

THE CLIMAX.

WEDNESDAY. - AUG. 8, 1894.

Eves for sale. See ad. Money lost. See ad. Southdown ducks for sale. See ad. Court-day arrests were few, drinks ditto.

Many cisterns in town have no water in them. Steve White wants to see you before you place your order for coal.

J. W. May & Co. wish to buy 10,000 bushels of Irish potatoes. See ad. A fine boy was born to the wife of Samuel Phelps, Jr., on August 1st.

The time of holding the Colored Institute has been changed from the 27th to the 20th of this month.

Steve White has the best prices, best coal and will give you the most liberal terms on your winter coal.

Capt. Tom Ferrell reports Mrs. Patsy Powell's sale last Saturday as well attended. Stock and everything else sold well.

More blackberries have been put up in Madison county this season than was ever known before. So say the "oldest citizens."

During the Clark County Fair a couple of lost racks will be given, the competition to be limited to residents of Clark county.

The Kentucky Wesleyan College will have a football team this winter. Prof. Thomson M. Morton, a Central University man, will train the team.

Contracts have been awarded for the construction of the Spaworth, Kingsport and Menasha Turnpike, and work is now under way. The new pipe will be one of the best in the county.

Agent Beraw gives official notice that all trains over the Kentucky Midland have resumed. A special train will run from Frankfort, Tuesday, at noon, the first that had run over the road since July 26, carried 200 passengers.

Wecker says that he sold ten thousand pounds of flour and forty-seven barrels of sugar last month. This certainly is a great deal for one merchant to sell in a short time, but there is no telling what low cash prices will do.

Last Monday (Court-day) there were about 250 cattle on the market. Sales were better than on the preceding Court-day, and there was very good demand for best grades at $2.50 to $3.25. The horse trade was very dull. It was difficult to sell them, in fact very few changed hands.

John M. Garrett, of Woodford county, bought of John T. Hughes, of Lexington, the fine show mare, Lou Chief, for $1,800, probably the highest price in this State for a saddle mare. She was on exhibition at the Danville fair. Lou Chief was the winner of the first premium for saddle mares at the World's Fair.

Joe Rice, who lost a finger on his right hand while operating a circular saw at his father's mill at Rice's Station, in the White House, under treatment. It was believed he would lose his hand, as he was using a very well and will return home in a few days.

Work on the Mr. Stealing water works has been suspended, and will not be resumed, owing to lack of funds to push the enterprise to completion, whereby that town's prospects for such a blessing are exceedingly slim. The report was made on the 27th of last week, as it had been extremely advertised, and a number of citizens have lost heavily by the sudden termination of the enterprise.

We acknowledge receipt of "complimentary" to the Clark County Fair. The management of this fair is composed of men of good standing and fine business qualifications, and therefore everything has been done to make it a "showing" success. The crowd will be there, as it has been extremely advertised, and the exhibits, show rings, mass, etc., will surpass everything.

The Harborsburg Democrat has the following in regard to Miss Annie Grimes who formerly taught in M. F. L.: "Miss Grimes will have charge of the school at Kirkwood this year. Her school will open Monday. Miss Grimes is a teacher of successful experience, and the people of the Kirkwood neighborhood are to be congratulated on securing her services. She has rare tact with young people and is a conscientious, able school worker."

Past-off Inspector W. F. Fletcher served out a warrant for the arrest of J. J. Brown, Postmaster at Jeffersonville, Montgomery county, charging him with selling postage stamps at a discount and with embezzling postage stamps, and with falsifying his cancellation of postage stamps. Dr. Brown was at Lexington on a bridal tour. An attempt was made to serve the warrant there, but he had disappeared, leaving his bride with his trunk.

A Boyle county man has invented a patent net that is a very great convenience to Biddy, and it is an automatic persuader for her to do good work. When the hen approaches the nest a wicket door gently opens, and after she passes it it closes, and the hen has private apartments all to herself. The egg of its own weight opens a trap-door and automatically sets it right. Then when the hen rises, puts her hand to her cheeks, and gets ready to walk out, not seeing the egg, thinks she has made a mistake and lays another. This sort of thing is repeated until the belt of the chicken puts in the box below touches of a spring and Biddy is fired out of the apartment.

In Bond. The amount of whisky in bond in the Eighth District on June 30th, 1894, was 14,041,885 gallons. The estimated withdrawals for July were 900,000 gallons, leaving in bond August 1st 13,141,885 gallons. This is enough whisky to float one of those transports the Japanese sank the other day.

