DRIFT OF OPINION.

The "original Harrison man" continues to drop in on the General two or three times a day.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Chandler's idea of naval administration is millions for repairs, but rings and for unseaworthy hulks, but not a cent for a ship that can float or fight.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

President Cleveland is said to be very unpopular among the citizens of Washington, D. C. This is quite satisfactory evidence that plunder has been scarce at the capital during the last four years.—Chicago News.

Senator Chandler's bill making a $5,000,000 appropriation for rams is probably intended as a recognition of the services of the sheep who turned out so numerously and voted for protection in the recent election.—Boston Herald.

If some of the millionaires who made their money under a protective tariff and gave it to found universities could come to life and see these institutions filled with free-trade professors, they would not be so happy as they might be.—Providence (R. I.) Journal.

The work of building a navy able to give the United States rank among the naval powers has been carried on well toward completion. All share the hope that the work may be finished by the next administration without those frauds and scandals which disgraced for years the Republican management of the navy.—Albany Argus.

The biggest joke of the day is the remark that Blaine may decline the State portfolio. When the ice crop grows on orange trees, when politicians lose their itching for office, when the fountain of hope in the human breast dries up, when Wiggins' prophecies are fulfilled, then James G. Blaine will decline. But that is not 1889.—New Haven Register.

It appears that the prices and production of pig-iron are to be subjected to a powerful combination of speculative manipulators. The influence of such a syndicate will be felt all along the line of our manufacturing industries. It is an important move in the great game of money-making—profits for the few, loss for the many.—Buffalo Courier.

LITTLE CHILDREN.

They Are the Poetry of the World and the Fresh Flowers of Our Hopes.

Children are the poetry of the world, the fresh flowers of our hearts and homes—little conjurers, with their natural magic, evoking by their smiles what delights and enriches all ranks, and equalizes the different classes of society.

Although children often bring with them anxieties and cares, and live to occasion sorrow and grief, we should not on very badly without them. If there was never any body any where to be seen but grown-up men and women, how we should long for the sight of a little child!

Even as it comes into the world like a delegated prophet, the harbinger and herald of good tidings whose office it is "to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children," and to draw "the disobedient to the wisdom of the just." A child softens and purifies the heart, warming and melting it by its gentle presence; it enriches the soil by new feelings, and awakens within it what is favorable to virtue. It is a beam of light, a fountain of love, a teacher whose lessons few can resist.

Children recall us from much that engenders and encourages selfishness, that freezes the affection, roughens the manners, indurates the heart, they brighten the home, develop love, invigorate exertion, infuse courage, and vivify and sustain the charities of life. It would be an unattractive world if it was not embellished by little children.—N. Y. Ledger.

Where's the Fascination?

The proprietor of a pool-room remarked, as he glanced over a hundred or two men who were scattered about his place: "It is a mysterious thing to me where the fascination of the game of pool comes in. There are men here to-night who have been coming here steadily every evening for the week, except Sundays, for eight or ten years. Some of them are old, some middle-aged and some young men. They arrive with the regularity of fate immediately after dinner, usually smoking a big cigar, pull off their coats, and go to work in a leisurely manner to play pool.—Of course, they are good players.—They must be, after so much practice. They poke the balls for an hour or so, drink three or four glasses of beer, light another cigar, and toddle off home perfectly contented and thoroughly satisfied with their evening's amusement, an evening certainly, but it would take more than that sort of thing to keep me going night after night as the years go by. These men, however, seem not to know such a sensation as boredom. Pool to them is an exciting pastime forever."—Chicago Journal.

Her Face Was Her Fortune.

She was as pretty as a picture and so animated and lively that it did not seem to look like her. Poor soul, the roses linger no more in her cheeks, the former luster of her eyes gone, she is a woe-begone looking piece of humanity now. She has one of those troubles so common to women and needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It restores the wasted strength and puts the whole system right, restores the roses and the luster and makes the woman what she once was, bright, well and happy. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturer, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on bottle wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

For all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, take Dr. Pierce's Pellets. One a day.

THE MARVEL OF THE DAY.

THE TOPMOST ROUND OF THE LADDER REACHED!

The Most Phenomenal Success in the Mercantile History of Richmond is the

BUSY BEE

CASH STORE,

Established a Few Years Ago.

And Now for the Spring of 1889.

NEW GOODS ARE POURING IN RAPIDLY, AND PRICES ARE BEING NAMED THAT FOR CHEAPNESS FAIRLY TAKES THE BREATH OF CUSTOMERS.

OUR STORE IS ALREADY PACKED AND JAMMED FROM FLOOR TO CEILING WITH THE MOST

Attractive Assortment of Seasonable Goods

ever displayed in this city, and every article on shelves or counters is a real GREAT BIG BARGAIN.

NO CATCHING LEADERS

are thrown out as baits, and prices advanced on other things to make up loss of profit. But while Muslins, Calicoes, Ginghams, Shirtings and all staple domestics are from one to three cents lower than regular old-fashioned prices, the reductions on other lines are astounding.

DRESS GOODS.

This is the banner department of our mammoth business. There is scarcely a shade or quality not to be found here, including all the new novelties in Plaid and Striped Woolen Fabrics, all new shades of Henriettas, &c., on down to Satteens and cheap Dress Goods. We sell the choicest importations of French Satteens—best make—at 30c. per yard. Call and see them.

CARPETS! CARPETS!

We can show you Carpets of all grades and patterns, from the cheapest to the finest, and we guarantee to name prices that will suit you all. You can't afford to buy a Carpet before you see this stock.

No Use to Ask How it is Done.

A keen, wide-awake buyer, always on the market with bullion to back him, can do anything. All people want is the goods at low prices, and we have them.

