent through continuous victories. Taking general performance into consideration, and noting the fact that the century mark now has been passed by the teams in the matter of games played, and there is no reason to believe that there will be a change in the leaders between now and the end of the season, notwithstanding the fact that Manager Mack, of the world's champion Athletics, declares that his team will still win out, even though they are 103 points behind the Boston. The prospects are that the world's series between the Boston and the New Yorks will be closer contested than were the games for the highest honor last year. Neither team is particularly strong on star twirlers, and in other respects they are pretty evenly matched. In the matter of attendance, these games will draw the largest crowds that ever attended a world's series.

It is doubtful that any baseball season has ever sprung the number of surprises in regard to the work of big league teams that has marked the present year. The wonderful work done by the Reds during the first four weeks of the season furnished the early surprise. Then came the remarkable showing of the Washingtons, the strong performance of the Boston Americans and the weakening of the Philadelphia Athletics. It was a spring season for long shots, and the man who stayed off favorites on the baseball betting had a comfortable summer in a financial way. The Reds more recent showing has been one of the disappointments of the season. However, it is not natural for a team composed of so much talent to slump for any great length of time, and experts look for the Reds to come back any time and make a hot finish of it. The club owners still are diligently pursuing promising youngsters, and expect to exhibit quite a crop of these during the next six weeks. The team returns home next week, and will play its first Sunday game on the 18th, when the rejuvenated Boston archers.

No outsider in the National League has created the sensation this season that has followed Armando Marsans, the Red's Cuban outer guard, around the circuit. This chap has all the essentials of a star, lacking a bit of polish, and this he will acquire before another season rolls around. When he does he will be in the same class with Cobb, Spenser, Milan and the one or two other really great all-round performers in the suburbs. Marsans possessing a decided advantage over a majority of so-called stars, and that is his innate love for baseball. It can be truthfully said of him that he would rather play baseball than eat, although up to the present writing he has not been compelled to forego any meals in order to do a little trotting around the field. Marsans has been installed as the Red's regular center fielder, and will doubtless show great forward strides from now on because of the fact that he has a "stiddy" job.

Sam Langford, the "Boston tar baby," gave Sam McVey, the Californian, a jolly good besting over in Australia some days ago. Langford had been generally picked as the most formidable man to go against Jack Johnson, and had frequently declared that the colored champion was afraid to step into the squared circle with him. However, Langford's chances with Johnson would not have been particularly bright because of "Lil Aritha's" big advantage in weight, height and reach. As Johnson claims to have retired, Langford, by his victory over McVey, is right in line for the heavy weight honor.

Ever since the Olympic games were on there has been much speculation as to why Horine, the California high jumper, made no better showing than he did in his events. It was expected that he would be the sensation of the Olympiad, but in every respect he failed to live up to his record and reputation. The returning athletes from Stockholm bring the reason for Horine's non-success. They declare that the Swedish officials compelled Horine to completely change the style of his jumping, barring his method of going over the bar head first, and compelling him to make his jumps with his feet first over the bar. As a result Horine couldn't do himself justice.

So successful were the pari-mutuel betting machines at the recent harness race meeting at Cleveland, that the prospects are bright that the machines will gradually supplant the human bookmakers. In every instance the pari-mutuels paid better odds than the bookies, the play at times being so heavy that the men at the machines were unable to handle the money. The cleaning of the turf seems to be in the hands of these machines, and according to all accounts they are doing the job well.

Monster Fish in Newport Reservoir

A catfish, weighing 40 pounds and another 27, were exhibited at a Sixth street hotel, Newport, Tuesday morning. They were taken from the smaller of the two Newport reservoirs, which had been drained by the department. Base weight, four pounds, Jack salmon, cat and perch weighing three and a half and four pounds, were served to city officials and others at a fish bake held near the reservoir Monday afternoon. The cooking was done by a Newport caterer. The basin had not been cleared in fifteen years, and the purpose now is to establish a filtration plant.

SPEED PROGRAM

RUNNING RACES AND HARNESS RACES TO BE GIVEN ON EACH DAY.

Cup Races to be Given Each Day by the Gentlemen's Driving Club at Blue Grass Fair.

An excellent speed program has been arranged for the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington, week of August 12th to 17th.

On each of the six days there will be running races and harness racing on every day but Saturday. The two-year-old stake to be contested during the week, closed with 33 entries including nearly all of the best in training in Kentucky. This race has always been one of the best races of the year for two-year-olds and this should prove no exception to the rule.

In addition there will be a 2:16 trot, a 2:20 pace, 3-year-old trot and 2:22 trot. There will be no deduction from winners except in the stake, the entries to which closed May 10th. Other features will be added and announced later.

THE PARKER SHOWS

Will Present Several Headline Attractions at Blue Grass Fair.

It is always customary for the larger tented enterprises to offer one big feature attraction, sparing neither time or expense to make it the crowning feature of the mighty "Drag." Mr. C. W. Parker, founder and owner of the Parker Amusement Company, who remains at his big factories at Leavenworth, Kan., and directs his various companies from the home office, conceived the idea that a big European novelty would be the proper attraction for his largest company, The Greater Parker Shows. With this idea in view Miss Essie Fay and her beautiful full blooded Arabian were booked for this season's tour of America.

Miss Fay, who was an English woman by birth, was touring Arabia with her father, who at that time was a member of the English Parliament. When a guest of the Prince of Morocco at his palace in Tripoli, the Prince was pleased with Miss Fay and presented her with an Arabian yearling. The young lady shipped the horse to her father's stable. While roving the green with her new pet, she formed an attachment to the colt, and he the same to her, and in his grace and beauty, she thought she saw something promising. With his increasing brains and grace, and the careful training of its mistress, "Arabia" was quick to win acclaims of royalty and nobility in the greatest coliseum of Europe.

