It is stated that the attorneys for Hugh Marshall Bros., the St. Louis "trunk murderer," have secured a writ of error from Mr. Justice Miller, of the Supreme Court of the United States. Brooks' father is now in the United States and, thoroughly convinced of his son's innocence, will use every means for saving his life.

A special dispatch to the Courier-Journal from Owensboro announces that Geo. A. Dutz, an agent for the Greengroup Music Company at No. 614 West Market street, had committed suicide at the residence of Dr. I. A. Able, three miles east of Owensboro. The trouble which led Dutz to take his life was the misappropriation of about $200 of the company's funds. Dutz swallowed an overdose of morphine and soon died from the effects of the drug. He was married only two weeks since to the daughter of Dr. Able, at whose house he died.

Gen. Harris' mention of Trimble county recalls the statement recently made that fewer crimes are committed there than in other counties of the State. The record made by Trimble is remarkable and should offset some of the slanders which have been heaped upon Kentucky. The lawyers all voted to death in Trimble. Frequently when Circuit Court convenes there the docket does not show a single criminal case, and the civil suits are not much numerous. The people confine themselves chiefly to farming and market gardening, and do not lose enough time from their quiet pursuits to indulge in quarrels with each other. Trimble, for law and order, is the banner county of the State.—Courier-Journal.

The excursion on the Kentucky river Wednesday night last, was one of the most pleasant and enjoyable entertainments that has taken place in Woodford this season. The occasion was in compliance to Dr. E. M. Worthington, of this place, by his friend, Mr. Preston H. Williams. The steamer Grand Morris with a large band of dancing, left Clifton at half past eight o'clock, filled with as fair a company of ladies and gentlemen of Woodford society as was ever before assembled. The trip was beautiful and good, and the "right-down" to Frankfort was delightful. Landing at Madison, the steamer returned to Lexington and was engaged there. After a stay of an hour at Frankfort the party returned up the river to Lock No. 5, and from there back to Clifton, where all arrived safe and happy at 4 A. M. The party was not only an enjoyable one, but really educating, and to Mr. Williams all of the many who were present, are indebted for a royal time—a night by moonlight on the beautiful Kentucky river.—Versailles Sun.

Mr. Alex. Martin showed us a remnant of a nickel Saturday and gave this remarkable history of it: Last March one of his children was feeding an old hen with grains of corn from his hand and for offered her a nickel. She swallowed the money with the same avidity as the corn, and his surprised his mother made futile attempts to pick her disgorged. The hen would not about her business, held the usual quantity of eggs, then went to setting, hatched out a brood of chickens and raised them. This duty performed she began to lay again and in due time got into the setting humor for the second time. Mrs. Martin thought that was too much of a good thing, so she fastened the hen up for a few days to get her out of the notion. Then she turned her loose and the hen got even with her by poucing upon some newly planted seed in the garden, and ate them up. It was Mrs. Martin's time to get even now and she did so by having the hen caught and killed. In preparing her for the table her gizzard was opened and lo and behold the nickel, swallowed nearly four months before, was found therein. It had worn to half its thickness by the operation of the gravel and was reduced in size almost to a three cent piece. If anybody doubts this true story the nickel and Alex's word ought to convince the most sceptical.—Staunton Journal.

As announced in our last regular issue, the second trial of the case of Mrs. Lou Ballard against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, was decided as we went to press last Thursday, and a verdict rendered awarding Mrs. Ballard $2,500 damages for having carried her past the station to which she had purchased a ticket, and being compelled to walk back about a mile, the alleged fatigue of which and the exposure attending it impairing her health. The clerk read the verdict as awarding $3,500, and the jury endorsed it. Later, when the verdict was examined, it was found to read thus: "We of the jury find for the plaintiff and fix the damages at ($3,500) three thousand and five dollars." The words "and five" before "dollars" had been interlined. Plaintiff asked the Court award a judgment for $3,500 on this verdict, but after consulting accepted authorities, denied the motion and fixed the judgment at $2,500, holding that the written words must take precedence over the figures. Plaintiff excepted, and will again ask the case before the Court of Appeals on the 2nd and 3rd of next month. On the first trial, Mrs. Ballard was awarded $3,000; the suit was taken to the Appellate Court and the judgment of the lower court reversed and then sent back; on the second trial $3,500 was awarded, and while it is conceded that the jury intended to award $3,500, the error in omitting the word "and" in reducing the amount to writing has been held to be a fatal point, the decision of which will be looked for with interest by men of the law.—Lexington Enterprise.

Winchester Democrat.
