

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

SATURDAY EVENING, SEPT. 2, 1882.

TERMS:—The EVENING BULLETIN is published daily, and served free of postage at 6 cents per week; 25 cents per month; 75 cents per three months; $1.50 per six months, and $3 per year, payable in advance.

THE EVENING BULLETIN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION IN THIS CITY, CHESTER AND ABERDEEN, OHIO, THAN ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN MAYSVILLE.

The Kentucky State Bee-Keepers' Convention will meet at Louisville, Sept. 26th and 27th.

It is estimated that the fine grain crops of the South will save that section $100,000,000 hitherto directed northward.

The "grand old party" that lives by looting scrub women, page boys, department clerks and Federal office holders generally, is not only sick but full of sores.

The aphorism runs, "When thieves fall out honest men get their dues." But occasionally thieves fail to get their dues from honest men. This may yet prove the case in the star route prosecutions.

The republican trouble in Massachusetts looks as if the disaffection had spread from Pennsylvania to New York and then to the Bay state. If the republican party is not breaking up all signs are at fault.

The Republicans of Mason county held their convention this morning. Uncle Roe Stockton was appointed chairman, and Messrs. J. K. Lloyd, Harry Wadsworth and E. R. Blaine, secretaries. Thirty-eight delegates were selected who were instructed to vote for the Hon. W. H. Wadsworth as long as his name was before the Catlettsburg convention.

The matter of "punched" or mutilated coins is one of much annoyance in this country at present. One of the most common methods of debasing coins is to punch out pieces of silver and fill the holes with tin foil. When the filling is neatly done it is not difficult to pass such mutilated pieces on the unwary. Judge Lovell, of the United States Circuit Court, in a Boston case has held the punching and filling to be an act of counterfeiting, and an attempt to pass a coin thus punched and filled to be an attempt to pass counterfeit money. The great mass of mutilated silver has been driven out of circulation by the refusal of people to touch the stuff. It will surprise most persons to learn that they render themselves liable to severe penalties for "showing" this specific kind of "queer," and as Bradstreet's justly puts it, "Judge Lowell's decision should, through wide publication, be a timely warning."

They Are Strangers Now.

Hartford Times.

A Middletown young lady never tires of relating an amusing occurrence of the sleighing season last winter. She was enjoying a ride in company with two Hartford gentlemen, and she was driving. One of the gentlemen slyly inserted a hand in her muff and lovingly pressed her disengaged hand. She blushed, and withdrew it just as the gentleman on the other side slipped his hand in the muff. She knew by the action of her adorers that the hand-pressures were frequent and loving within the silk lining of the muff, for first one face and then the other would bob forward to catch a look at the sweet face and eyes which prompted, as they supposed, the tender pressure of the hand. The by-play lasted until the young lady quietly remarked, "If you gentlemen are through with my muff I will trouble you for it now, as my hands are getting cold." And the two gentlemen who had been comfortably warm up to this time, suddenly felt an Arctic chill creeping up their spinal columns, and the mercury of their feelings dropped to 180 degrees below zero. The two gentlemen are strangers now.

A Coney Island Mystery Explained.

San Francisco Chronicle: It is not the climate that makes intoxication from lager impossible. It is not the lager, either. It's the way of serving it. A Coney Island glass of beer is a teaspoonful blown up into a half pint of gas. A glass of it would probably float away like a balloon if the top of it was covered up. The sensation of drinking a glassful is something between a broken dream and a mouthful of fog. The sustenance one obtains from it is got from the calm assurance of the bartender, who meets your eye unflinchingly. But for this a man might feel swindled. I asked a man who sells more larger than anyone else there how his men manage to get so little in the glasses.

"I'll tell you," said he. "I buy only quarter barrels, and I tell my bar tenders that if they don't make the price of a barrel on each quarter they can not work for me. A barrel costs $8. A quarter holds ninety city glasses, or $5.40, but they must piece each one out into 160 glasses or quit work."

"Why, that would be over half a glassful," said I, "and I never got half a glass yet."

"Of course not," said the beer-seller, "because the men ain't honest. They know that they can keep every cent over $8 that they take in on a quarter-barrel, and that I won't complain; so the rascals knock down a couple of dollars or so on the quarter-barrel by drawing 200, or even a greater number of glasses. Of course I think that's an outrage, but it's the rule down here, and as long as I get my $8 I don't say anything."

Canned Goods.

The house in Melbury road, Kensington, where the Zulus lodge was formerly occupied by an artist, who left behind him a japanned tin box full of tubes of oil color. Now, it happened one morning lately that Imkosana, he who led the Zulu army at Isandula and Ungobogana, the General in command at Rorke's Drift, came across the paint box, and, with the curiosity of their simple savage natures, they opened it. Both braves had seen the passengers on board the Arab eat shrimp paste. That may have induced them to squeeze some portions of flake white, yellow ochre and Indian red upon slices of bread and butter, and to consume the same in the belief that they were partaking of a particularly appetizing British breakfast delicacy.

He Was About.

When the rider in the guise of a drunken spectator staggered into a circus ring at Marquette, Mich., and the ringmaster went through with the usual foolery of ejecting him, incidentally remarking that no policemen were ever present when order needed to be restored, a German officer hustled the performer off to jail, in spite of all protests and explanations. "A choke is a choke," he said, "but ven a man zay vere is de bolice, and vy don'd dey arrest dat drunk man, den de Marquette bolice is in dot vicinity, und don'd you forgot id, Mr. Circus, I bed you."

Disgrace to Our Civilization.

Chicago Inter Ocean.

Kentucky has no reform school and sends children to the penitentiary of the State, where they are left to grow up with adult convicts. Ten children under fifteen years old are now reported as serving terms in the State penitentiary. This is poor economy for a rich State like Kentucky, besides a disgrace to her civilization.

Smart Men.

In a recent lecture Henry Ward Beecher said: "In this country smart men have always a chance." That is true enough; but after they have had it hundreds of them shake their country and go to Canada and stay until the directors fix up the affair with the stockholders.

Varied Employments.

A real estate dealer advertises in a Dakota newspaper: "I can be found either at the Gold Mine playing 'freeze out,' at Mitchell's Exchange betting on the age of 'old hosses' with Brown, or at my residence on Oak street, perusing the Scriptures."

The glass in Messrs. George Cox & Son's windows, put in by Mr. J. R. Soursley are 90 by 120 inches in size, and contain 10,800 squares inches. Each glass weighs 600 pounds. The lights in White & Ort's windows are 88 by 131 inches and contain 11,528 square inches. These are the largest glasses in the city.