It Would be the Greatest Folly for us to claim to offer inducements that did not exist, and subject persons visiting our establishment to disappointment and chagrin. Every word in this announcement, and all else we say, is based upon strong abiding confidence in our ability to delight and satisfy those who call. We have such unequalled facilities for buying that we feel that successful competition with our goods and prices is impossible. Call it audacity, assurance, cheek or confidence, it means faith in our ability to please the public. When we give you a 7c. Calico for 5c., and a 10c. Gingham or Shirting for 7c., there is a silent logic in the proceeding that needs no conviction.

TALK IS CHEAP, but we have endeavored to give some wholesome facts for all those who lay out CASH for anything that people wear from sole to crown. And now all we can do is to extend to one and all, rich and poor, a most earnest and cordial invitation to visit us; we will risk all the rest. To look is to buy, but don't fail to look whether you want to buy or not.

Very Respectfully,

RAMSEY & OLDHAM.

EDISON'S PHONOGRAPH.

A Great Future Promised for the New Taper-Record.

As a saving in the time given up to writing, the phonograph promises to far outstrip the typewriter. The business man can dictate to the phonograph as fast as he can talk, and the wax cylinder, instead of in a suitable box, can be sent off by mail, to read out his message perhaps thousands of miles away. Of course, as is now done in Mr. Edison's laboratory in Orange, N. J., the typewriter girl can print out upon paper what her employer has dictated to the phonograph. For the reporter, the editor and the author who can dictate, a device has been adapted to the phonograph which enables it to enter his message at every tenth word, and to continue only when a spring is touched. Thus the editor can dictate his article to the phonograph as he does now to his stenographer, and when the printer at the case gets the resulting program the instrument will dictate to him in short sentences. If he can not set up the sentences at once, he can hear the phonograph as he does now to his stenographer, and when the printer at the case gets the resulting program the instrument will dictate to him in short sentences. If he can not set up the sentences at once, he can hear the phonograph as he does now to his stenographer, and when the printer at the case gets the resulting program the instrument will dictate to him in short sentences.

It would have to begin, however, with a table of contents, in order that one might not have to listen to a two-hour speech upon the tariff question in order to get at ten lines of a musical notice. But think what a musical notice might be able to do for the public! He might give them whole articles from an opera or movements from a symphony, by way of proof or illustration. The very tones of an actor's or singer's voice might be reproduced in the moving notes of last night's important dramatic or musical event. It has been remarked, by the way, that business letters and orders by phonograph would not be so binding as when put in black and white upon paper. A little wax cylinder covered with microscopic dots would not be considered as good evidence in court. But if the speaker's voice, inflection and accent were so reproduced that witnesses could swear to the personality, would it not suffice? How could there be any dispute over a man's will when the voice of the dead man was heard?

In music, as I have already said, the value of the phonograph even in its present condition is indisputable. Musicians are divided, and probably always will be, as to the manner in which certain famous symphonies ought to be conducted. The metronome marks used by Beethoven are but uncertain guides at best, while no written directions as to dynamics, calmo, crescendos, etc., are worth much. The phonograph will offer to the composer that long-sought instrument, an automatic recorder of impressions upon the piano or other instrument. In the far-off future, when our descendants wish to capture our simple little Wagner operas with the complex psychosomatic of their own days, requiring, perhaps, a dozen orchestras, playing in half a dozen different keys at once, they will have accurate phonographic records of our harmonic simplicity.

At present but few of the new phonographs have been detailed, and those only for exhibition purposes. When they will be offered for sale seems to be doubtful; but Edison says that in a few months, Mr. Edison says that by the beginning of 1890 the phonograph will be far less of a curiosity than the telephone is now, and that he could begin selling the instruments at once if he were fully satisfied with them. There is always something which needs improving. Just at present there is needed a funnel for so magnifying the sound that if the instrument is placed in the center of a table all the persons sitting around can hear its reading or music. For the last year it has been the same story—the phonographs would be ready for sale next month, but they were not ready yet, and so on. Mr. Edison says that he has had many doubts as to the vast possibilities which the little device contains.—Atlantic Monthly.

Edgerston's Amino Kick.

The "kick" of ex-Commissioner Edgerston is precisely what was to have been expected. During his entire occupancy of a place on the Civil Service Commission he was the round man in a square hole. He never had any real sympathy with the reform it was his official duty to promote, and the most casual speaker he ever made concerning it were in ridicule of it. Measuring it by his own narrow estimate he believed the whole system to be a farce, and it is doubtful if he ever gave President Cleveland credit for any real faith in the plan or any honesty of intention in carrying it out. Naturally, therefore, he is bitter over the discovery that the President was in earnest.—Bristol Post.

—"Have another piece of the cake," said Johnny's mother to a female friend who was taking tea with her. "No, don't you do it," put in Johnny; "it will make you ill." "Why, Johnny, ain't you ashamed of yourself to talk in that way?" said his mother. "Well, mother, that is what you always tell me when I want another piece, and I am sure I can eat four times as much as Mrs. Green can!" answered Johnny.—N. Y. Ledger.

March April May

Are the months in which to purify the blood, and the system is more susceptible to benefit from medicine. Hence now is the time to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, a medicine peculiarly adapted for the purpose, possessing peculiar curative powers. It expels every impurity from the blood and also gives vitality and richness. It opens an appetite, tones the digestion, invigorates the liver and gives new life and energy to every function of the body. The testimony of thousands as to the great benefit derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, should convince everybody that it is peculiarly the best blood purifier and spring medicine.

From the lazzaretto doctors came it; hence the lazzaretto demand for Alternatives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to uncleanliness, but to impurity of the blood; and it is equally well understood that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on her leg. We applied Sarsaparilla to it, and in a few days the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical help, and were told that an alternative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being