At London, Paris, Berlin, Naples, Madrid, Moscow, Vienna and St. Petersburg "Arabia," under the directions of Miss Fay, has astonished thousands who have witnessed "Arabia" add and subtract, answer questions, "yes" or "no" by the nod of her head, use the telephone, and do other astonishing feats, displaying an animal intelligence almost unbelievable of any dumb brute. "Arabia" goes to a big brass bed, takes off his night cap, undresses, turns down the covers, arranges the pillows, gets into bed, covers himself up again and apparently goes to sleep. Finishing his exhibition with a startling and exciting fire scene. Crushing down his stable door, he dashes across the lawn to the burning building of his mistress, he reappears leaping through the window with an infant child in his mouth and his mistress across his shoulders. "Arabia" the "fire-fighting" horse and "Arabia" the "good-night" horse will appear in Lexington at the Blue Grass Fair August 7-12.

HALF FARE RATES TO FAIR

Do not fail to visit the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington the week of August 12th to 17th. One fare rates will prevail on all railroads in Kentucky. Every afternoon and evening beginning Sunday, August 11th, there will be magnificent band concerts by Frederick Nell Innes' Orchestral Band, accompanied by Beatrice Van Loan, one of America's younger sopranos, who is recognized as one of the most charming and delightful soloists before the public to-day.

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT.

The Woman's Department of the Blue Grass Fair, to be held at Lexington, August 12 to 17th, will be more important and extensive this year than ever before. The premium list has been revised, and classes offered cover almost every kind of woman's work and table luxuries. The third floor of the Art Hall is given entirely to this department, and is usually one of the most attractive exhibits of the Big Fair.

This year the second floor will be utilized by the "Made in Lexington Club," and it is needless to say will be made as attractive as possible, and will be an exposition of wares manufactured in Lexington.

On the lower floor the management has arranged with the Canadian Government Exhibit to bring their display of wheat, grain and other agricultural products. This should attract the attention of every farmer in the state, as it is the same display made at big state fairs and expositions.

STORIES CAMP AND WAR

FIGHTING AT FORT STEDMAN

One of First Regiments to Charge Enemy Was 208th Pennsylvania—Stirring Activities.

Your description of the battle of Fort Stedman, March 25, 1865, prompts memory of the stirring activities of the early morning hours of that day I have a letter from a comrade who stated: "After reading the two last issues of The National Tribune on the Fort Stedman fight one would suppose that our brigade was not in it." etc.

You, of course, could not cover the many interesting details, and for this reason I will make some amplification which will probably interest comrades writes Miles C. Huyette of Buffalo, N. Y., in the National Tribune.

The 208th Pennsylvania was on the Bermuda Hundred front—under Butler in the Eighteenth Corps—from late in August, 1864, until late in October when we were relieved by a brigade of colored troops from the Ninth Corps, and we crossed to the south side of the Appomattox river, and formed a part of Hartman's Division, Ninth Corps. Our winter quarters were in a depression a little north of the Avery House, division headquarters.

The night of March 24-25 was foggy and damp. The smoke of smoldering campfires hung low; all night long the usual crackle of the muskets of the pickets kept up, punctuated with an occasional "hee-haw" of the army mules. We slept fully clothed about 4:30 a. m. I was awakened by an occasional cannon shot, more intense crackle of musketry—nearly volley firing—and the rebel yell. I thought best to get ready for trouble and, without waking my messmates, I took the three canteens and went to a low spot in the swale, where we had a pork barrel sunk in the mud, and filled the canteens with water. When I returned to the hut a mounted officer or orderly (in the darkness I could not determine which) galloped by from division headquarters, and as he passed shouted: "Form your company, and double-quick for Fort Stedman. Don't wait for anybody."

The company (B) was quickly formed, and we started for the fort. To the left rear of Fort Haskell we ran into the rebel skirmishers. We then lay down and began firing. Our line was nearly at right angle to our main line of works and our left about 100 yards to the rear of Fort Haskell. Mortar shells were dropping by the ton, at an angle from the left, and shrapnel from the same general direction; minie balls and, later, canister, from our own cannon, which had been captured at Fort Stedman and turned on us, from the front.

Fort Haskell was a rim of fire to the north and west. In the darkness we did not determine if or not the foe was in possession of Fort Haskell and it was difficult to prevent the men from firing in that direction. The other companies of the regiment formed on our right.

As daylight approached a slight air movement made a rift in the pall of smoke over Fort Haskell, and we could see Old Glory waving from its ramparts. It looked good, and, oh how we did cheer! The starry flag never before looked so good.

It is a matter of official record that the 208th Pennsylvania was the first regiment to charge the line of the enemy, and cleared the rebels out of our line "rom Fort Haskell to Fort Stedman, recapturing Batteries H and I and capturing 350 prisoners. Scott Robert (Co. B) was the first man back to Fort Stedman, and he was followed by the right of our regiment.

The order to "charge" reached Lieut. Col. Helmselman 15 to 20 minutes after we had regained full possession of the works. When the order to charge was given I was on my knees, opening a box of ammunition. Many of the men were out of cartridges and were taking from cartridge boxes of the wounded and dead.

Your description of the close and deadly fighting does not paint the word-picture as red as conditions justified. It was the first place I saw footprints of men in puddles of human blood. Blood was on my boots when the fighting ended. It was hell! When we gained full possession of the works firing ceased.