Republican Convention. The Republicans held a convention in the City Hall last Saturday and convened and re-convened to attend by the principles of the C. C. P. as usual the Democratic party was blamed for all its inflicting the country. C. C. Wallace was nominated for Sheriff, T. T. Griggs for Jailer, G. B. Turley, Justice of the Peace, and Richard Buckley, Constable.

A Child Killed. Last week as Wm. Harris, wife and four children were driving along a creek road in the Elzenton neighborhood, the horse choked down, fell over a ten foot embankment, dragging with him the wagon and occupants. One child about a year old was killed outright, another girl about two years old was severely injured. The wife also had one of her arms broken. The other occupants were bruised, but not seriously.

PERSONAL.

Miss Sue Hale, of Stanford, is visiting Miss Amy Smith. Miss Clara Mershon, of Stanford, is visiting Miss Anna Mershon. Miss Julia Higgins is the guest of the Misses McBeths, at Danville. Dr. Roger Hilpp, of Louisville, is in town this week visiting friends.

Dr. A. Wilkes Smith, and wife left Monday for a brief sojourn at Old Point Comfort.

Miss Bernice Stone has just returned from a three months visit to her aunt in Bedford, Ky.

Misses Emma and Thelma Burgen, of Versailles, are visiting their relative, Mrs. James Dawlings.

Miss Florie Bright is visiting Misses Mary Adair Bernoy and Mary Wilson Bell, at Shelbyville.

Mr. J. S. Kennedy, of Richmond, paid a flying visit to Nicholasville last Sunday. -Nicholasville Democrat.

Miss Van Greenleaf has returned home, after spending two weeks with Miss Lizette Dickson, at Paris.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

Miss Maud Gibbons has returned to her home in Lexington, after a pleasant visit of six weeks to friends in this county.

Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery (nee Letchler) have returned to Richmond and will live here in future.

Mr. W. K. Norris, of the Winchester Marble Works, was here Monday taking orders for monuments.

ATRIMONIAL.

Invitations are out announcing the wedding of Miss Allene Welch and Mr. Popo G. Myers, of Cleburne, Texas, Sunday afternoon, August 12th, at 1:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. C. Welch, Nicholasville. Miss Welch is one of Jessamine's most popular young ladies. Mr. Myers resided in Nicholasville several years ago and was connected with the engineering corps of the R. N. L. & B. railroad - Nicholasville Democrat.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at the home of Mr. Z. B. Lewis, on Victoria avenue, on Wednesday afternoon, the 15th, when Frank Lewis, the only daughter of the house, a lovely, highly accomplished young woman, was led to the altar by Dr. Hardin Welch Bridg, a prominent and popular young physician of Richmond, Kentucky.

The handsome, artistic occasion of the bride was for the wedding party, decorated with palm fronds and potted plants and a profusion of cut flowers - white and yellow being the predominant tone of the decorations.

Promptly at five o'clock the orchestra stationed on the veranda, laid hidden by the vines, played the wedding march - then through the wide hallway into the spacious parlors came the wedding party. First came the brides, Dr. Frank Welch, of Boyleville, Ontario, and Dr. Bertrand L. Potter, of Wilmington, Del., followed by the groom leading on the arm of his best man, Mr. James Norman Lewis, of Cincinnati, brother of the bride, then came Miss Helena Potter, of Wilmington, Del., sister of the bride, followed by the bridesmaids, all in white, embroidered with white daisies, wearing daisies in her hair and bearing in her hand a Tuxedo stick, on the end of which was attached a white ribbon, a loose cluster of the same flowers, - then came the fair sweet bride, walking between her father and mother, she wore a gown of white tulle, with white daisies, and over her face she wore a tulle veil caught up with a spray of orange blossoms and pinned with a lovely diamond star - gift of the groom, and led in graceful folds over the dome train of her gown. When the bride reached the altar the groom stepped forward and claimed his bride. They stood beneath an umbrella of white daisies, facing the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the words which united their young lives. The maid of honor then stepped forward, drew back the veil, and the newly wed pair received the congratulations of their friends. They then repaired to the dining room where an elegant collation had been prepared for the guests, after partaking of which Dr. and Mrs. Bridg entered their carriage and were driven to the station and proceeded on their bridal tour down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and Thousand Isles. After three weeks they will leave for Kentucky, where they will reside in the home of the bride's father, the Rev. A. E. Ross, of the Methodist church, who said the